Lance defense today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of Bert Lance's long awaited public defense against what he termed "allegations, innuendo and hearsay," the White House was embarrassed Wednesday by a top staff member and new charges were floated on Capitol Hill.

The charges were made at a hearing of the Senate Government Affairs Committee by a federal bank regulator. He said Lance may have illegally received $100,000 through bank overdrafts used in his unsuccessful 1974 campaign for Georgia governor.

The White House was embarrassed when Press Sec. Jody Powell leaked a baseless rumor to newspapers about Sen. Charles Percy, top Republican on the Governmental Affairs panel and an agressive interrogator in the Lance case. Powell said his actions were "inappropriate, regrettable and dumb."

President Carter has decided that Bert Lance should leave office, but the problem is how to make the move, writes Hobart Rowen, Washington Post Economics writer — Sect. 4, Page 1.

LANCE, WHO IS scheduled to testify before the committee today, said judgments about his qualifications as budget director are being made on the basis of "allegations, innuendo and hearsay."

"Scrutiny, investigation — all that's fine," he said. "You ought to be able to go through that. But when you've gone through it, you ought to be able to present your side of the case in a sense of fairness — and be heard out before any decision is made."

Powell said Carter still has confidence in Lance "but obviously, if he feels that he should ask for the resignation, of course he would do it. It would not . . . be an easy thing to do."

Lance, a longtime Carter friend, is under pressure to step down because of questionable banking practices he employed and huge bank overdrafts he incurred before joining the admin-

WATER, WATER everywhere . . . That's what three area students at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana found after a rainstorm dumped about 1½ inches of water on the town. The downpour that flooded the main street Tuesday created a convenient swimming pool for Jeff Chamberlin, a senior from Mount Prospect; Joe Solon, a sophomore from Park Ridge and Charlotte Volkman, a sophomore from Glenview.

Seniors get lunch program

by NANCY GOTLER

In the six years since his wife died, Albert Perkins has spent most afternoons alone, either skipping lunch or eating a cold can of pork and beans.

Now, because of a free lunch program started this week, by the Northwest Opportunity Center, the 61-year-old Arlington Heights resident and other senior citizens in the Northwest suburbs have a place to go for company and a hot meal.

"If I weren't here I probably wouldn't have had anything to eat for lunch," Perkins said Wednesday, the opening day of the program at North School, 410 N. Arlington Heights. Rd., Arlington Heights.

THE MEAT LOAF, macaroni and fruit cup lunch offered Wednesday is typical of the meals that will be served Monday through Friday at noon for the next year, site supervisor Esther Rubchuk said.

The program, financed by the federal government, is available to citizens at least 60 years old who live in the Northwest suburbs. Persons younger than 60 may attend if their spouse is within the age limit.

No income level is required, Mrs. Rabchuk said.

A 30-cent donation is requested, but participants do not have to pay anything for the lunch.

ABOUT 25 SENIOR citizens ate at the school Wednesday, but Mrs. Rabchuk said enough food will be prepared to feed 50 persons each day.

The participants, like Jeff Elman, 68, of Mount Prospect, complimented the quality of the food and the program.

"It seems to fill a need and by the interest aroused in it I think the number who appreciate the opportunity to get out of the house and have a good meal is great," he said.

Frank Rapp, 81, a 70-year Arlington Heights resident, said he planned to return to the serving line for a second helping.

HE SAID HE spends most afternoons "eating hard boiled eggs or ham sandwiches and then taking a nap." But he said he will return to the center again because he liked the company the program offers.

But the biggest fan of the program Wednesday was Perkins.

"I know I'll be back every day," he said. "It's a whole lot better than sitting alone and doing nothing."

Church keeps Christ in homes

Debbe Jonak

Byline report

They are a congregation without a building. Worshippers without a house of worship.

And that is the way they intend to stay.

The Neighborhood Church began in 1972 with a few couples meeting at the home of Kevin Dyer in Prospect Heights.

Although the numbers have grown and moved to school classrooms, they have not strayed far from the home-like approach to Christian church services.

"We don't have a typical type of church program," said Dyer, 41, of 907 Sherwood Dr., one of the church elders. There is no pastor. Dyer also is president of Literature Crusades, a missionary training center at 515 Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

"IT'S A VERY relaxed atmosphere — not dress-up," he said. "We're not hung up on buildings . . . The church is not a building. The church is the people."

Members of the Neighborhood Church gather in groups of 30 or 40 at 10 a.m. Sunday in one of three schools — Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights; Eugene Field School, 51st and St. Armand streets, Wheeling; and Wilson School, 15 E. Palatine Rd., Arlington Heights.

"We have a time of singing, a time of teaching, a time when we break the whole church down into small groups and pray for personal needs of people in that church," Dyer said. "Then we have a communion service."

The group decided it liked the warm, informal feeling that a church building could not provide or improve.

MEMBERS ALSO found that by meeting at schools in different areas, church services remain close to the neighborhoods from which its members come, Dyer said.

The church evolved from conversations about Christ between Dyer and his neighbors.

"Many were turned off by the established church, just perhaps because they didn't receive personal help for their personal needs," he said. "They heard a sermon, shook hands and said goodby."

Three families began meeting at Dyer's house for prayer. Those families spread the word about Christ and the Neighborhood Church to others and the church soon outgrew the house.

The congregation moved its Sunday gatherings to a school, then as membership reached close to 200 it broke into the three groups.

NEIGHBORHOOD proselytizing remains an area of prime importance to the congregation, Dyer said.

"We believe each Christian should be out sharing Jesus Christ," he said. "We're not trying to pull people from all over the country, though . . . Our desire is really to have an impact on our local neighbors."

Those drawn to the unconventional church are usually young persons in their 20s and 30s.

Older people tend to be threatened by the Neighborhood Church's approach, Dyer said.

"It's very difficult for people to come to us with a traditional church background. To them it's just not church," he said, adding quickly, "we don't want to get into knocking older people, because that is meaningful for them. Some people do find their needs met in the traditional church."

MANY YOUNG PERSONS do not, Dyer said, explaining they want a church that relates to their personal and contemporary needs in a down-to-earth fashion.

He pointed to music as one area. Instead of the 17th and 18th century organ music sung in traditional churches, the Neighborhood Church employs guitar music — much of it recent.

The method of worship is different Dyer said, but the teaching is the same — the Bible is considered God's word and its principles strictly observed.

"I am very committed to the Bible and to the concept of the local church," he said.

DYER SAID he came from a Plymouth Brethren religious background — a very strong evangelical group that provided him with an "excellent Bible background."

However, he eventually found his needs were not met with that group.

"It's typical of any church group today that gets hung up on traditional patterns," he said.

While the Neighborhood Church has broken away from those patterns, Dyer said it is not unique.

"I think there are a lot of churches around like this. They're just not advertised on the church pages," he said.

Cronin car 'abuse' leads to reform call

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

Illinois Supt. of Schools Joseph M. Cronin used his state-owned luxury car during a vacation, prompting Illinois Board of Education members Wednesday to promise quick enactment of travel restrictions.

Cronin, who has been the target of criticism in the past for chartering airplanes, used the car for almost a month during July and August to travel to education conferences in Michigan and Boston and then to New Hampshire for a vacation.

Although Cronin's state contract requires the car be used solely for official business, he paid only for the cost of gas and oil on the trip.

Cronin defended the use of the car because of the conferences he attended. However published reports in the Alton Telegraph disclose Conin attendel a regional conference in Michigan for a week, but vacationed for three weeks spending less than one other day on official business.

CRONIN'S CAR, a 1977 Oldsmobile Regency 98, with options including crushed velour interior was purchased for him less than a month before the vacation.

"I think he was wrong," said Donald Truitt, state board of education member from Palatine. Truitt, the chairman of the board's budget committee, said new travel guidelines now are being developed.

He agreed Cronin should have been more sensitive to the use of the car in light of other criticism of his travel expenses.

Truitt said Cronin may be able to justify driving the car to Michigan, but the additional travel is questionable.

"I think there is a certain arrogance in education that just

Missing $1,042 checked by police

Des Plaines police are investigating the theft of $1,042, which disappeared Wednesday from the Central Telephone Co, 2004 Miner St., Des Plaines.

The money, placed in an envelope by Central employe Rose Bialek Tuesday afternoon, was discovered missing at 7 a.m. Wednesday when the safe was opened and the envelope was found empty.

Central Supt. John K. Brueck told police that five persons were in the accounting office at the time of the theft.

The envelope with the money was placed on a desk while Ms. Bialek, who counted the money originally, went into the washroom for three to five minutes, police said. All receipts were given to another Central employe, Cheri Fich, who 'immediately" locked them in the company safe, police said.

Congress warned not to kill canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger warned Congress Wednesday that rejecting the Panama Canal treaties would undermine President Carter's authority as an international leader and provoke "unanimous hostility" from Latin America.

Dean Rusk, another former secretary of state, testified that the two new treaties, which must be ratified in Congress, provide a better basis for defending the Panama Canal than the original agreement of 1903.

Both appeared before the House International Relations Committee.

'A DEFEAT OF the Panama Canal treaties would weaken the President's international authority at the beginning of his term," Kissinger said.

"The undermining of presidential authority at home would be a demonstration of fundamental weakness and a grave responsibility for Congress to assume."

"No leader and no public opinion anywhere in this hemisphere would be willing to go along with the United States in defense of the consequences of a refusal to modernize the canal relationship with Panama.

"Rejection of the treaties would poison our relationship with all the countries of Latin America on all other issues, and leave us, for the first time in our history, facing the unanimous hostility of all the nations . . . in our own hemisphere."

RUSK, WHO initiated negotiations in 1965 as Lyndon Johnson's secretary of state, said, "If, God forbid, it should ever become necessary for a president and a Congress to take strong measures to keep the canal functioning and safe, they would be in a far stronger position to do so under the treaties of 1977 than under the anachronistic treaty of 1903."

Rusk, a professor of international law at the University of Georgia, said he believes the treaties are more favorable to the United States than those contemplated by Panamanian leaders in 1965.

"They were very interested in putting our presence in Panama on the same basis as our presence in Spain. Short term agreements, very different from what we have today."

rusk said he agreed with Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., who noted "enormous opposition" to the treaties at the grass roots level.

"I agree with you there is very strong feeling against the treaties at the grass roots where we live," Rusk said. "I do think the administration must get the terms of these treaties out to the grass roots."

Radical leader Mark Rudd to surrender in court today

Mark Ruld, one of the leaders of the radical Weatherman group in the last decade, was expected to surrender at the Cook County Criminal Courthouse in Chicago today to face charges of aggravated battery resulting from the 1969 "Days of Rage."

Rudd, 30, ended seven years of hiding Wednesday by surrendering in New York City to face a variety of misdemeanor charges from the student protests during the '60s.

He turned himself in at the office of Manhattan Dist. Atty. Robert Morgenthau shortly after 9:25 a.m., accompanied by his attorney Gerald Lefcourt.

HE WAS ARRAIGNED on misdemeanor charges of bail jumping, obstructing governmental administration, criminal trespass, unlawful assembly and criminal solicitation. He was released by Judge Milton Williams without bail for a hearing on Oct. 13.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Nancy Ryan called his release a "reasonable" risk while Lefcourt assured the judge that Rudd "definitely wants to see the charges through."

A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said Rudd was expected to surrender to Circuit Court Judge John Moran at about 10:30 a.m. today at the court building at 26th Street and California Avenue.

Hundreds of youths fought with police and smashed windows during the October 1969 "Days of Rage" demonstration in the city's downtown sections.

RUDD WAS CHAIRMAN of the Weatherman, an ultra-left-wing group composed mostly of white, middle-class college students, that proposed to overthrow the government by violent means.

Earlier, Rudd was a leader of the Students for a Democratic Society, another group of student radicals that staged numerous demonstrations on campuses across the country during the turbulent 1960s.

It was not known if Rudd had agreed to furnish authorities with information on the whereabouts of other radical leaders who went underground after an explosion in 1970 at a Greenwich Village townhouse that police said the SDS was using as a bomb factory.

22nd flood victim found in K.C.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The death toll in the city's worst flood in 26 years rose to 22 late Wednesday and state officials said damage to homes, businesses and public buildings probably would run into billions of dollars.

The bodies of two unidentified women were found by a rain-swollen creek near the Kansas City Royals baseball stadium. Earlier in the day, cleanup crews found the body of Rev. Harold A. Thomas, 42, of Fariway, Kan., who police said was swept into a creek during the height of the flood Monday night.

More than a dozen persons remained missing.

THERE WAS SOME good news for the flood devastated areas. President Carter signed disaster statements Wednesday afternoon, making flood victims eligible for immediate federal aid in the form of temporary housing and grants.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said the damage to urban and rural areas "is likely to run into the billions of dollars."

Public damage alone in the five-county Missouri disaster area was estimated by Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale at $30 million, and no one could estimate the personal losses.

A spokesman for the American Insurance Assn. said very few businesses damaged by the waters were covered by flood insurance.

"As far as we can determine, there are only 1,358 flood insurance policies in the metropolitan area," said Frank Lewis, a regional manager. "Most of those are for private homes."

The city's last major flood in 1951 caused an estimated $1 billion in damage.

Fiery volcano may threaten Hawaiian isle

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — A flow of molten lava from Kilauea volcano increased Wednesday, posing a potential threat to the Kaimu Black Sands residential area on the beach.

Harry Kim, Civil Defense director for Hawaii County, placed emergency forces on standby alert and prepared to call for an evacuation of the area if the residential area below the spouting mountain is threatened.

Lava was pouring out of the volcano in a 75-foot-high fountain extending in a "fire line" nearly 1,500 yards long.

Kilauea's eruption began Tuesday night. It was the first activity on the volcano in 22 months.

After an air inspection Wednesday, Kim said the eruption was enlarging and earth tremors were occurring continuously.

"If the activity continues, judging from the contour of the land, any flow which might develop would go toward the ocean and the Black Sands beach area," Kim said. However, the lava had not yet overflowed the volcano crater.

Hilo police already have evacuated campers and beachgoers from that area as a precaution.

A FEDERAL BANK regulator said Wednesday that Labelle Lance's overdrafts in excess of $100,000 may have illegally financed the gubernatorial campaign of her husband, Bert.

Lance to present defense today

Even as Lance prepared his defense — expected to take 90 minutes before any questions are asked Thursday — testimony on Capitol Hill raised new issues.

The committee closely questioned the former U.S. Attorney in Atlanta who dismissed a case against Lance's Calhoun, Ga., bank one day after talking to Lance's lawyer last year.

U.S. Atty. John Stokes said he closed the case Dec. 2 — a day before Lance was nominated budget director — because it had been dormant for seven months and there were no grounds for prosecution.

"If we had a good case, we had no choice but to prosecute. But we had no right to destroy a man by fiddling around . . . if you haven't got the goods," Stokes said.

Three attorneys who worked for Stokes when the case was closed disagreed. They testified that a thorough review might have uncovered evidence that would have led to Lance's prosecution.

Another witness, Robert Serino, chief of enforcement in the Comptroller of the Currency's office, said he was concerned that Lance's 1974 campaign was financed in part through overdrafts on his wife's bank account.

Lance himself acknowledged at an Aug. 5 news conference that some of the overdrafts on his wife's personal bank account were used in the campaign.

Under federal law, it is illegal for a national bank to contribute to political campaigns. If there were a violation of that law in the Lance case, it would have to be proved that the Lance family's Calhoun First National Bank in Georgia intentionally advanced money to the campaign through Mrs. Lance's overdrawn accounts.

"CERTAIN, investigation is needed in that area," Serino said.

After his testimony, Serino told reporters the comptroller's office is analyzing all the Lance family overdrafts at the Calhoun bank in light of the 1974 campaign.

He said the review is being made at tht request of the Governmental Affairs Committee, and that he is in daily contact with the Justice Dept.

Also testifying before the Governmental Affairs Committee Wednesday was John Sherry, top lawyer in the Comptroller of the Currency's Atlanta office. Sherry said he recommended criminal prosecution for problems at Lance's Calhoun bank in 1975 so the family would discontinue its long-standing practice of overdrawing accounts.

Sherry said he did not think the case would be prosecuted because thre was no intent to defraud — but he wanted to assure the overdrafts stopped.

Cronin car 'abuse' rapped should not be there," he said. Truitt said the new travel policy also will cover activities of board members, some of whom he said expect the use of state cars regularly.

"BEING A MEMBER of the state board of education is not any exalted position," Truitt said.

"I think if he thought twice about using the car he would not have done it," said Jack Witkowski, the state board of education chairman.

Witkowski promised the board would develop travel guidelines "before the snow flies," adding Cronin's trip probably would not be allowed under those provisions.

The Illinois Office of Education currently has some general travel policies. The over-all state policy bars the use of government vehicles for personal reasons.

While both Witkowski and Truitt indicated Cronin's activity will not move them to call for a public reprimand, several other board members said they will question the situation.

"IF THIS IS against state regulations, then I think he should be held accountable," said Hugh Brown of Evanston.

"I have no compunction about bringing this up to the board," he said.

Board member Mercedia Goodwin, who works for Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic's office of manpower, said she was unclear of state policy on the use of autos.

"We have tried to leave the administrative things to Cronin, but if we have been remiss, if it is getting to this point, maybe we'll have to take a look."

Cronin told reporters he questioned the need to raise questions about the use of the car.

"If I were in private industry, I would have a Lear jet," said Cronin, who is one of the highest paid officials in the state with an annual salary of nearly $53,000.

A killer at 10, jail escapee at 20—her future in doubt

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England (UPI) — Mary Bell, who at age 10 strangled two playmates in one of Britain's most sensational murder cases, was back in jail Wednesday after a daring prison escape and three days of freedom.

Irate Conservative Members of Parliament barraged the government with questions Wednesday, demanding Miss Bell, now 20, be put behind bars for life. Labor MPs defended her detention in an "open" prison and said she should someday be allowed to "lead a normal life."

The latest episode in the case, which shocked Britons in the celebrated "bad seed" trial in 1968, touched off a nationwide debate on where Miss Bell should be housed to serve her prison sentence.

MISS BELL and another woman prisoner, Annette Priest, 21, escaped Sunday night from Moore Court open prison where Miss Bell was taking a secretarial course.

Police found Miss Bell, her dark hair dyed blonde and wearing new clothes, sitting in a parked car with two men in a suburb 40 miles away Tuesday night. The two men later were charged with harboring a fugitive. Her friend remained at large.

Little Mary Bell was 10 years old when she strangled two little boys from her working class neighborhood in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England — Martin Brown, 4, and Brian Howe, 3. She turned 11 in pretrial custody.

Another girl, 13, was arrested and tried with her but the jury decided she was completely dominated by her 10-year-old friend and cleared her.

The prosecution at her trial said Mary acted "solely for the pleasure and excitement of murder." Charged with murder, she was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to indefinite detention.

MARY, THE LITTLE girl with the attractive, heart-shaped face and quick intelligence, was one of the youngest persons ever to stand trial for murder in an adult court. In Britain the age of criminal responsibility begins at 10.

She was first sent to a reform school, then, at 17, to the "secure" adult prison at Styll. In June she was transferred from Styll to Moor Court "open" prison to take a secretarial course, in preparation for her release on parole.

When she escaped Sunday, the Home Office said she was "not the slightest bit dangerous."

But newspapers and Members of Parliament voiced doubt and debate raged both in the House of Commons and the press over what should be done with her.

The Home Office said Wednesday "a number of different people will be involved in the decision on where to send her now. They are all the same people who felt she should go to an open prison in the first place."

Police get tough on school protests

Police started a get-tough policy Wednesday against demonstrators at schools involved in Chicago's voluntary school busing program. A circuit court judge ordered the Chicago Board of Education to stop the transfer of 270 teachers in a faculty desegregation plan designed to meet federal desegregation guidelines. Under the new police policy, demonstrators can only protest across the street from the schools. About 110 protestors demonstrated peacefully Wednesday at four schools involved in the voluntary busing program on the Southwest Side.

The new policy began after an estimated 300 Bogan High School students were suspended for walking out of school to protest the busing program Tuesday. Thirty-three protesters were arrested for refusing to disperse, police said. Judge Francis I. Delaney issued a preliminary injunction against the faculty transfer plan. He ordered the school board to return teachers to their original assignments. Delaney said there had not been enough testimony to show how the transfers affected the racial composition of teachers in both sending and receiving schools.

Ingram OKd bribes: ex-official

A former official of the Ingram Corp. barge company testified Wednesday Frederic B. Ingram approved the payment of bribes in return for the rights to a lucrative Metropolitan Sanitary District sludge-hauling contract. William J. Benton, Wetumpka, Ala., formerly senior vice president of the Ingram Corp., New Orleans, said he gave former Illinois Rep. Robert F. McPartlin, D-Chicago, $75,000 in cash on April 3, 1971. McPartlin then introduced him to Riverside businessman Franklin H. Weber, 59, who had "influence" in Cook County and the state, Benton said.

Weber allegedly told Benton that "in order for contractors to work in this area, it was necessary that political contributions be agreed to," Benton testified. Weber suggested $250,000 as a suitable contribution, Benton said, and then he added that the Democratic party in Chicago and the state was "under the control of Mayor (Richard J.) Daley." Benton said he telephoned Frederic Ingram, an owner of the company, about the demand for a political contribution. Ingram agreed to pay the contribution as long as that amount could be added to the money Ingram would receive under the contract, Benton said.

Hospital insurance fraud inquiry

A Cook County grand jury investigating Lakeshore Hospital for possible violations of the mental health code also is looking into allegations of insurance fraud at the hospital, it was said Wednesday. The full scope of the investigation was disclosed by a grand jury subpoena issued for Lakeshore Hospital billing records of the last 18 months. Lakeshore is a privately owned psychiatric hospital. The subpoena, mentioning insurance fraud and mental health violations, was issued after Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo rejected efforts by hospital lawyers to have it quashed.

The grand jury is looking into charges that Lakeshore had mistreated patients and misused drugs and electroshock therapy. The subpoena mentioned allegations that insured patients who sought to leave after voluntarily admitting themselves to the hospital would be administered drugs and other treatments that render them unfit to leave. The hospital would then continue to collect insurance payments for such patients, it was alleged.

Chlorine gas leaked from a 2,000-pound storage tank at a South Side filtration plant early Wednesday, slightly injuring nine firefighters and two other persons. All of the injured were treated at South Shore Hospital for gas inhalation and released. John Starr, deputy commissioner of water and sewers, said a valve fitting on one of two 2,000-pound holding tanks became defective and probably caused the leak.

Funds allotted for Daley statue

Gov. James R. Thompson has signed legislation appropriating $40,000 for a statue of the late Chicago mayor Richard J. Daley and creating a legislative committee to oversee the construction. The bills were sponsored by Rep. John Vitek, D-Chicago, and House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville. The committee will recommend possible sites and inscriptions for the statue.

Court to rule on House appointee

The Illinois Supreme Court said Wednesday a circuit court ruling removing Rep. Peg Breslin, D-Ottawa, from the Illinois House has no effect until the high court can decide the merits of the case. The supreme court's action allows Mrs. Breslin to draw her legislative salary and expenses, although she risks having to repay them if the court ultimately decides against her. Supreme court clerk Clell Woods said a ruling will not come before November.

The House voted June 30 to remove her on grounds she did not meet residency requirements, but hours later she was reappointed to fill her own vacancy by LaSalle County Democratic Chairman Joseph Caputo.

Computerized registration makes Harper signup easy

Long lines of weary students frustrated by the time-consuming process of registering for classes are a thing of the past at Harper College in Palatine.

Harper's year-old computerized registration process allows new students to obtain their necessary courses in an average of 2½ minutes. Continuing students can register by phone.

Word of the revolutionary process spread quickly, and Harper was so inundated by requests for information this year that it formed a marketing agreement with International Business Machines Corp. to make the Harper-designed system widely available, college spokeswoman Elaine Stoermer said.

WEDNESDAY representatives of 30 colleges and universities from eight states wsre flown in by IBM for a demonstration of the system, Stoermer said.

The system was designed by Harper staff members, headed by Bob Chantry, director of computer services, to figure out its own registration problems. It was designed to use equipment already owned by Harper, so there was little additional cost to operate the system, Ms. Stoermer said.

"I can't come up with a valid estimate off the top of my head," said Chantry." I can say that the system has made no increase in the budget.

"It was developed by in-house staff using five man-years of effort from people on regular payroll. The system from a practical viewpoint costs us nothing," he said.

The computerized system can tell a student exactly how many spaces are left in a particular class, resolve time conflicts on the spot and calculate fees instantly, Ms. Stoermer said.

In 2½ minutes the computer figures out a course schedule of classes of different lengths, having varying credit hours, and given in many different locations, she said. It also checks to see that the student has met prerequisites for each course and allows students to register for more than one semester.

Village board wrapup

Tax district closed session

The Arlington Heights Village Board agreed to meet in executive session next Monday to consider a recommendation from the board of local improvements to drop plans for a special tax district to finance streetlights along Northwest Highway.

The closed meeting is legal because nine property owners along the section of Northwest Highway between Highland Avenue and Wilke Road have filed suit against the special assessment plan.

BOLI representatives objected to compromises made by the village board after the special assessment proceedings were filed in Cook County Circuit Court. First the village board reduced the assessments for residential property owners to 80 cents per foot of property fronting on Northwest Highway. When commercial property owners being assessed at $19 .87 per foot of frontage learned of the reductions for homeowners, they filed suit against the village.

The village board then offered a 20 per cent reduction in the businessmen's bills for the $180,000 streetlighting project but it was rejected as insufficient.

Ordinarily, adjustments to assessments are made only by the courts once a special assessment is approved by the village board and filed for approval in circuit court, said David Patterson, BOLI president.

Bank traffic plan revision

Officials of the Suburban Bank of Rolling Meadows will have the opportunity to present revised traffic flow plans to the Arlington Heights Village Board before it acts on the bank's request to build a branch facility at the southwest corner of Euclid and Kennicott avenues.

The Arlington Heights plan commission last month rejected the bank's plans by unanimous vote because of the traffic congestion around the proposed site.

Residents of the area also have opposed the bank's plans, saying traffic in the area already is excessive because of the Arlington Heights Post Office and Arlington Park Race Track.

DALE BELCHER, snakekeeper at the St. Louis Zoo, has his arms full with a 12-foot-long 75-pound Burmese Python on moving day at the zoo's reptile house Wednesday. Home of one of the largest reptile collections in the nation, the 500 inhabitants are being moved to new accommodations while the 50-year-old building undergoes a renovation over winter.

Tough kidporn law to Senate floor

The Senate Judiciary Committee unanimously approved legislation Wednesday setting harsh fines and prison terms for persons who produce, sell or distribute pornography featuring children. The legislation also would outlaw transportation of young boys across state lines for prostitution. The bill, sent to the Senate floor, makes the growing child pronography business a new federal crime under obscenity statutes. In addition, it broadens the existing law prohibiting interstate transportation of minor females for immoral purposes to include children of both sexes under the age of 18. The bill subjects those who originate or distribute so-called "kid porn" to a $10,000 fine, 10 years in prison or both for the first offense. Second offenders could be fined $15,000, imprisoned for 15 years or both.

Condemned man's plea refused

A U.S. district judge refused to hear an emergency plea from lawyers for condemned murderer John Spinkellink Wednesday, but agreed to transfer the case to Tallahassee — once all state remedies are exhausted. U.S. District Judge Howell Melton was asked for an emergency order staying Spinkellink's scheduled execution Monday in the electric chair at Florida State Prison. Melton said the judges agreed the federal courts "could not grant relief until the state remedies had been exhausted."

Plan would preserve Alaska land

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has proposed preserving almost one-third of Alaska as national park land, but permitting development of sites near parks to tap the state's energy and mineral riches, it was learned Wednesday. Andrus' plan faces controversy from both environmentalists and the energy industry. The proposed expansion of Alaska's federal park land by 57 per cent has angered many who say less land should be barred from development. But his proposals also may draw fire from environmentalists who fear allowing mining in some areas may begin to encroach on park boundaries.

Korea probe panel meets secretly

The House committee probing South Korean influence-buying met privately Wednesday on "extremely sensitive" matters, including the possibility of sending investigator Leon Jaworski to question Tongsun Park in Seoul, sources said. It also was learned that Park's American attorney plans to fly to Seoul Friday to meet with him. Park, a millionaire rice trader, was indicted last week by a federal grand jury on charges of trying to influence congressmen on Korean issues with payoffs, gifts and favors. The House Ethics Committee spent two hours secretly with Jaworski, its special counsel. He said later he does not know whether he would accept if the South Korean government invites him to interrogate Park.

Mexican cities hit by 21 bomb blasts

Terrorists set off 21 bomb explosions at government agencies, police stations, banks and stores in three Mexican cities early Wednesday, injuring two policemen and touching off a $20 million fire, police said. "We did this because it is the people's will, to obtain funds to boost the political-military training of the revolutionary members," leaflets dropped by the extreme-leftist People's Union at bombing sites in Oaxaca proclaimed. But police reported no looting. Nine blasts ripped up buildings in Guadalajara, Mexico's second biggest city with nearly 2 million inhabitants and destroyed $20 million in goods. Seven bombs exploded in Oaxaca, about 250 miles southeast of the capital, and five in Mexico City. Police said all the bombings were the work of radical leftist groups. The People's Red Brigade claimed responsibility for at least two of the explosions in Mexico City. "All of the blasts . . . caused considerable damage, but no deaths were reported," a police spokesman said.

Road work rejected on condition

Members of the Northwest Municipal Conference may have doomed a major portion of an estimated $22.8 million road improvement program for the area.

Conference members Wednesday night voted not to accept the improvements if the state required them to accept maintenance and energy costs for traffic signals as part of the program.

Currently, the Illinois Dept. of Transportation requires local governments to assume these costs for all new traffic signals.

PALATINE Village Pres. Robert Guss said the conference should not approve the improvements if they are tied to "a golden club."

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis said his village is not interested in a proposed traffic signal improvement at Oakton Street and Busse if strings are attached.

"We share the view we should not be expected to assume the electric bills or maintenance bills on traffic signals on state highways," he said.

Andrew Plummer of the Chicago Area Transportation Study said it is likely that the action by the conference might "simply doom the ones that were proposed for the Northwest corridor."

Plummer said he is uncertain what action his organization will take, but he said it is likely it may eliminate all traffic signal improvements in the Northwest suburbs.

SEVERAL INTERSECTION improvements, including one at Wolf and Rand roads and at Lee Street and Toughy Avenue, both in Des Plaines, might be cut from the program as a result of the conference's action. Other intersection improvements jeopardized by the action include:

- A $400,000 improvement at the intersection of Dempster Street and Rand Road, Des Plaines.
- A $1.3 million intersection intersection improvement at Golf and River roads, Des Plaines.
- Traffic signal improvements including Rand and Baldwin roads, Palatine Township; Northwest Highway at Colfax Street and Baldwin Road, Palatine; Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee roads, Wheeling; Milwaukee Avenue and Palatine roads, Wheeling Township; Golf and Mount Prospect roads, Des Plaines; Higgins and Busse roads at Oakton Street, Elk Grove Village; and Palatine Road and Smith Street, and Brockway Street, Palatine.

Omni-House family counseling grant under study

Grants to fund crime prevention bureaus in Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg, a Palatine Township youth commission and Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau family counseling are being considered by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Applications for the grants have been recommended for approval by the Chicago—Cook County Criminal Justice Commission, executive Director Daniel O'Connell said. A decision by the ILEC will be made within 90 days.

The Buffalo Grove Police Dept. has requested $49,662 to set up a crime prevention bureau. The village will supply $16,560, O'Connell said.

THE ONE-YEAR funding will pay for the salaries of two crime prevention officers, a typist and 25 per cent of the cost of hiring a bureau supervisor.

According to Buffalo Grove's application, the money would be used to "identify high risk situations and areas and create awareness of citizen involvement in the prevention of crime."

Schaumburg's police department has asked for $68,036 to pay the salaries of two officers and buy a station wagon and materials for the program.

Chief Martin Conroy described the program as an educational one in which the officers would meet with homeowners, businessmen and civic groups to explain ways they can help prevent burglaries and thefts.

The two villages were among six suburbs to apply for crime prevention bureau money, O'Connell said.

OMNI-HOUSE: Youth Srvices Bureau, has requested $14,250 for continuation of a family counseling program, an alternative to the juvenile justice system.

The project received $15,000 for this year to pay the salary of a family counseling director.

Palatine Township's youth commission has asked for renewed funding of the SID: Systems Intervention Diversion project.

The program provides counseling for repeat juvenile offenders referred by local police and courts and aims at reducing further police contact, Mitch Bruski, its director, said.

The application requests $43,479. Last year $45,767 was received for the project.

Village to submit new bid for Lake Arlington funds

Arlington Heights will submit a new application seeking federal funds for the $10.4 million Lake Arlington flood-control project.

Village officials are hopeful that federal officials will approve the request because of the increase in runoff into the creek that will be caused by the widening of N. Arlington Heights Road and improvements at the intersections of Arlington Heights, Rand and Palatine roads.

The 80-acre lake is planned for a 113-acre site north of Palatine Road and east of Windsor Drive.

INITIAL ATTEMPTS to get federal funding for the project were rejected in April 1976 when it was left out of the Des Plaines River Watershed Plan, a blueprint for state and federally funded flood-control work in the Northwest suburbs.

Lake Arlington was mentioned in the watershed plan but was not guaranteed federal funding.

The report written by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and Soil Conservation Service recommends digging a ditch along a southern branck of McDonald Creek to divert overflow. Village engineers insist the ditch will not resolve flooding problems upstream where most of the village's growth is occurring.

The village's new grant request will emphasize that the additional storm sewers included in the $8 million North Arlington Heights Road project are receiving 70 per cent funding from the federal government, which tends to create federal responsibility for funding Lake Arlington, Village Trustee Frank Palamatier said.

Village Engineer Allen J. Sander said the North Arlington Heights Road improvements were not an effective argument in the village's first request for Lake Arlington funds because the road improvments were only a proposal at that time.

MOUNT PROSPECT and Prospect Heights will be asked again to support Arlington Heights' request for Lake Arlington funding because both communities are located along McDonald Creek and could benefit from the project.

The recreational benefits of the 80-acre lake also will be stressed in the village's application.

Arlington Heights has purchased 35 of the 113 acres needed for the project. Condemnation proceedings for the remaining two parcels have been instituted by the village.

Arlington Heights have received a $499,000 grant from the state to assist in the land acquisition costs, which are estimated at about $1.5 million.

THE FALL TV BLITZ

NBC's 'events' to bolster its season

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Fourth of five parts

With a firm belief the television industry no longer depends on successful series, NBC has decided to turn most of its attention and energy this season to mini-series, specials and adaptations of novels.

One reason for the change is the network has the weakest lineup of regular shows ready for the new television season and, by concentrating on "event" programming, NBC still might stand a chance in the fierce ratings race.

What's more, NBC has had to do major surgery on many of its returning series, having lost some of its major stars to other networks or other projects.

Two cases in point are "Chico and the Man" and "Sanford and Son" which has been renamed "Sanford Arms."

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD Gabriel Melgar plays the part of Raoul this season opposite Jack Albertson in "Chico and the Man" as a replacement for Freddie Prinze who committed suicide earlier this year. The Mexican youngster, who becomes Albertson's pal and roommate, charms the best out of his guardian and brings a new liveliness and pace to the show.

Teddy Wilson, however, has been left to hold down the fort in the revised "Sanford Arms" series as owner of Fred Sanford's house, junkyard and rooming house. He will be assisted by the returning La Wanda Page, as Esther.

In addition to those changes, NBC has picked up the "Bionic Woman" ABC discarded, adding to it (what else?) the bionic dog.

All of these changes are better known in the business as risk programming, and is something you resort to when there's nothing better in the till.

The new shows NBC has prepared for the new season for the most part are like sacrifical lambs. They are largely uncreative and slow.

- "The Man From Atlantis" (Thursdays, 8-9 p.m.) is expected to do fairly well against CBS' "Hawaii Five-O," but it may take a beating against the traditional ABC frontrunner "Barney Miller." Patrick Duffy stars as the last survivor of a lost, undersea city of Atlantis who takes on perilous missions for the federal government. He comes complete with webbed fingers and feet and the ability to remain for long periods of time under water. The underwater photography of the show isn't bad and neither is co-star Belinda J. Montgomery, but the show is often elementary in its approach.
- "Big Hawaii" (Wednesdays, 9-10 p.m.) is like a "Bonanza" or "Big Valley" as far west as you can go these days while remaining in the United States. John Dehner and Cliff Potts, familiar television actors, star as a father and son who are major links in a close-knit family that raises cattle, pineapple and sugar cane on a huge ranch. The show knows only "careful" action and little substance, but the colorful scenes filmed on location make it worth watching.
- "The Oregon Trail" (Wednesday, 8-9 p.m.) is just another one of those life-on-the-wagon-trail series of the old West starring Rod Taylor. Supposedly, those involved with the show are attempting to make it as authentic a rendition of the 1860s frontier as has been presented on television. But, what viewers will see is an unrealistic forging of the wildnerness without violence and shallow dialogue to boot.
- "Rosetti and Ryan" (Thursdays, 9-10 p.m.) undoubtedly is NBC's best offering in the regular series department this season. The talented Tony Roberts co-stars with Squire Fridell in a "Starsky and Hutch"-like camaderie on film bound to attract viewers. It is a drama with a lot of thought rather than action where the heroes are lawyers, not cops. The show is done in good taste and is one of the best this season.
- "CHiPs" (Thursdays, 7-8 p.m.) is the only new action-cop show of the new season, but doesn't really qualify for the category. It comes off as two overgrown kids, masquerading as two California Highway Patrol officers, who do stunts and skids off their motorcycles. They are into infantile dialogue and story plots rather than grizzly crime and gun use. The show won't last long running opposite "The Waltons" and "Welcome Back, Kotter."

NBC's strength this season definitely lies in its "event programming," much of which sounds exciting and may prove some of the most provocative television this year.

Some of the mini-series NBC has lined up include "Aspen," based on the novel of the same name by Burt Hurschfeld; "Wheels," based on the auto business industry novel by Arthur Hailey; "79 Park Avenue," a Harold Robbins' novel that looks to be as sleazy on film as on paper; "The Holocaust," about the genocide of Jews by the Nazis in World War II; Sara Davidson's book "Loose Change," about four women growing up in the turbulent 1960s; a controversial version of the civil rights career of Martin Luther King Jr. and a version of the "Awakening Land" to be filmed in Downstate Illinois.

Motion pictures NBC has scheduled include both of "The Godfather" films; the true story of Caryl Chessman and the fight to save himself from execution; Frank Sinatra in the detective thriller, "Contract on Cherry Street;" the story of the Karen Ann Quinlan case; "Murder in Peyton Place;" "A Love Affair: The Eleanor and Lou Gehrig Story;" "Ziegfeld;" and the story of the Buffalo Creek Dam disaster.

Friday: The new season on Channel 11 and Chicago's independent stations.

THE FALL TV BLITZ

NBC's 'events' to bolster its season

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Fourth of five parts

With a firm belief the television industry no longer depends on successful series, NBC has decided to turn most of its attention and energy this season to mini-series, specials and adaptations of novels.

One reason for the change is the network has the weakest lineup of regular shows ready for the new television season and, by concentrating on "event" programming, NBC still might stand a chance in the fierce ratings race.

What's more, NBC has had to do major surgery on many of its returning series, having lost some of its major stars to other networks or other projects.

Two cases in point are "Chico and the Man" and "Sanford and Son" which has been renamed "Sanford Arms."

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD Gabriel Melgar plays the part of Raoul this season opposite Jack Albertson in "Chico and the Man" as a replacement for Freddie Prinze who committed suicide earlier this year. The Mexican youngster, who becomes Albertson's pal and roommate, charms the best out of his guardian and brings a new liveliness and pace to the show.

Teddy Wilson, however, has been left to hold down the fort in the revised "Sanford Arms" series as owner of Fred Sanford's house, junkyard and rooming house. He will be assisted by the returning La Wanda Page, as Esther.

In addition to those changes, NBC has picked up the "Bionic Woman" ABC discarded, adding to it (what else?) the bionic dog.

All of these changes are better known in the business as risk programming, and is something you resort to when there's nothing better in the till.

The new shows NBC has prepared for the new season for the most part are like sacrifical lambs. They are largely uncreative and slow.

- ''The Man From Atlantis'' (Thursdays, 8-9 p.m.) is expected to do fairly well against CBS' "Hawaii Five-O," but it may take a beating against the traditional ABC frontrunner "Barney Miller." Patrick Duffy stars as the last survivor of a lost, undersea city of Atlantis who takes on perilous missions for the federal government. He comes complete with webbed fingers and feet and the ability to remain for long periods of time under water. The underwater photography of the show isn't bad and neither is co-star Belinda J. Montgomery, but the show is often elementary in its approach.

- "Big Hawaii" (Wednesdays, 9-10 p.m.) is like a "Bonanza" or "Big Valley" as far west as you can go these days while remaining in the United States. John Dehner and Cliff Potts, familiar television actors, star as a father and son who are major links in a close-knit family that raises cattle, pineapple and sugar cane on a huge ranch. The show knows only "careful" action and little substance, but the colorful scenes filmed on location make it worth watching.

- "The Oregon Trail" (Wednesday, 8-9 p.m.) is just another one of those life-on-the-wagon-trail series of the old West starring Rod Taylor. Supposedly, those involved with the show are attempting to make it as authentic a rendition of the 1860s frontier as has been presented on television. But, what viewers will see is an unrealistic forging of the wildneress without violence and shallow dialogue to boot.

- "Rosetti and Ryan" (Thursdays, 9-10 p.m.) undoubtedly is NBC's best offering in the regular series department this season. The talented Tony Roberts co-stars with Squire Fridell in a "Starsky and Hutch"-like camaderie on film bound to attract viewers. It is a drama with a lot of thought rather than action where the heroes are lawyers, not cops. The show is done in good taste and is one of the best this season.

- "CHiPs" (Thursdays, 7-8 p.m.) is the only new action-cop show of the new season, but doesn't really qualify for the category. It comes off as two overgrown kids, masquerading as two California Highway Patrol officers, who do stunts and skids off their motorcycles. They are into infantile dialogue and story plots rather than grizzly crime and gun use. The show won't last long running opposite "The Waltons" and "Welcome Back, Kotter."

NBC's strength this season definitely lies in its "event programming," much of which sounds exciting and may prove some of the most provocative television this year.

Some of the mini-series NBC has lined up include "Aspen," based on the novel of the same name by Burt Hurschfeld; "Wheels," based on the auto business industry novel by Arthur Hailey; "79 Park Avenue," a Harold Robbins' novel that looks to be as sleazy on film as on paper; "The Holocaust," about the genocide of Jews by the Nazis in World War II; Sara Davidson's book "Loose Change," about four women growing up in the turbulent 1960s; a controversial version of the civil rights career of Martin Luther King Jr. and a version of the "Awakening Land" to be filmed in Downstate Illinois.

The Liability Game

SPORTS ON TRIAL

Manufacturers know there is a problem. Legislators know it. So do the insurance companies and the lawyers.

They all agree the product liability dilemma must be solved. But the agreement seems to end there.

For the sporting goods industry, product liability — the concept holding a manufacturer responsible for the safety of his goods — has become a horror story whose climax is threatening death for some businessmen.

SOMETHING MUST be done, they say, or the future of some sports could be jeopardized. Legislative action is the vital ingredient to dealing with the product liability crisis, they say. But to date the obstacles to that remedy have been formidable.

More than 80 pieces of legislation dealing with product liability are pending in every state in the nation; only two states, Utah and Colorado, have passed reform laws. In Illinios, bills are pending in the House and committees.

At the federal level, a dozen bills that would affect product liability laws are pending but their passage likely faces an uphill climb.

The reason, according to manufacturers and legislators, is the opposition of trial attorneys to most of the bills.

"I SUPPOSE IF we had to name an enemy, it would be the trial attorney," says Karen Bastic, director of the Multi-Association Action Committee in Des Plaines, a group heading the sporting goods industry's efforts for product liability reform.

The manufacturers say attorneys hold a vested interest in product liability lawsuits, in which catastrophic injuries can bring multi-million dollar judgments — and contingency fees of up to one-half the award for an attorney.

Even legislators admit that the chief opponents of product liability legislation are attorneys.

"I have to tell you that the trial lawyers have been effective in stopping it (passage of pending legislation,)" says State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northbrook, chief sponsor of the product liability reform bill pending in the Senate and himself an attorney.

PROPONENTS OF product liability reform say the situation facing manufacturers is similar to the medical malpractice crisis of two years ago. They point to lawyers' opposition to legislation in medical malpractice as characteristic of the legal community's resistance to tort law reform.

"The doctors' problems pointed out to the legal community that there were some gold mines out there," alleges James F. Rogers, senior vice president with Riddell, Inc. in Des Plaines, among the leading football-helmet manufacturers in the nation.

Like "wealthy" doctors, Rogers says lawyers now see business as a lucrative lawsuit target through product liability.

"The legal community did not establish the problem," he says, "but the legal community has jumped on the problem under the guise of eliminating unsafe products."

WHILE LEGAL organizations such as the American Bar Assn. have not ignored the product liability crisis, the legal community's opposition to reform in part foucuses on calls to revise the contingency fee system.

Lawyers say the system enables the middle class to use the courts because rather than paying costly flat hourly fees, plaintiffs pay only if a suit is successful, with a portion of the judgment going to the attorney.

But the U.S. Interagency's Task Force study of product liability, conducted last year and released in April, suggests a modification of the system, providing for decreasing percentages of an award as the amount of a judgment escalates.

The fee question is only one aspect of reform both the task force study and manufacturers say is needed. Critical, too, they say are provisions for:

- A statute of limitations on the time in which a manufacturer can be held liable for a product.
- The misuse of a product, freeing a manufacturer of liability if a product causes injury through misuse or alteration.
- Judging an old product by manufacturing standards existing at the time of its production rather than by modern standards.
- Limiting the amount of awards or providing for annuity payments to injury victims in successful lawsuits.

Powell attack of Percy called 'stupid' by GOP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angry Republicans Wednesday accused White House Press Sec. Jody Powell of being "sneaky" and "stupid" and playing Watergate-style "dirty tricks" in floating a damaging rumor about U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R.-Ill.

Even Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, whose reaction was relatively mild and charitable, said he was "shocked" by Powell's "dumb" effort to discredit Percy. Baker added:

"It says something about the siege mentality down at the White House. It makes me worry about their frame of mind down there just like it did during the Nixon period."

PERCY HIMSELF said all was forgiven, so far as he is concerned, after Powell apologized for "tipping" a Chicago newspaper to an unconfirmed rumor that the Illinois Republican had accepted free plane rides and other favors from a corporation and a bank.

Percy is the ranking Republican on the Senate investigating the alleged financial improprieties of White House budget director Bert Lance. Powell has been one of Lance's chief defenders and is reportedly peeved over Percy's aggressive conduct of the probe.

"As far as I'm concerned, the incident is over," Percy said after telling reporters Powell had expressed his "deep regret" over the affair.

But other Republicans were not prepared to be so generous — nor to pass up an opportunity to draw parallels with the political "dirty tricks" and "enemies lists" of the Nixon White House era.

HOUSE REPUBLICAN whip Robert Michel accused Powell of "sneaky and distasteful conduct" and said, "The ivory-pure Carter White House has been caught in dirty tricks."

Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., a colleague of Percy's on the committee investigating Lance, also used the "dirty tricks" anology, as did Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the 1976 GOP vice presidential candidate.

MEG funds vetoed; attention vowed

From our Springfieled bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James R. Thompson pledged Wednesday that suburban narcotics problems will not be ignored despite his veto of $350,000 for the defunct Cook County Metropolitan Enforcement Group.

Although Thompson approved more than $700,000 in state funds for six other MEG units in Downstate Illinois, he said cooperative efforts among federal, state, county and local police would be able to combat illicit drug sales in the suburbs.

The governor was prepared to halt funding for all of the MEG programs, but he said an assessment by Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement Director Tyrone Fahner convinced him the Downstate programs were needed and that other law enforcement agencies could work together to replace the MEG operation in metropolitan Chicago.

THE COOK COUNTY MEG unit ceased operation on July 1 when a federal grant was exhausted and it seemed clear Thompson was against the program. Other Downstate MEG units managed to stay in operation after the federal funds ran out, while lobbying for a new state appropriation was prepared.

The new state law, which accompanies the funding, puts Fahner in control to monitor the operations in the often controversial group that had been accused of misconduct several times since formed in 1975.

Fahner said if he finds any misconduct, he will "yank the funds and put the unit out of business."

He said he has conferred with Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod and other law enforcement officials and there seemed to be a "mutual agreement" that a cooperative program can be developed.

A group of investigators from the law enforcement department were transferred to a suburban office recently to work with local police departments on narcotics and other cases.

State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, who strongly supported continuation of the program, questioned Thompson's decision to eliminate the Cook County unit.

"I HOPE THE governor is right. It seems like we have a concentration of narcotics problems up in this area and I think MEG was helping," Graham said.

Thomson may get competency hearing

Assistant State's Atty. Terry Sullivan Wednesday said he may see a pretrial competency hearing to determine if Brian K. Thomson is mentally fit to stand trial for the murder of a 22-year-old Prospect Heights man.

Sullivan made the announcement after Wednesday's pretrial hearing for Thomson accused of murdering Mark VanDellen in July.

He said the request will depend on what state's attorneys and Thomson's attorney learn about his background.

"The motion would be filed only after a thorough examination of Thomson's past," Sullivan said. "And the motion would probably be made by agreement of both the prosecuting attorneys and the defense."

HE SAID THE request would be filed at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Sullivan said a competency hearing is the first step in a series of psychiatric examinations to determine if Thomson is mentally fit to stand trial.

Thomson of Ypsilanti, Mich., is being held on $200,000 bond at the Cook County Jail in Chicago where he was taken Aug. 13 following his extradition from Michigan. Judge Marvin Peters set bond Aug. 30.

Thomson pleaded not guilty during his arraignment in July to charges of stabbing VanDellen to death July 7 in an apartment hallway at 16 E. Willow Rd., Prospect Heights.

Police believe the incident resulted from a love triangle involving Thomson's former girlfriend, Angela Morgan, 21, with whom VanDellen was living.

Thomson, a junkyard owner in Michigan, had dated Miss Morgan for seven years until eight months ago when they broke up, police said.

58 Merit semifinalists from area

Fifty-eight Northwest suburban high school seniors have been named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

About 15,000 students are semifinalists throughout the nation. These students will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for about 3,900 Merit scholarships to be awarded in 1978.

More than 1 million students entered the National Merit competition by taking the 1976 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. Semifinalists are the highest scoring students in each state. They represent the top half of 1 per cent of the nation's students.

SEMIFINALISTS WHO advance to finalist status will compete for at least 1,000 National Merit Scholarships. Each finalist in a particular state will compete with all other finalists in that state for one of these scholarships, which are allocated on a state representational basis.

Finalists also may be considered for about 2,900 four-year Merit Scholarships supported by grants from corporations, foundations, unions and professional associations and by U.S. colleges and universities.

This is the 23rd Merit competition. Since 1956 more than 49,850 students have won National Merit Scholarships valued at more than $136 million.

SEMIFINALISTS from this area are:

- Arlington High School, Arlington Heights: Richard N. Ericson, Martha A. Head, Andrew S. Krock, Teresa N. Mika, Susan E. Revers, Anthony D. Skiba, Evan P. Young.
- Forest View High School, Arlington Heights: Sara E. Bahnmaier, Diana M. Kent, Barbara L. Tylka.
- Hersey High School, Arlington Heights: Susan T. Bart and Lynda A. Brown.
- Buffalo Grove High School, Buffalo Grove: Jeffrey S. Fothergill, David J. Frederick, James D. Maynen, Jeffrey A. Wilson, Frederick H. Wolter and Marjorie Wachtel.
- Maine North High School, Des Plaines: Nancy A. Cleveland, Nan L. Cook, Donna C. Nicholson.
- Maine West High School, Des Plaines: Sharon L. Ball, Richard M. Dsida, Don L. Glass, James S. Herzau, Kathleen M. Sandford, Eileen M. Wall.
- Elgin High School, Elgin: Joe A. Altobelli.
- Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Village: Paul G. Gianaris, Roger A. Rathunde, Christopher F. West.
- Hoffman Estates High School, Hoffman Estates: Christopher M. Troyka.
- Conant High School, Hoffman Estates: John J. Engberg; Kimberly A. Hardt, Martha J. Hazen.
- Prospect High School, Mount Prospect: David M. Chelberg, Linda M. Geniusz, Arif S. Qureshi, Michael A. Schwager, Karen E. Scott.
- Palatine High School, Palatine: Steven L. Ashburn, Marc W. Johnson, Janice M. Mayer, Mary A. Munson.
- Fremd High School, Palatine: Marc L. Alberts, Robert C. Daugherty, Mary E. Gross, Leslie A. Simmer, Margaret E. Wolber.
- Rolling Meadows High School, Rolling Meadows: David J. Burge, John A. Griecci, Martin E. Huber, Cathleen M. Mahoney, James S. Storey, Edward S. Vana.
- Schaumburg High School, Schaumburg: Lori A. Couture, Faith A. Peterson.
- Wheeling High School, Wheeling: Suzanne L. Gilligan.

Of the 58 semifinalists, the mot popular career choice is physician, followed by lawyer, scientist and engineer. Other career preferences range from musician to veterinarian to minister.

58 Merit semifinalists from area

Fifty-eight Northwest suburban high school seniors have been named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

About 15,000 students are semifinalists throughout the nation. These students will have an opportunity to continue in the competition for about 3,900 Merit scholarships to be awarded in 1978.

More than 1 million students entered the National Merit competition by taking the 1976 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. Semifinalists are the highest scoring students in each state. They represent the top half of 1 per cent of the nation's students.

SEMIFINALISTS WHO advance to finalist status will compete for at least 1,000 National Merit Scholarships. Each finalist in a particular state will compete with all other finalists in that state for one of these scholarships, which are allocated on a state representational basis.

Finalists also may be considered for about 2,900 four-year Merit Scholarships supported by grants from corporations, foundations, unions and professional associations and by U.S. colleges and universities.

This is the 23rd Merit competition. Since 1956 more than 49,850 students have won National Merit Scholarships valued at more than $136 million.

SEMIFINALISTS from this area are:

- Arlington High School, Arlington Heights: Richard N. Ericson, Martha A. Head, Andrew S. Krock, Teresa N. Mika, Susan E. Revers, Anthony D. Skiba, Evan P. Young.
- Forest View High School, Arlington Heights: Sara E. Bahnmaier, Diana M. Kent, Barbara L. Tylka.

'Soap' debut washes up mixed views

by DIANE MERMIGAS

While television viewers appeared to have mixed emotions about ABC's new controversial comedy, 'Soap,'' special interest and religious groups Wednesday continued pressing for cancellation of the show.

Public reaction to the first half-hour of the show, which began Tuesday at 9:30 p.m. in Chicago instead of at the network's 8:30 p.m. timeslot, ranged from enthusiastic to utter disappointment.

Network officials complained that a rash of publicity and controversy that preceded the premiere of "Soap" had viewers expecting blatant sexual exhibition.

BUT MANY VIEWERS said they found the show crass and superficial in its treatment of promiscuity, homosexuality, adultery and racism, subjects which are hardly new to prime time television.

Many complained the show was not really funny or daring. It lacked the compassion and wit that characterizes the social comedies of Norman Lear, they said.

ABC network officials in New York said they received close to 300 telephone calls after "Soap" aired, most of them objecting to the show's content.

WLS-TV, Channel 7 in Chicago, an ABC owned and operated station, received more than 250 telephone calls, at least half of which were objections.

Perhaps prompted by sheer curiosity, "Soap," attracted a walloping 32.9 rating Tuesday night and 49 per cent of the Chicago area viewing audience. That figure matched in other major cities.

THE SHOW DID not start, however, without some caution on the part of television executives. WLS-TV station manager Phil Boyer addressed viewers on camera and the network ran a written warning about the mature subject matter before "Soap" aired. That was done only after the network had "cleaned up" the opening episode, removing some objectionable material that television critics had cited since screening "Soap" in June.

Although it will take weeks before viewers have a full feel for what "Soap" is all about, some special interest and religious groups Wednesday said they still believe the show should not be aired.

The variety of group efforts forced 14 of ABC's affiliate stations to decide against airing the show and had driven off a number of prospective sponsors from buying air time.

The Rev. Donald Wildmon of the National Federation for Decency said he will recommend that organization members boycott product sponsors of "Soap" episodes, and continue picketing ABC-TV stations.

Other groups such as the National Gay Alliance, The Roman Catholic Church's communications agency, the Catholic League for Civil Religious and Civil Rights and the Southern Baptist Convention will continue calling for cancellation.

Other organizations, however, such as the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, National Council of Churches, Parent-Teacher Assn. and the National Citizens Committee for Broadcasting have asked members only to watch the show and then register their views with local station officials.

Cholera threat not likely in U.S.

A cholera epidemic that has spread to Europe from the Middle East may infect United States residents traveling abroad but is unlikely to become a problem in the United States, according to health officials.

More than 2,000 cholera cases have recently been reported in seven Middle East countries and Britain, Italy, West Germany and Holland.

Dr. Paul Blake, an epidemiologist for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., said cholera is a bacteria that breeds in untreated sewage and is spread via contaminated water and sewer. He said the disease can be prevented with good eating and drinking habits and is rarely spread from person to person.

The cases reported in Europe, Blake explained, are among travelers returning from the Middle East.

SINCE 1960 THERE have been eight confirmed cases of cholera among U.S. citizens and all were contracted by travelers in infected areas, Blake said. Only two of the cases were brought back to the United States, he said.

"We're not very concerned about cases imported into the United States," Blake said. The methods of water treatment, sewage treatment and food handling, while not perfect, would check possible epidemics, he said.

For those traveling to infected areas, the Center for Disease Control recommends that water be boiled or treated with chlorine or iodine tablets before using. Bottled carbonated water, carbonated soft drinks and alcoholic beverages are safe.

Raw vegetables and fruits should be avoided and food should be well cooked and eaten hot.

A VACCINE AGAINST cholera is available from private physicians but shots are not required to enter an infected area.

Mary Harvey, an epidemiologist for the Cook County Dept. of Public Health, said the shots are sometimes required for persons leaving an area where cholera has been detected.

Blake said the vaccine is "not very effective," with less than 75 per cent of the persons vaccinated becoming immune.

Increased police patrols on roads

The Illinois State Police this week will start increasing police patrols on sections of 45 major highways in the state including three in the Northwest suburbs in an effort to reduce accidents.

Increased patrols will be included on U.S. Rte. 14 from Barrington Road to Quentin Road, Ill. Rte. 68 from Rte. 14 to U.S. Rte. 53 and Rte. 53 to the Lake County Line, Capt. William P. Burt said.

State Police Supt. Lynn E. Baird said more than 140 police, including off-duty troopers, will patrol the roadways. She said the police will try to prevent accidents by being stricter about ticketing drivers who violate traffic laws.

An Illinois Dept. of Transportation analysis of statewide accidents showed increases from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 a.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Saturday to 6 a.m. Sunday.

"The demands for Illinois State Police services have increased to the point that our existing resources are not sufficient to handle calls for service and at the same time cover high-accident locations," Baird said. "This program should remedy this."

Cholera threat not likely in U.S.

A cholera epidemic that has spread to Europe from the Middle East may infect United States residents traveling abroad but is unlikely to become a problem in the United States, according to health officials.

More than 2,000 cholera cases have recently been reported in seven Middle East countries and Britain, Italy, West Germany and Holland.

Dr. Paul Blake, an epidemiologist for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., said cholera is a bacteria that breeds in untreated sewage and is spread via contaminated water and sewer. He said the disease can be prevented with good eating and drinking habits and is rarely spread from person to person.

The cases reported in Europe, Blake explained, are among travelers returning from the Middle East.

SINCE 1960 THERE have been eight confirmed cases of cholera among U.S. citizens and all were contracted by travelers in infected areas, Blake said. Only two of the cases were brought back to the United States, he said.

"We're not very concerned about cases imported into the United States," Blake said. The methods of water treatment, sewage treatment and food handling, while not perfect, would check possible epidemics, he said.

For those traveling to infected areas, the Center for Disease Control recommends that water be boiled or treated with chlorine or iodine tablets before using. Bottled carbonated water, carbonated soft drinks and alcoholic beverages are safe.

Raw vegetables and fruits should be avoided and food should be well cooked and eaten hot.

A VACCINE AGAINST cholera is available from private physicians but shots are not required to enter an infected area.

Mary Harvey, an epidemiologist for the Cook County Dept. of Public Health, said the shots are sometimes required for persons leaving an area where cholera has been detected.

Blake said the vaccine is "not very effective," with less than 75 per cent of the persons vaccinated becoming immune.

Increased police patrols on roads

The Illinois State Police this week will start increasing police patrols on sections of 45 major highways in the state including three in the Northwest suburbs in an effort to reduce accidents.

Increased patrols will be included on U.S. Rte. 14 from Barrington Road to Quentin Road, Ill. Rte. 68 from Rte. 14 to U.S. Rte. 53 and Rte. 53 to the Lake County Line, Capt. William P. Burt said.

State Police Supt. Lynn E. Baird said more than 140 police, including off-duty troopers, will patrol the roadways. She said the police will try to prevent accidents by being stricter about ticketing drivers who violate traffic laws.

An Illinois Dept. of Transportation analysis of statewide accidents showed increases from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 a.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Saturday to 6 a.m. Sunday.

"The demands for Illinois State Police services have increased to the point that our existing resources are not sufficient to handle calls for service and at the same time cover high-accident locations," Baird said. "This program should remedy this."

Parks get clear message

Officials of the Hanover Park Park District have been given a clear message by the voters — put your financial affairs in order.

The voters Saturday rejected a referendum which would have authorized the district to raise its tax rate 13 cents per $100 assessed value. The 2-1 margin on the defeat is an unmistakable message that the voters of Hanover Park are not willing to give any more money to the park district.

While park officials probably have a partial explanation for the loss when they say it was an "anti-tax" vote, they should also look at the park district's sorry financial record of recent years.

Although the park district has the highest tax rate in the area, it was $150,000 in debt because of delays and lower than anticipated revenue from the Community Centre. In addition, the district owns $150,000 worth of equipment for maintaining an indoor ice rink, equipment that is useless because the district could not sell the bonds for the rink.

Those kinds of financial problems are the kind to exhaust the patience of even the most generous taxpaying community. Northwest suburban residents are generally willing to pay for government services they need if they believe the money is well managed.

However, Hanover Park residents, by an overwhelming majority, apparently do not have enough faith in the way the park district is operating to give them more resources.

Even before the referendum, the park district had hired financial consultants to help with park district affairs. More effort is clearly needed to restore public confidence in the park district.

In addition, citizens who voted against the park referendum, have the responsibility to watch park district actions closely in coming months. Now that the issue has been made clear, regular reminders to park officials of their responsibilities will help ensure progress.

Liddy's sense of 'duty' dangerous

After more than four years in prison for his role in the Watergate burglary, G. Gordon Liddy emerged from jail last week, paroled but unrepentant — just like the "prince" he served, Richard Nixon.

Liddy, the Watergate stoic, continued his silence about the illegal campaign activities he coordinated. But what he did say was revealing — and frightening.

Liddy said he served Nixon as a "lieutenant would his prince" in carrying out his illegal political chores. As a result, the "prince was prince for a longer period." The former CIA operative said he would do it again if called upon. He would serve his "prince" blindly and faithfully, regardless of legal or moral ramifications.

The fact that Liddy is no longer involved with the government is comforting. The kind of CIA romanticism where elected officials are served like feudal kings is dangerous.

We can only hope that Liddy philosophy — like Liddy himself — has been purged from all levels of the government.

New era in New York

New York City voters last week turned to fresh management by providing victory for two relatively unknowns in a seven way Democratic mayoral primary.

Voters refused to support the two well-known national favorites — incumbent Abraham Beame and outspoken former Congresswoman Bella Abzug.

Instead, U.S. Rep. Edward Koch, a liberal congressman who now describes himself as a union-bashing, law-and-order, capital punishment-favoring, "liberal with sanity" and New York Sec. of State Mario Cuomo the "great conciliator" will face each other in a run-off election Monday.

It is unlikely the winner of Monday's run-off will lose in November, but whatever the result the residents of New York City have made their wishes known; they want fresh leadership with a change in the direction the city had taken.

The nation's most populous and visible city has for too long had an image of free-spending and fiscal irresponsibility.

Now is the time for the city to be in the forefront of unique municipal management showing other money-troubled communities the way to solvent government.

Correction

In Monday's editorial supporting legislation to consolidate local elections, The Daily Herald misstated the dates of some of the local elections under the proposal.

Under the plan, municipal officials would be elected in odd-numbered years on the first Tuesday in April. Non-partisan boards, such as school boards, park boards and fire protection boards, would be elected in a non-partisan election in November in odd-numbered years.

"I say the LIBERALS got control of the networks and MADE them replace violence with sex!"

The treaty won't bring happy ending in Panama

Paul Greenberg

When the Pan-American hurly-burly's done in Washington, and all the signatures on the treaty won, some troubling questions remain.

Ernest Conine, writing in defense of the new Panama Canal treaty in the Los Angeles Times, is fair enough to acknowledge that the Carter Administration is overselling the treaty and inviting disillusionment later: "The Administration is inclined to suggest that the new treaties would usher in a wondrously trouble-free era of peace and tranquillity in U.S. Panamanian relations — The Administration would do itself a favor, in the long run, by telling it like it is. By making the agreements sound like more of a cure-all than they actually are, it may pick up public support — but only at the risk of a dangerous backlash later if trouble arises."

Conine is to be complimented for his departure from the Pollyanna style that seems to characterize so many of the treaty's pushers. The trouble he anticipates could come in any number of ways, but perhaps the most likely would be the nationalization of the canal by General Omar Torrijos Herrera or some equally authoritarian successor. The United States, having surrendered its exercise of sovereignty over the canal, would be in poor position to protest, just as the British and French were when the Suez Canal was seized.

IN ANY CLASH, America could be labeled the aggressor, certainly at the United Nations and more importantly by a significant level of American public opinion. If the use of force in Vietnam under a network of clear mutual security treaties could be denounced as aggression, certainly any American attempts to enforce this new and ambiguous canal treaty might be criticized in the same remarkably numerous ranks.

For the moment, any such danger may be obscured in the fog of puffery surrounding General Torrijos, who is being described as almost everything but the dime-a-dozen dictator he is. The Carter Administration, in its highly selective way with human rights, has suspended its emphasis on that subject for the duration of the debate on the new treaty. The welcome mat is now out for Maximum Leader Torrijos and any other Latin Jefe who showed for the treaty signing.

Ernest Conine, though an advocate of this treaty, is more explicit on the subject of the General's politics: "For Torrijos, inflaming Panamanian passions over the canal has been a handy way of distracting the people's attention up to now from his government's failure to deal with the country's economic problems. He may not find it convenient to give up the game merely because a piece of paper has been signed."

But fair being fair, Conine put a question to opponents of the treaty that deserves an equally direct response: "If the new treaties are not ratified, and Panamanian anger spills over into violence, how do they propose to defend a waterway that U.S. military men say can be put out of action for months by a lone saboteur or handful of guerrillas? Can they guarantee that the canal will be kept open?"

THIS IS THE ARGUMENT that has persuaded many conservatives to approve the new treaty. It might be noted that they did not despair of America's ability to defend the 51-mile long waterway, but of the American will to do so. A number of military men, primarily those who have retired and so are no longer dependent on the Carter Administration for promotion and approval, have opposed the treaty and expressed confidence that the canal could be defended. But will Americans have the courage and the unity to do so? Governor David Pryor of Arkansas, one of those who approved this treaty even before the text was released, already has warned of another Vietnam unless the United States agrees to withdraw.

This kind of warning has a way of becoming self-fulfilling prophecy. Those who say that others will not prove willing to defend American interests or even sovereignty in effect multiply the influence of the others. In this matter, they may overlook some points made by Roger W. Fontaine, director of Latin American Studies at Georgetown University. In a recent article ("Scare Talk and the Canal") Fontaine notes that sabotaging the canal might hurt Panama most, for it depends on the canal for revenue and would depend on gringo capital to restore it after any incident. Panama is not Vietnam in size, resources or proximity to a neighbor willing to supply a guerrilla war. Besides, the Maximum Leader might find a guerrilla army more of a danger to his own regime, with its reliance on foreign capital and foreign banks, than to the canal.

Fontaine offers an excellent description of arguments, which may magnify the threats under which the United States has negotiated this new treaty: "We Americans are engaging in acts of self-extortion." No one can guarantee that the canal can be kept open under all cihcumstances. But the chances of keeping it open to all on fair terms may be greater if American sovereignty is not given up in the face of threats.

And there are ways to avoid another Vietnam besides withdrawal. If the American public has learned something from Vietnam, it may be the necessity to strike with overwhelming force against provocation and put an end to the war and the adversary at once.

It's our 'dumb luck' that nature survives oil spills

by DON OAKLEY

Mother Nature is apparently tougher and more resilient than we think, at least as far as oil spills are concerned.

A study by Massachusetts Institute of Technology has found that the fragile ecologies of coastal areas can survive and, given enough time, recover from the effects of this kind of pollution.

There have never been more massive oil spills than occurred during World War II. In the first six months of 1942 alone, tankers sunk by German U-boats dumped more than 3.4 million barrels of oil and gasoline off the Atlantic coast.

THIS IS FIVE times more oil than was involved in history's worst single spill, the Torrey Canoyn disaster off England in 1967, and 20 times the cargo carried by the Argo Merchant, which broke up off Massachusetts last December.

The MIT study, which was funded by a grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, focused on two areas hit by the wartime spills: Ocracoke Island, N.C., where more than 160,000 barrels came ashore, and northern New Jersey coast waters, which were sheared with 264,000 barrels.

The researchers found that in both cases, "regional wildlife and economy (fishing) survived with minimal difficulty."

THIS IS IMMENSELY encouraging, but no cause for complacency. What it really means is that the only reason we did not long ago damage vast stretches of the world's coastlines beyond repair is not because of human wisdom but thanks to sheer dumb luck.

There are limits to the environment's capacity to absorb and rebound from human abuse. If we have fortunately not exceeded them in the case of oil spills, we may be pressing dangerously close in other areas.

A CERTAIN COUNTY in California, we're told, recently received a federal grant of $7 million in drought relief aid.

The money must have done the job, because not long after that the same county applied to an agency of the Commerce Department for $1 million in public works funds to build a swimming pool.

The department threw cold water on the second request.

'Drop retirement age to 62'

Today's question: Should the retirement age be raised.

Raise the retirement age? Ridiculous! The people who come up with these hair-brained schemes are usually ones who sit behind a desk and draw big salaries for short hours and long vacations. They don't know what it's like to do a hard day's work for 40 or 50 years. Not to mention that some people are struggling to physically make it to age 65.

Retirement age should be lowered to age 62, which would help the younger workers get started. This would also greatly reduce the unemployment situation. If some wish voluntarily to work past retirement age, they should be allowed to do so, but don't force it on everyone. Furthermore, the system should be changed according to the years a person pays in to Social Security. It's unfair for one who pays in for five years to draw the same amount as one who struggles for 40 or 50 years.

Richard W. Kirchoff
Wheeling

'Cut welfare, foreign aid'

There is never a shortage of money for foreign aid or welfare, yet no money for our Social Security. Naturally we have been planning on retiring at 65, since our own money was to be used for that purpose! Congress should never have been allowed to use Social Security funds for other programs. Let's use the money we waste on foreign aid and welfare to increase our Social Security funds!

The working force's birth rate may be going down, but you can be sure that the birth rate of welfare recipients will continue to rise as long as we increase their payments with each child.

Anyone who has paid in to the Social Security fund for 20 years, should be allowed to retire at 65, if they choose. The government should decrease the benefits of welfare and add that tax money to Social Security and remove Medicare from the retirement fund. The young people will never collect, so should not be required to pay, instead, be required to put a percentage of their income in to a retirement plan of their own choosing.

Jacqueline Baker
Rolling Meadows

'47 years are enough'

I am writing regarding raising the age to 68 for retirement. I have been working 42 years and still have five years to go for 65. At this age it is getting to be a chore to get up and go to work and if they change it I don't think I will make it.

I am in favor of lowering it instead or raising it. How about these aliens who come over here and never raise a finger. Let them go to work. There are plenty of jobs. We had to learn. Cut them off or send them back where they came from. Then there will be money for those of us who have been paying into it every week since it started.

M. Fromff
Arlington Heights

'Don't cheat elderly'

I do not believe that the age for Social Security should be moved up to 68.

I believe the age should be lowered to 62 with full benefits, so more people can retire and allow younger people to be employed.

There are a number of people who do not work hard physically, but there are very many people that do, and it is very hard to do certain kinds of work at age 62, let alone 65 or 68.

I have contributed to Social Security since it started. If any changes must be made, eliminate the free loaders.

Doesn't the government realize that this would affect all the people that went through a depression and gave four years out of their lives to fight for their country only to be cheated out of a few years of retirement before they die.

Parks get clear message

Officials of the Hanover Park Park District have been given a clear message by the voters — put your financial affairs in order.

The voters Saturday rejected a referendum which would have authorized the district to raise its tax rate 13 cents per $100 assessed value. The 2-1 margin on the defeat is an unmistakable message that the voters of Hanover Park are not willing to give any more money to the park district.

While park officials probably have a partial explanation for the loss when they say it was an "anti-tax" vote, they should also look at the park district's sorry financial record of recent years.

Although the park district has the highest tax rate in the area, it was $150,000 in debt because of delays and lower than anticipated revenue from the Community Centre. In addition, the district owns $150,000 worth of equipment for maintaining an indoor ice rink, equipment that is useless because the district could not sell the bonds for the rink.

Those kinds of financial problems are the kind to exhaust the patience of even the most generous taxpaying community. Northwest suburban residents are generally willing to pay for government services they need if they believe the money is well managed.

However, Hanover Park residents, by an overwhelming majority, apparently do not have enough faith in the way the park district is operating to give them more resources.

Even before the referendum, the park district had hired financial consultants to help with park district affairs. More effort is clearly needed to restore public confidence in the park district.

In addition, citizens who voted against the park referendum, have the responsibility to watch park district actions closely in coming months. Now that the issue has been made clear, regular reminders to park officials of their responsibilities will help ensure progress.

Liddy's sense of 'duty' dangerous

After more than four years in prison for his role in the Watergate burglary, G. Gordon Liddy emerged from jail last week, paroled but unrepentant — just like the "prince" he served, Richard Nixon.

Liddy, the Watergate stoic, continued his silence about the illegal campaign activities he coordinated. But what he did say was revealing — and frightening.

Liddy said he served Nixon as a "lieutenant would his prince" in carrying out his illegal political chores. As a result, the "prince was prince for a longer period." The former CIA operative said he would do it again if called upon. He would serve his "prince" blindly and faithfully, regardless of legal or moral ramifications.

The fact that Liddy is no longer involved with the government is comforting. The kind of CIA romanticism where elected officials are served like feudal kings is dangerous.

We can only hope that Liddy philosophy — like Liddy himself — has been purged from all levels of the government.

New era in New York

New York City voters last week turned to fresh management by providing victory for two relatively unknowns in a seven way Democratic mayoral primary.

Voters refused to support the two well-known national favorites — incumbent Abraham Beame and outspoken former Congresswoman Bella Abzug.

Instead, U.S. Rep. Edward Koch, a liberal congressman who now describes himself as a union-bashing, law-and-order, capital punishment-favoring, "liberal with sanity" and New York Sec. of State Mario Cuomo the "great conciliator" will face each other in a run-off election Monday.

It is unlikely the winner of Monday's run-off will lose in November, but whatever the result the residents of New York City have made their wishes known; they want fresh leadership with a change in the direction the city had taken.

The nation's most populous and visible city has for too long had an image of free-spending and fiscal irresponsibility.

Now is the time for the city to be in the forefront of unique municipal management showing other money-troubled communities the way to solvent government.

Correction

In Monday's editorial supporting legislation to consolidate local elections, The Daily Herald misstated the dates of some of the local elections under the proposal.

Under the plan, municipal officials would be elected in odd-numbered years on the first Tuesday in April. Non-partisan boards, such as school boards, park boards and fire protection boards, would be elected in a non-partisan election in November in odd-numbered years.

"I say the LIBERALS got control of the networks and MADE them replace violence with sex!"

Paul Greenberg

When the Pan-American hurly-burly's done in Washington, and all the signatures on the treaty won, some troubling questions remain.

Ernest Conine, writing in defense of the new Panama Canal treaty in the Los Angeles Times, is fair enough to acknowledge that the Carter Administration is overselling the treaty and inviting disillusionment later: "The Administration is inclined to suggest that the new treaties would usher in a wondrously trouble-free era of peace and tranquillity in U.S. Panamanian relations — The Administration would do itself a favor, in the long run, by telling it like it is. By making the agreements sound like more of a cure-all than they actually are, it may pick up public support — but only at the risk of a dangerous backlash later if trouble arises."

Conine is to be complimented for his departure from the Pollyanna style that seems to characterize so many of the treaty's pushers. The trouble he anticipates could come in any number of ways, but perhaps the most likely would be the nationalization of the canal by General Omar Torrijos Herrera or some equally authoritarian successor. The United States, having surrendered its exercise of sovereignty over the canal, would be in poor position to protest, just as the British and French were when the Suez Canal was seized.

IN ANY CLASH, America could be labeled the aggressor, certainly at the United Nations and more importantly by a significant level of American public opinion. If the use of force in Vietnam under a network of clear mutual security treaties could be denounced as aggression, certainly any American attempts to enforce this new and ambiguous canal treaty might be criticized in the same remarkably numerous ranks.

For the moment, any such danger may be obscured in the fog of puffery surrounding General Torrijos, who is being described as almost everything but the dime-a-dozen dictator he is. The Carter Administration, in its highly selective way with human rights, has suspended its emphasis on that subject for the duration of the debate on the new treaty. The welcome mat is now out for Maximum Leader Torrijos and any other Latin Jefe who showed for the treaty signing.

Ernest Conine, though an advocate of this treaty, is more explicit on the subject of the General's politics: "For Torrijos, inflaming Panamanian passions over the canal has been a handy way of distracting the people's attention up to now from his government's failure to deal with the country's economic problems. He may not find it convenient to give up the game merely because a piece of paper has been signed."

But fair being fair, Conine put a question to opponents of the treaty that deserves an equally direct response: "If the new treaties are not ratified, and Panamanian anger spills over into violence, how do they propose to defend a waterway that U.S. military men say can be put out of action for months by a lone saboteur or handful of guerrillas? Can they guarantee that the canal will be kept open?"

THIS IS THE ARGUMENT that has persuaded many conservatives to approve the new treaty. It might be noted that they did not despair of America's ability to defend the 51-mile long waterway, but of the American will to do so. A number of military men, primarily those who have retired and so are no longer dependent on the Carter Administration for promotion and approval, have opposed the treaty and expressed confidence that the canal could be defended. But will Americans have the courage and the unity to do so? Governor David Pryor of Arkansas, one of those who approved this treaty even before the text was released, already has warned of another Vietnam unless the United States agrees to withdraw.

This kind of warning has a way of becoming self-fulfilling prophecy. Those who say that others will not prove willing to defend American interests or even sovereignty in effect multiply the influence of the others. In this matter, they may overlook some points made by Roger W. Fontaine, director of Latin American Studies at Georgetown University. In a recent article ("Scare Talk and the Canal") Fontaine notes that sabotaging the canal might hurt Panama most, for it depends on the canal for revenue and would depend on gringo capital to restore it after any incident. Panama is not Vietnam in size, resources or proximity to a neighbor willing to supply a guerrilla war. Besides, the Maximum Leader might find a guerrilla army more of a danger to his own regime, with its reliance on foreign capital and foreign banks, than to the canal.

Fontaine offers an excellent description of arguments, which may magnify the threats under which the United States has negotiated this new treaty: "We Americans are engaging in acts of self-extortion." No one can guarantee that the canal can be kept open under all cihcumstances. But the chances of keeping it open to all on fair terms may be greater if American sovereignty is not given up in the face of threats.

And there are ways to avoid another Vietnam besides withdrawal. If the American public has learned something from Vietnam, it may be the necessity to strike with overwhelming force against provocation and put an end to the war and the adversary at once.

It's our 'dumb luck' that nature survives oil spills

by DON OAKLEY

Mother Nature is apparently tougher and more resilient than we think, at least as far as oil spills are concerned.

A study by Massachusetts Institute of Technology has found that the fragile ecologies of coastal areas can survive and, given enough time, recover from the effects of this kind of pollution.

There have never been more massive oil spills than occurred during World War II. In the first six months of 1942 alone, tankers sunk by German U-boats dumped more than 3.4 million barrels of oil and gasoline off the Atlantic coast.

THIS IS FIVE times more oil than was involved in history's worst single spill, the Torrey Canoyn disaster off England in 1967, and 20 times the cargo carried by the Argo Merchant, which broke up off Massachusetts last December.

The MIT study, which was funded by a grant from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, focused on two areas hit by the wartime spills: Ocracoke Island, N.C., where more than 160,000 barrels came ashore, and northern New Jersey coast waters, which were sheared with 264,000 barrels.

The researchers found that in both cases, "regional wildlife and economy (fishing) survived with minimal difficulty."

THIS IS IMMENSELY encouraging, but no cause for complacency. What it really means is that the only reason we did not long ago damage vast stretches of the world's coastlines beyond repair is not because of human wisdom but thanks to sheer dumb luck.

There are limits to the environment's capacity to absorb and rebound from human abuse. If we have fortunately not exceeded them in the case of oil spills, we may be pressing dangerously close in other areas.

A CERTAIN COUNTY in California, we're told, recently received a federal grant of $7 million in drought relief aid.

The money must have done the job, because not long after that the same county applied to an agency of the Commerce Department for $1 million in public works funds to build a swimming pool.

The department threw cold water on the second request.

'Drop retirement age to 62'

Today's question: Should the retirement age be raised.

Raise the retirement age? Ridiculous! The people who come up with these hair-brained schemes are usually ones who sit behind a desk and draw big salaries for short hours and long vacations. They don't know what it's like to do a hard day's work for 40 or 50 years. Not to mention that some people are struggling to physically make it to age 65.

Retirement age should be lowered to age 62, which would help the younger workers get started. This would also greatly reduce the unemployment situation. If some wish voluntarily to work past retirement age, they should be allowed to do so, but don't force it on everyone. Furthermore, the system should be changed according to the years a person pays in to Social Security. It's unfair for one who pays in for five years to draw the same amount as one who struggles for 40 or 50 years.

Richard W. Kirchoff
Wheeling

'Cut welfare, foreign aid'

There is never a shortage of money for foreign aid or welfare, yet no money for our Social Security. Naturally we have been planning on retiring at 65, since our own money was to be used for that purpose! Congress should never have been allowed to use Social Security funds for other programs. Let's use the money we waste on foreign aid and welfare to increase our Social Security funds!

The working force's birth rate may be going down, but you can be sure that the birth rate of welfare recipients will continue to rise as long as we increase their payments with each child.

Anyone who has paid in to the Social Security fund for 20 years, should be allowed to retire at 65, if they choose. The government should decrease the benefits of welfare and add that tax money to Social Security and remove Medicare from the retirement fund. The young people will never collect, so should not be required to pay, instead, be required to put a percentage of their income in to a retirement plan of their own choosing.

Jacqueline Baker
Rolling Meadows

'47 years are enough'

I am writing regarding raising the age to 68 for retirement. I have been working 42 years and still have five years to go for 65. At this age it is getting to be a chore to get up and go to work and if they change it I don't think I will make it.

I am in favor of lowering it instead or raising it. How about these aliens who come over here and never raise a finger. Let them go to work. There are plenty of jobs. We had to learn. Cut them off or send them back where they came from. Then there will be money for those of us who have been paying into it every week since it started.

M. Fromff
Arlington Heights

'Don't cheat elderly'

I do not believe that the age for Social Security should be moved up to 68.

I believe the age should be lowered to 62 with full benefits, so more people can retire and allow younger people to be employed.

Neutron bomb's deadly effects make it new first-strike strategy

Commentary

The United States will be deciding within the next few weeks whether to go ahead and produce the neutron bomb. NATO Secretary-general Joseph Luns, recently weighed into the argument by saying right out that NATO needs the bomb.

Nobody doubts the bomb's theoretical efficiency. The arguments against it are that it would be inhuman and would blur the distinction between nuclear and conventional weaponry. But the public debate, polarized on hawk-dove lies, has been singularly unenlightening on what the bomb is or what it can do.

To begin with, it is not a bomb at all but a nuclear weapon that the United States would package to fit into large artillery shells or into the warhead of the Lance missile. It is a small thermonuclear device designed to give off a considerably larger proportion of neutron radiation — penetrating but short-lived — than normally comes from a nuclear explosion. It is thus an exceptionally "dirty" weapon. But it is prevented from spreading its dirt very far by the relative smallness of its explosion and because it would be triggered off high enough to ensure that its fireball would not suck up large quantities of earth to be made radioactive and deposited as fallout. Almost all the neutron weapon's fallout is from the vaporized bomb material itself.

THIS ADDS UP TO a weapon that will destroy by blast and fire everything in an area of about 200 yards diameter; kill people instantly by radiation in an area of several hundred yards; and kill them slowly and painfully in a larger radius. It will, however, leave very little long-term radioactivity. It would cause little material damage, and supporting troops could be moved into the area almost at once — an important military factor in central Europe.

A description like this — killing the people but leaving the buildings — makes it sound a super-capitalist horror. It has to be compared with the larger nuclear weapons (big numbers of which are in both sides' stockpiles), from which most of the blast effects have been removed. To the charge of inhumanity, it, and they, are guilty. Many of the victims of any nuclear bomb, including the neutron one, would die lingering, gruesome deaths. But, because the neutron weapon has very little fallout, it would have fewer unintended, long-range victims.

The argument that it is something in between a nuclear and conventional weapon — and therefore might be used more readily even though it could well trigger a full scale nuclear war — would not stand up well in any real game of nuclear bluff.

TRUE, USE OF THE neutron bomb would minimize the danger of self-injury to the side that set it off: it has always been one of the paradoxes of NATO policy in central Europe that although nuclear weapons would in the last resort, be the means of stopping a massive Russian tank attack, they would destroy Germany in the process of saving it. Radiation from the neutron weapon, by contrast, would penetrate tank armor several thousand yards from the point of explosion, but it would not render the surrounding country destructively radioactive.

Would this make an American president readier to press the button? Surely not. He would still have to face the awesome prospect of starting a nuclear exchange that could finish by destroying the world. The use of neutron bombs would, like the use of other nuclear weapons, invite Russian retaliation. But their deployment would lessen the chances of Russia miscalculating that the United States would not fight a nuclear war for Germany for fear of destroying Germany. Thus, as a deterrent to a first strike by the other side, the neutron bomb has the edge over other nuclear weapons.

Carter power found losing punch

by GODFREY SPERLING JR.

Almost overnight President Carter has become significantly less powerful politically in the eyes of Republican leaders across the United States.

Carter's standing in the eyes of Democratic leaders around the nation has been found to be dropping some, too.

A new Christian Science Monitor survey of GOP state chairmen and national committeemen shows that 60 of these leaders, with all regions represented, now see Carter as "vulnerable" to a Republican challenge in 1980.

Up to now, frequent checks with top-level Republican leaders, both in Washington and around the country have had a different response: criticism of the President on his stands on some issues but a general opinion that Carter was "in" so well with the American public that he could not be brought down by a GOP opponent.

BUT NOW — BECAUSE of the Bert Lance case and because of a number of what they read as Carter mistakes in both domestic and foreign affairs — Republicans are saying there is a chance they can limit Carter to a single term.

A total of 83 of the 153 GOP leaders who received a Monitor questionnaire responded. In addition to the 60 who said they thought Carter now was "vulnerable," there were another 11 who indicated by their answers that they thought Carter's political position was weakening.

A Monitor survey of all state Democratic leaders showed that a little less than one-third (32) of those responding (111 out of 293) were willing to take political risks by giving Carter no better than "fair" on his record thus far.

More than two-thirds of these Democrats did give the President a "good" or "excellent" rating.

If you'd call a fat cut in your fuel bills good news have we got great news for you!

The National Weather Service expects a trend toward more bitter winters. Now add to that the current fuel pinch and economists' predictions of a tripling in energy costs in the next few years. You can readily see why astute homeowners are welcoming the marketing of the fuel-saving Comfort Computer Control System.

Sounds good so far... but does it work?

What has evolved from years of engineering refinement is a multi-element computer-based thermal monitoring system that's solid state and maintenance-free. And more convenient than thermostatic control, In the early 70's a group of executives from a major midwest utility tested it in their own homes. Annual savings were 20% with many bills cut in half during months of wide temperature changes. It proved to be today's best energy conservation system for the home — bar none.

Will it work for me?

Our system is designed to interface with virtually all types of heating — forced air, hot-water, electric, gas, or oil — and it's equally effective in the home, office, store, or industrial plant.

Exactly how does it cut my fuel consumption?

In this area, most residential heating is by forced air. In this case, we install an outdoor sensor to inform the computer of weather change, and attach thermocouple leads to the computer from the plenum (warm-air recycle chamber). No furnace modification is required. The computer then continually monitors outside temperature while maintaining warmth in the plenum which reduces total burn time ... which is what saves you money. Now the average Ni-Gas customer in this area had an average 1976 bill of about $425. In this instance our exclusive written guarantee specifies a minimum savings of $63.75 (it probably will be more since we have no problem in guaranteeing that 15%.) But savings is only half the story.

What more can I expect?

A lot. You get extended furnace life through more moderate use. No more cold startup drafts (older family members in particular appreciate this). Occasional thermostat adjustment is completely eliminated. And you'll have more even room-to-room heat distribution than ever before. In short, we've achieved ideal heating: highest efficiency with optimum comfort.

When is the best time to install?

Since fuel prices are moving steadily in just one direction, the best answer to that is "yesterday." However, you may wish to take advantage of our September Special introductory offer which applies to all purchases made before October 1st:

- Free thorough furnace cleaning by Ray's Heating & Plumbing.
- Standard Installation by Ray's.
- Guarantee of 15% annual savings.
- Money-Back Guarantee.
- Early Installation Scheduling.

Reporter gets the message

By Mark Fineman

Arthur Bey had claimed he could turn chocolate to cardboard, bread to paste, cigarettes to hellish weapons of self-destruction and routine turmoil to peace and tranquility.

I was beginning to believe him. I would have believed anything at that point.

I was stretched out on Bey's plush recliner, feeling a million miles from the Schaumburg office where I had come to interview him. Bey, a hypnotechnician who 3 weeks ago opened Clinical Hypnosis Inc. advertised programs to lose weight, quit smoking or give up other unwanted habits through hypnosis.

Bey had told me that only 2 persons in 400,000 could not be hypnotized. I just realized that I wasn't one of them.

"Your body is growing heavy," the 29 year old hypnotist was telling me. "Your whole body is like lead - your legs, your chest, your arms, neck and head - all like lead. So heavy you couldn't move if you wanted to.

"Imagine that with each breath, you're inhaling a sweet anesthetic, taking you deeper and deeper. A wave of gentle relaxation is sweeping through your whole body."

My hands and feet were numb. Bey was right - I couldn't move. And I didn't care. A few more commands took me to an even deeper state of relaxation - so deep that I probably would have believed almost anything Bey said.

"People who are in a hypnotic trance can be told to hate the taste of food they love, detest cigarettes or alcohol, shut out pain in a certain part of their body - virtually anything you want," Bey had said. The suggestion is intended to remain with the subject after the trance is broken.

"That's the key to our therapy," he added. "More than 80% of the people who came to our clinics to lose weight have succeeded, and better than 60% quit smoking."

The cost of the weight-loss program is $30 for each 1 hour session ($175 for 6 sessions), and the quit-smoking program costs $275 for 5 consecutive 2-hour sessions.

Reporter Mark Fineman relaxes under the hypnotic direction of clinical hypnotist Arthur Bey.

There are no guarantees, but Bey said that if a patient quits smoking for at least 6 weeks or loses the weight he or she desires, but later has problems, the patient can come back for a free session.

"Hypnosis is just coming into its own in the Western world," Bey said. "It's beginning to be accepted by the American Medical Assn.

"Stage hypnotists have given it a bad name," he added. "There's no hocus-pocus involved, you never lose touch with reality, you always know what's going on around you - it's just that you don't care."

I didn't. Bey could have told me I'd hate the taste of food or cigarettes when I awoke, and I probably would have believed him. But I hadn't enrolled in one of his programs. Instead he told me that I would find the answer to a question that had always puzzled me.

I had always wondered if I could be hypnotized.

The argument that it is something in between a nuclear and conventional weapon — and therefore might be used more readily even though it could well trigger a full scale nuclear war — would not stand up well in any real game of nuclear bluff.

TRUE, USE OF THE neutron bomb would minimize the danger of self-injury to the side that set it off: it has always been one of the paradoxes of NATO policy in central Europe that although nuclear weapons would in the last resort, be the means of stopping a massive Russian tank attack, they would destroy Germany in the process of saving it. Radiation from the neutron weapon, by contrast, would penetrate tank armor several thousand yards from the point of explosion, but it would not render the surrounding country destructively radioactive.

Would this make an American president readier to press the button? Surely not. He would still have to face the awesome prospect of starting a nuclear exchange that could finish by destroying the world. The use of neutron bombs would, like the use of other nuclear weapons, invite Russian retaliation. But their deployment would lessen the chances of Russia miscalculating that the United States would not fight a nuclear war for Germany for fear of destroying Germany. Thus, as a deterrent to a first strike by the other side, the neutron bomb has the edge over other nuclear weapons.

Carter power found losing punch

by GODFREY SPERLING JR.

Almost overnight President Carter has become significantly less powerful politically in the eyes of Republican leaders across the United States.

Carter's standing in the eyes of Democratic leaders around the nation has been found to be dropping some, too.

A new Christian Science Monitor survey of GOP state chairmen and national committeemen shows that 60 of these leaders, with all regions represented, now see Carter as "vulnerable" to a Republican challenge in 1980.

Up to now, frequent checks with top-level Republican leaders, both in Washington and around the country have had a different response: criticism of the President on his stands on some issues but a general opinion that Carter was "in" so well with the American public that he could not be brought down by a GOP opponent.

BUT NOW — BECAUSE of the Bert Lance case and because of a number of what they read as Carter mistakes in both domestic and foreign affairs — Republicans are saying there is a chance they can limit Carter to a single term.

A total of 83 of the 153 GOP leaders who received a Monitor questionnaire responded. In addition to the 60 who said they thought Carter now was "vulnerable," there were another 11 who indicated by their answers that they thought Carter's political position was weakening.

A Monitor survey of all state Democratic leaders showed that a little less than one-third (32) of those responding (111 out of 293) were willing to take political risks by giving Carter no better than "fair" on his record thus far.

More than two-thirds of these Democrats did give the President a "good" or "excellent" rating.

If you'd call a fat cut in your fuel bills good news have we got great news for you!

The National Weather Service expects a trend toward more bitter winters. Now add to that the current fuel pinch and economists' predictions of a tripling in energy costs in the next few years. You can readily see why astute homeowners are welcoming the marketing of the fuel-saving Comfort Computer Control System.

Sounds good so far... but does it work?

What has evolved from years of engineering refinement is a multi-element computer-based thermal monitoring system that's solid state and maintenance-free. And more convenient than thermostatic control, In the early 70's a group of executives from a major midwest utility tested it in their own homes. Annual savings were 20% with many bills cut in half during months of wide temperature changes. It proved to be today's best energy conservation system for the home — bar none.

Will it work for me?

Our system is designed to interface with virtually all types of heating — forced air, hot-water, electric, gas, or oil — and it's equally effective in the home, office, store, or industrial plant.

Exactly how does it cut my fuel consumption?

In this area, most residential heating is by forced air. In this case, we install an outdoor sensor to inform the computer of weather change, and attach thermocouple leads to the computer from the plenum (warm-air recycle chamber). No furnace modification is required. The computer then continually monitors outside temperature while maintaining warmth in the plenum which reduces total burn time ... which is what saves you money. Now the average Ni-Gas customer in this area had an average 1976 bill of about $425. In this instance our exclusive written guarantee specifies a minimum savings of $63.75 (it probably will be more since we have no problem in guaranteeing that 15%.) But savings is only half the story.

What more can I expect?

A lot. You get extended furnace life through more moderate use. No more cold startup drafts (older family members in particular appreciate this). Occasional thermostat adjustment is completely eliminated. And you'll have more even room-to-room heat distribution than ever before. In short, we've achieved ideal heating: highest efficiency with optimum comfort.

When is the best time to install?

Since fuel prices are moving steadily in just one direction, the best answer to that is "yesterday." However, you may wish to take advantage of our September Special introductory offer which applies to all purchases made before October 1st:

* Free thorough furnace cleaning - by Ray's Heating & Plumbing.
* Standard Installation by Ray's.
* Guarantee of 15% annual savings.
* Money-Back Guarantee.
* Early Installation Scheduling.

Reporter gets the message
By Mark Fineman

Arthur Bey had claimed he could turn chocolate to cardboard, bread to paste, cigarettes to hellish weapons of self-destruction and routine turmoil to peace and tranquility.

I was beginning to believe him. I would have believed anything at that point.

I was stretched out on Bey's plush recliner, feeling a million miles from the Schaumburg office where I had come to interview him. Bey, a hypnotechnician who 3 weeks ago opened Clinical Hypnosis Inc. advertised programs to lose weight, quit smoking or give up other unwanted habits through hypnosis.

Bey had told me that only 2 persons in 400,000 could not be hypnotized. I just realized that I wasn't one of them.

"Your body is growing heavy," the 29 year old hypnotist was telling me. "Your whole body is like lead - your legs, your chest, your arms, neck and head - all like lead. So heavy you couldn't move if you wanted to.

"Imagine that with each breath, you're inhaling a sweet anesthetic, taking you deeper and deeper. A wave of gentle relaxation is sweeping through your whole body."

My hands and feet were numb. Bey was right - I couldn't move. And I didn't care. A few more commands took me to an even deeper state of relaxation - so deep that I probably would have believed almost anything Bey said.

Reporter Mark Fineman relaxes under the hypnotic direction of clinical hypnotist Arthur Bey.

"People who are in a hypnotic trance can be told to hate the taste of food they love, detest cigarettes or alcohol, shut out pain in a certain part of their body - virtually anything you want," Bey had said. The suggestion is intended to remain with the subject after the trance is broken.

"That's the key to our therapy," he added. "More than 80% of the people who came to our clinics to lose weight have succeeded, and better than 60% quit smoking."

The cost of the weight-loss program is $30 for each 1 hour session ($175 for 6 sessions), and the quit-smoking program costs $275 for 5 consecutive 2-hour sessions.

There are no guarantees, but Bey said that if a patient quits smoking for at least 6 weeks or loses the weight he or she desires, but later has problems, the patient can come back for a free session.

"Hypnosis is just coming into its own in the Western world," Bey said. "It's beginning to be accepted by the American Medical Assn.

"Stage hypnotists have given it a bad name," he added. "There's no hocus-pocus involved, you never lose touch with reality, you always know what's going on around you - it's just that you don't care."

I didn't. Bey could have told me I'd hate the taste of food or cigarettes when I awoke, and I probably would have believed him. But I hadn't enrolled in one of his programs. Instead he told me that I would find the answer to a question that had always puzzled me.

I had always wondered if I could be hypnotized.

Goltz joins select group with Sox shutout

by BOB GALLAS

Minnesota starter Dave Goltz figures he only had "so-so stuff" Wednesday night when he faced the White Sox at Comiskey Park but "so-so" was enough to:

- Beat the White Sox 7-0.
- Shut out a team that had only been shutout once before this season.
- Pound the final nail in the Sox coffin when it comes to hopes of a division title this season.

Goltz, a 28-year-old righthander, was near perfect despite his own low assessment as he went the distance to run his record to 18-9. He retired the side in order in four innings, faced only one over the minimum in four others and was in trouble only once, when he loaded the bases in the fifth. He allowed seven hits, struck out four and didn't walk a man.

"IT'S A PRETTY good feeling," said Goltz when he learned that he was only the second pitcher this year to shut out the Sox. "Every man in their lineup has to be pitched to carefully. They can all hurt you."

Things were not so rosy for Sox starter Ken Kravec, who gave up three runs in the first and was charged with three more in the eighth to take the loss. You might say Kravec was a victim of bad timing.

"The umpires came out five minutes early and I never finished warming up," Kravec said. "I couldn't throw a curve ball until the fourth."

Kravec tired in the eighth when the Twins' rally made talk of his early troubles academic, but Kravec was still pleased with his performance, outside of the six walks he issued.

"ONLY TWO hit the ball hard off me. I guess when you're meant to win, those balls that drop in are caught."

Coupled with Kansas City's doubleheader sweep of Oakland, the second place Sox trail the Royals by nine games, 10 in the loss column, with 17 to play. The Royals have 19 games left.

The Royals' magic number is 10. Any combination of Kansas City wins over White Sox losses totaling 10 officially climinates the South Siders.

A crowd of 15,639 was on hand to see the Twins hammer out 11 hits, three by Rod Carew who went 3-for-5 to hike his league-leading average to .381.

THE THREE RUNS Kravec yielded in the first inning started with a walk to leadoff man Roy Smalley. Kravec struck out Willie Norwood, but the next three Twins rapped singles and Minnesota led, 3-0.

Rod Carew got the first hit and Dan Ford followed with a single to put runners at first and third. Craig Kusick then singled in a run. A wild pitch advanced the runners to scoring position and Bob Corinski singled both home.

Kravec settled down and pitched well until running into more trouble in the eighth and departed in favor of Don Kirkwood, who fared little better as the Twins scored four more to lead 7-0.

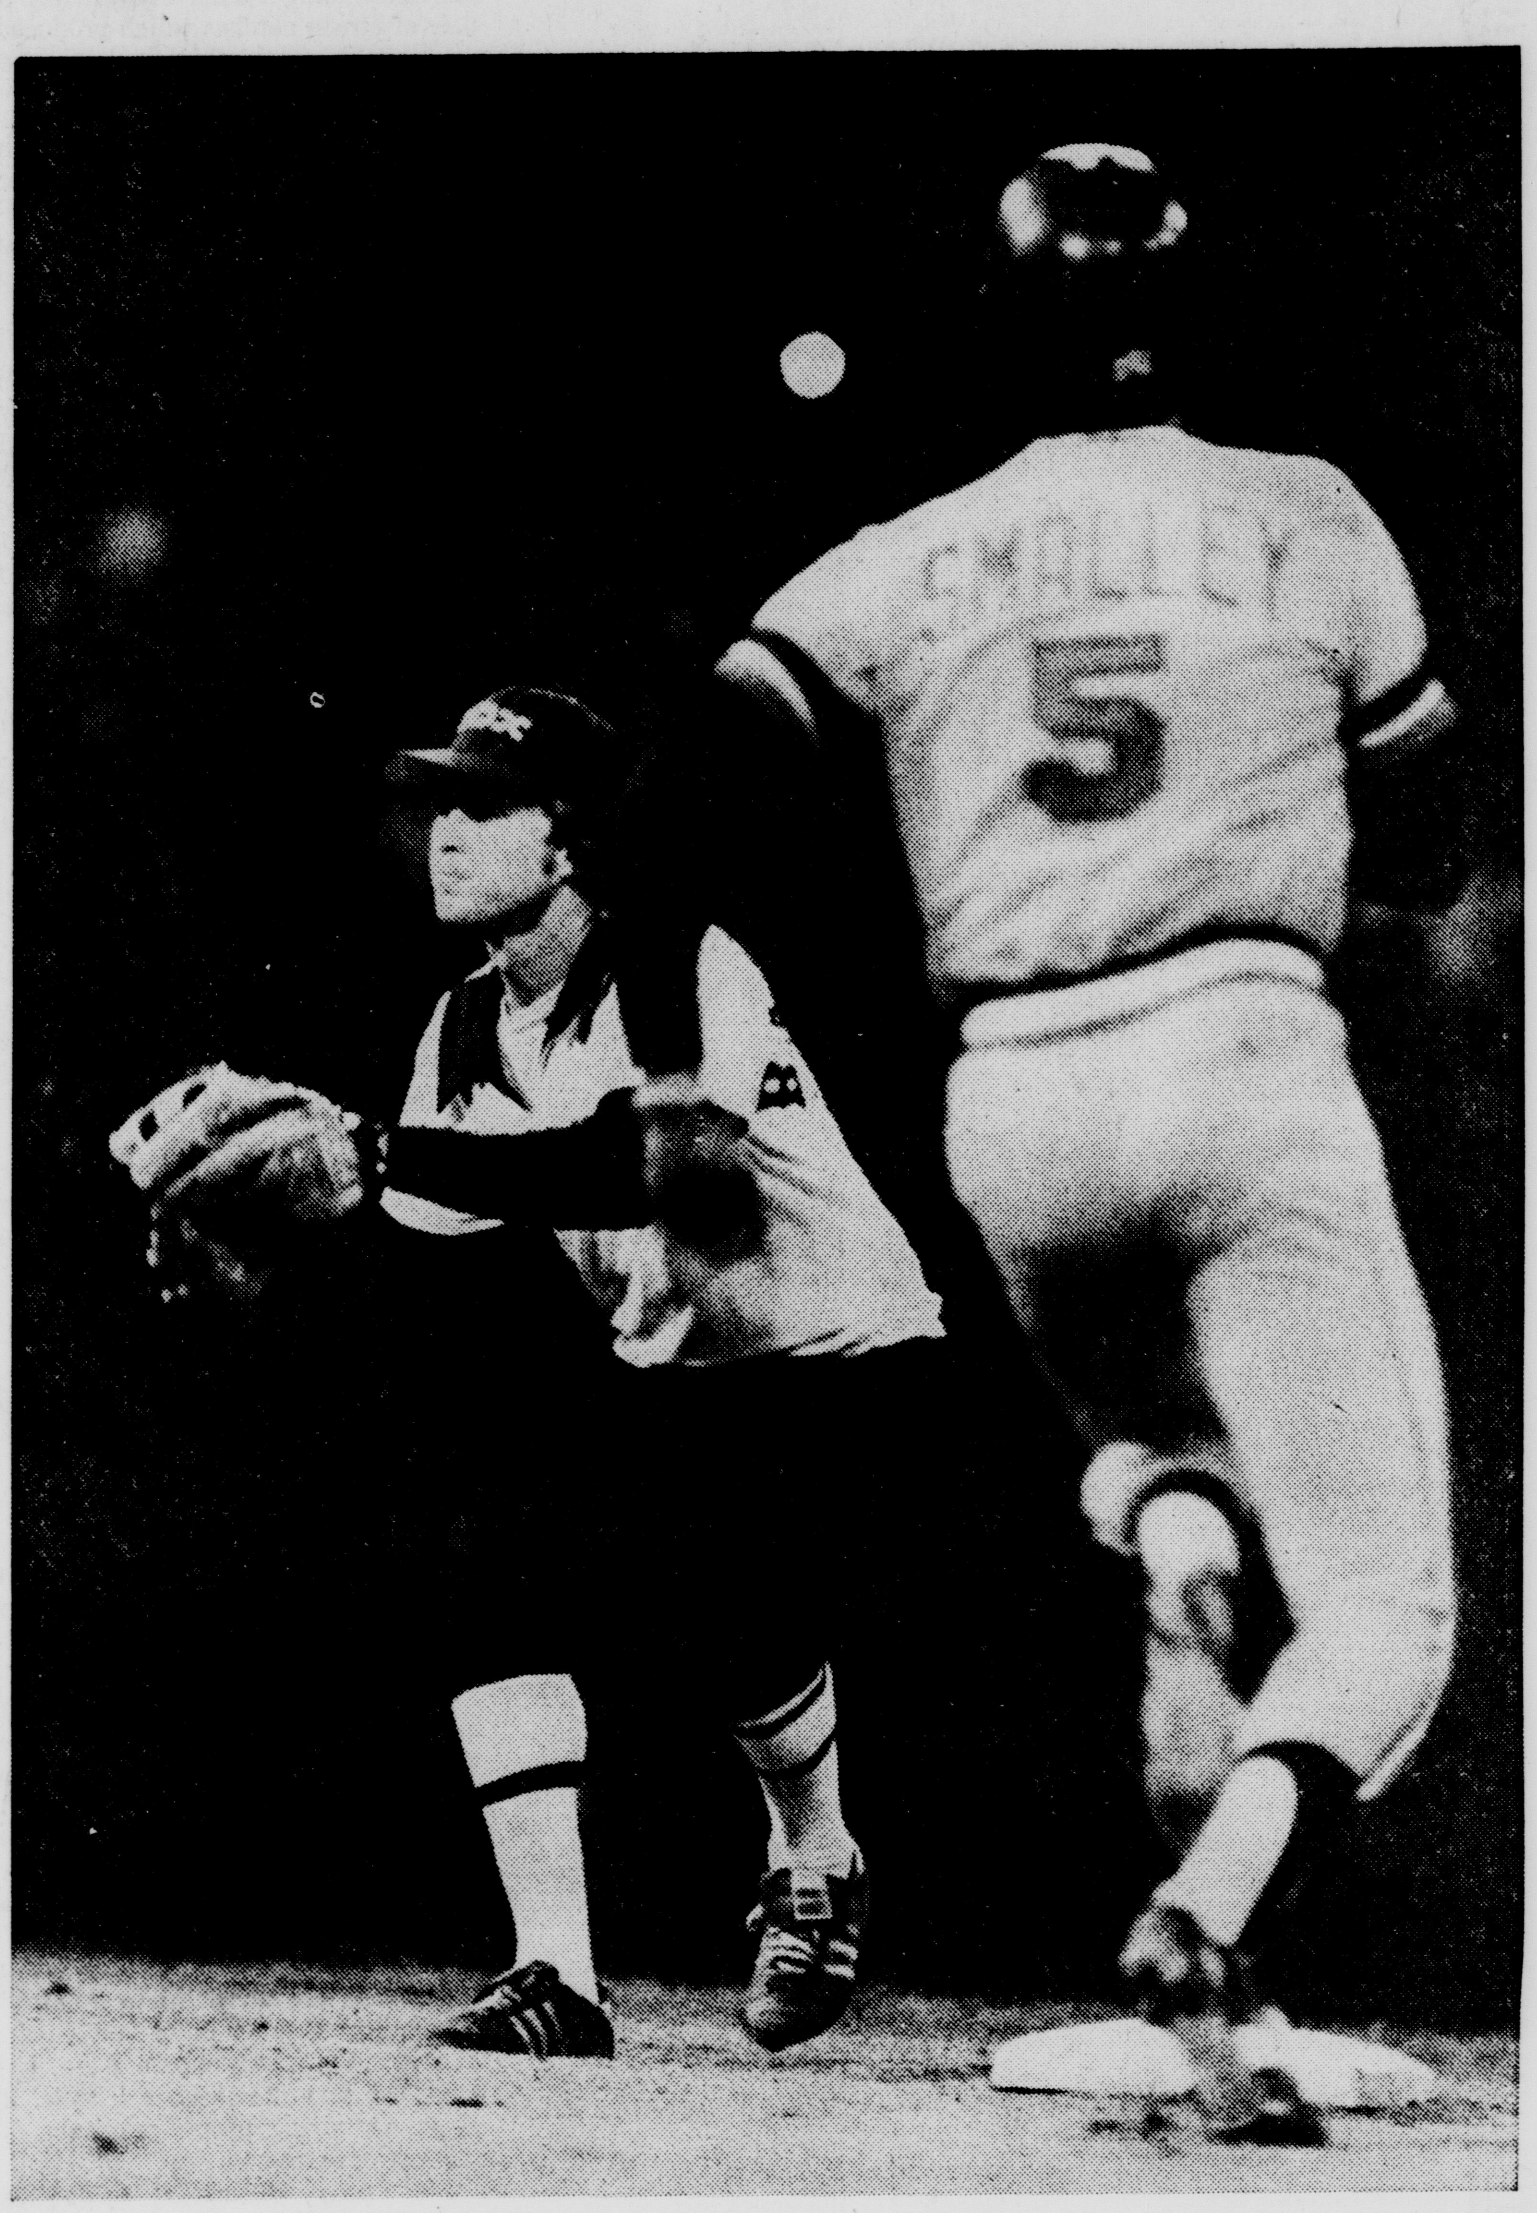
Goltz went into the fifth inning nursing a two-hitter, but successive singles by Alan Bannister, Don Kessinger, and Jim Essian, the 7, 8 and 9 men in the batting order, loaded the bases with one out.

BUT GOLTZ GOT Ralph Garr to ground into a force out at home on a check swing and Chet Lemon rolled out to end the inning. After the three hits, Goltz retired the next nine men he faced before Garr doubled with one out in the eighth.

The Twins batted around in the eighth when they put the game out of reach. Kravec, who also struck out four and yielded eight hits in 7-1/3 innings of work, left after walking two and giving up a base hit, which drove in another run.

Kirkwood came on with runners at first and third with one out faced five men before he could get the sideout, after three more runs, two of which were charged to Kravec, had come across.

Kravec took the loss as his record evened at 8-8. He has not lost six of his last seven decisions.



ROB ROY. Minnesota's Roy Smalley is an easy out for shortstop Alan Bannister while trying to steal second base in the first inning of the Twins' 7-0 triumph over the White Sox Wednesday night at Comiskey Park. The Sox dropped nine games behind red-hot Kansas City which swept a doubleheader from Oakland.

Cubs bow to Montreal in 12th, 3-2

MONTREAL — Andre Dawson's 12th-inning triple that eluded centerfielder Greg Gross and bounced to the wall drove in Stan Papi with the winning run as the Montreal Expos handed the Cubs a disappointing 3-2 loss Wednesday night.

The loss dropped the Cubs into fourth place, a half-game behind St. Louis in the National League East.

Relievers Paul Reuschel and Bruce Sutter held the Expos scoreless from the eighth through the 10th before Giusti got the call.

DAVE CASH LED off the 12th with a single but was forced by Papi, who was trying to sacrifice. Dawson followed with his triple on a high palm ball from Giusti. Papi raced around the bases when Gross could get only part of his glove on the ball. The winner was Expo reliever Bill Atkinson, who pitched the top of the 12th.

The Cubs jumped out to a 2-0 lead with single runs in the second and third off Expo rookie righthander Hal Dues (1-0).

In the second inning Gross led off with a double into the left field corner and went to third on an infield out. With two down, Gross raced home when Krukow's tap down the third base line went for an infield hit.

Larry Biittner, the Cubs' cleanup hitter Tuesday night in St. Louis, was back in his familiar No. 2 spot in Montreal and slammed his 10th homer of the year to lead off the third inning.

KRUKOW, 8-12 IN his rookie season, was rolling along, seemingly headed for his second complete-game victory of the year, until the seventh inning when a leadoff single by Ellis Valentine and a walk to Gary Carter upset his rhythm.

With runners at first and second, Expo Warren Cromartie ripped a line single to right, loading the bases, and Cub manager Herman Franks decided to call on Reuschel.

Reuschel faced Chris Speier who lifted a sacrifice fly to center, scoring one run before pinch-hitter Jerry White struck out to ease the situation. But with Carter at third and Cromartie at first, the Expos pulled a double steal, catching Cub rookie catcher Mike Gordon by surprise.

Gordon fired to Manny Trillo at second as Carter raced home with the tying run. Trillo's return throw was less than perfect or it might have been in time to get the runner. Reuschel went on to fan Cash to end the inning.

THE EXPOS threatened to end the game in the ninth against Sutter, who walked the first man he faced and gave up a single to Carter with no out. After a sacrifice and an intentional walk, however, Sutter struck out pinch batter Jose Morales and Cash. Cash, the hardest man to fan in the NL last year, struck out three times Wednesday night.

The Cubs loaded the bases in the 11th after two were out against reliever Don Stanhouse on a two-base throwing error on Speier, an intentional walk and another pass to pinch hitter Jose Cardenal. But Ivan DeJesus popped up to end the inning.

Kusek knows the trials of the cross country runner

Rick Christopher

Byline report

The scenario of the cross country runner rarely wanders from the ordinary.

There are the familiar paths along asphalt terrain. Or the hazy streetlights that illuminate the distance runner as he strides by.

Elgin High School Cross country coach Jerry Kusek remembers those days well.

"AT ONE POINT in time, that was me," Kusek said. The 8 and 10 mile runs through the streets were familiar pastimes.

"You can usually spot them because none of their uniforms ever match different socks, shorts, etc. Sure, some are joggers but for the most part, they're high school runners out practicing."

"There is a certain individualism that cross country runners like to maintain," Kusek added.

Although Kusek maintains his own individuality as a four-year cross country coach at Elgin, he credits two former coaches for his success as a runner.

A change in coaches during that year to new coach Joe Johnson, increased Kusek speed, which eventually earned him a third place finish in state.

"I really think that the change in coaching styles helped me to where I'm at today," Kusek said. "Under Johnson, we went back to more interval training and less long distance, which increased my speed considerably. And just maturing as a runner helped me."

Besides his state finish as a senior, Kusek ran 40 victories in the Janesville (Wis) Invitational, where he beat Wisconsin's No. 1 runner; the St. Charles Tournament, that included participants from 22 schools; and a district and conference title in the Mid-Suburban League.

KUSEK NEVER rested on his honors during a four-year career at Northeast Missouri State University.

As a freshman, he placed second in the conference. He had top 10 finishes or better, the remaining three years. As a senior, Kusek placed 18th in the national meet in Wheaton, Ill., and his team placed second in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Assn.

A two-year tour of duty as an infantryman in Vietnam and the only limbering up he did was to run from bullets.

"There were plenty of nights of sleeping in the rain and just staying out of the cross fire. And they made me, the smallest guy in the company, carry a 65-pound radio in my pack," he recalled.

During his induction into cross country as a freshman in high school, he had to overcome an initial dislike for the sport.

"TO BE HONEST, I didn't enjoy going out and logging the miles day after day," Kusek said. "But I did it to compete and I had good success at it. So I stuck with it."

Kusek, finds himself on the opposite side of the runner-coach relationship Certain techniques that were once employed to make him a better runner are now the basis for his coaching. Mixing 20-mile road races with interval running, Kusek has emulated Johnson's method of "fartlek"; a Swedish term for speed play, sprinting, jogging and striding.

"You do what you feel during that particular time span," Kusek said. "It's broken pace running to be run ideally over hills and roving terrain."

"I'M TEACHING my group the same way I was coached. This type of training not only builds the runner's endurance but also speed, Kusek said. "They can make it as easy or hard as they want to."

But an average cross country runner wants to be more than just a member of a team. Some will settle into their pace and be content. The more disciplined runner, such as Kusek was, will run in front of others and be competitive.

Kusek has made it clear to his 21-member varsity, frosh-soph squad that there is no easy way to run cross country. Careful study of the course, learning its blind spots and knowing when to attack the hill are just a few criteria that distinguish the average runner from the disciplined competitor.

"There's always a personal duel to be had if the runner wants it," Kusek said. "Either with one of his teammates or with the opponent."

Kusek's primary opponent in recent days has been the athletes at Elgin who are slowly slipping away to outside interests such as work and girls.

With Elgin being a three-year school, the majority of underclassmen have shown more allegiance to their junior high schools. Kusek has learned to accept that fact. But it still has not altered his quest at an eventual state cross country team.

"It's hard to reason with someone that personal pride and physical pain can be rewarding as a $5-an-hour job," Kusek said.

Gilliam brings football shoes to Bears

by BOB GALLAS

The Bears, perhaps figuring they need a pass receiver more than good humor, cut running back Mike Adamle for the second time in as many days and then signed three-time All-Pro receiver John Gilliam, who was released by Atlanta.

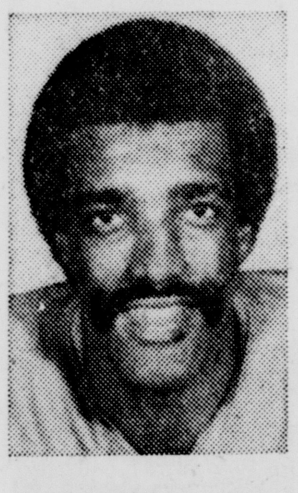
Gilliam, 32, saw his best days under Jim Finks at Minnesota before defecting to the World Football League's Chicago Winds in 1975. When the league folded he returned to the Vikings in time to see action in all 14 games in 1975, although he played out his option and signed with Atlanta for 1976.

Adamle was cut Tuesday but reassigned to the Bears' two-man taxi-squad, with the understanding he would be back if he recovered from a torn stomach muscle suffered just before training camp opened. A tough, hard-nosed special teams player, Adamle was the club jester and kept things loose with everything from poems about players to Art Fern imitations.

GILLIAM CAUGHT only 21 passes for 292 yards last season, a career low. He caught only five passes this preseason with the Falcons and rumors labeling him a troublemaker and malcontent have flowed freely out of Atlanta.

Gilliam arrived in town early enough Wednesday to practice with the Bears but coach Jack Pardee said he did not know whether Gilliam would dress for Sunday's season opener with Detroit at Soldier Field. Pardee did say Gilliam would start working at the strong side receiver's position, now held by Brian Baschnagel.

The Bears do not have to designate the two-man taxi squad until an hour before gametime and the two on the squad can vary every week. Pardee has already said the injured Doug Plank will be on the squad this week. The other player will probably be rookie Len Walterscheid or Gilliam.



John Gilliam

"This is just like coming home," said Gilliam, referring to his reunion with Bears' boss Finks. "They have a lot of problems in Atlanta and they all start up top (in the front office). That's why I chose Chicago out of the teams that contacted me, because of Finks."

GILLIAM'S TROUBLES in Atlanta centered around his outside business venture, a shop that makes custom shoes. His teammates complained he concentrated more on his shoe business than on playing football.

Gilliam refuted the charge by pointing out his attendance at practice Wednesday. "The average player wouldn't be out there without a contract," said Gilliam, who later signed after huddling with Finks. "I have pride."

Gilliam's best pro season was in 1972, his first year with the Vikings, when he caught 47 passes for 1,035 yards, an average of 22 yards per catch, and seven touchdowns. He slipped to 26 catches for 578 yards and five touchdowns by 1974 but came back in 1975 to catch 50 for 777 yards and seven touchdowns.

Gilliam entered pro football with the New Orleans Saints in 1967, hen was dealt to St. Louis in 1969.

Pardee left the door open for Adamle to return to the Bears. "Mike Adamle was still not able to play the way he can. He has to strengthen himself." Pardee acknowledged Adamle, who was already passed over by every NFL club when he was waived Tuesday, is a free agent free to make a deal with any club, but said Adamle is welcome to work in the Bears' weight room to regain his strength.

BEAR FACTS: Pardee said he is "planning" on using Walterscheid in Sunday's game if the defensive back is sufficiently healed from an ankle injury . . . That means Gilliam would not dress for the game . . . Pardee said there is a "chance" Wally Chambers would start at right tackle but would see plenty of action regardless of whether he started or not.

- Shut out a team that had only been shutout once before this season.
- Pound the final nail in the Sox coffin when it comes to hopes of a division title this season.

Goltz, a 28-year-old righthander, was near perfect despite his own low assessment as he went the distance to run his record to 18-9. He retired the side in order in four innings, faced only one over the minimum in four others and was in trouble only once, when he loaded the bases in the fifth. He allowed seven hits, struck out four and didn't walk a man.

"IT'S A PRETTY good feeling," said Goltz when he learned that he was only the second pitcher this year to shut out the Sox. "Every man in their lineup has to be pitched to carefully. They can all hurt you."

Things were not so rosy for Sox starter Ken Kravec, who gave up three runs in the first and was charged with three more in the eighth to take the loss. You might say Kravec was a victim of bad timing.

"The umpires came out five minutes early and I never finished warming up," Kravec said. "I couldn't throw a curve ball until the fourth."

Kravec tired in the eighth when the Twins' rally made talk of his early troubles academic, but Kravec was still pleased with his performance, outside of the six walks he issued.

"ONLY TWO hit the ball hard off me. I guess when you're meant to win, those balls that drop in are caught."

Coupled with Kansas City's doubleheader sweep of Oakland, the second place Sox trail the Royals by nine games, 10 in the loss column, with 17 to play. The Royals have 19 games left.

The Royals' magic number is 10. Any combination of Kansas City wins over White Sox losses totaling 10 officially eliminates the South Siders.

A crowd of 15,639 was on hand to see the Twins hammer out 11 hits, three by Rod Carew who went 3-for-5 to hike his league-leading average to .381.

THE THREE RUNS Kravec yielded in the first inning started with a walk to leadoff man Roy Smalley. Kravec struck out Willie Norwood, but the next three Twins rapped singles and Minnesota led, 3-0.

Rod Carew got the first hit and Dan Ford followed with a single to put runners at first and third. Craig Kusick then singled in a run. A wild pitch advanced the runners to scoring position and Bob Corinski singled both home.

Kravec settled down and pitched well until running into more trouble in the eighth and departed in favor of Don Kirkwood, who fared little better as the Twins scored four more to lead 7-0.

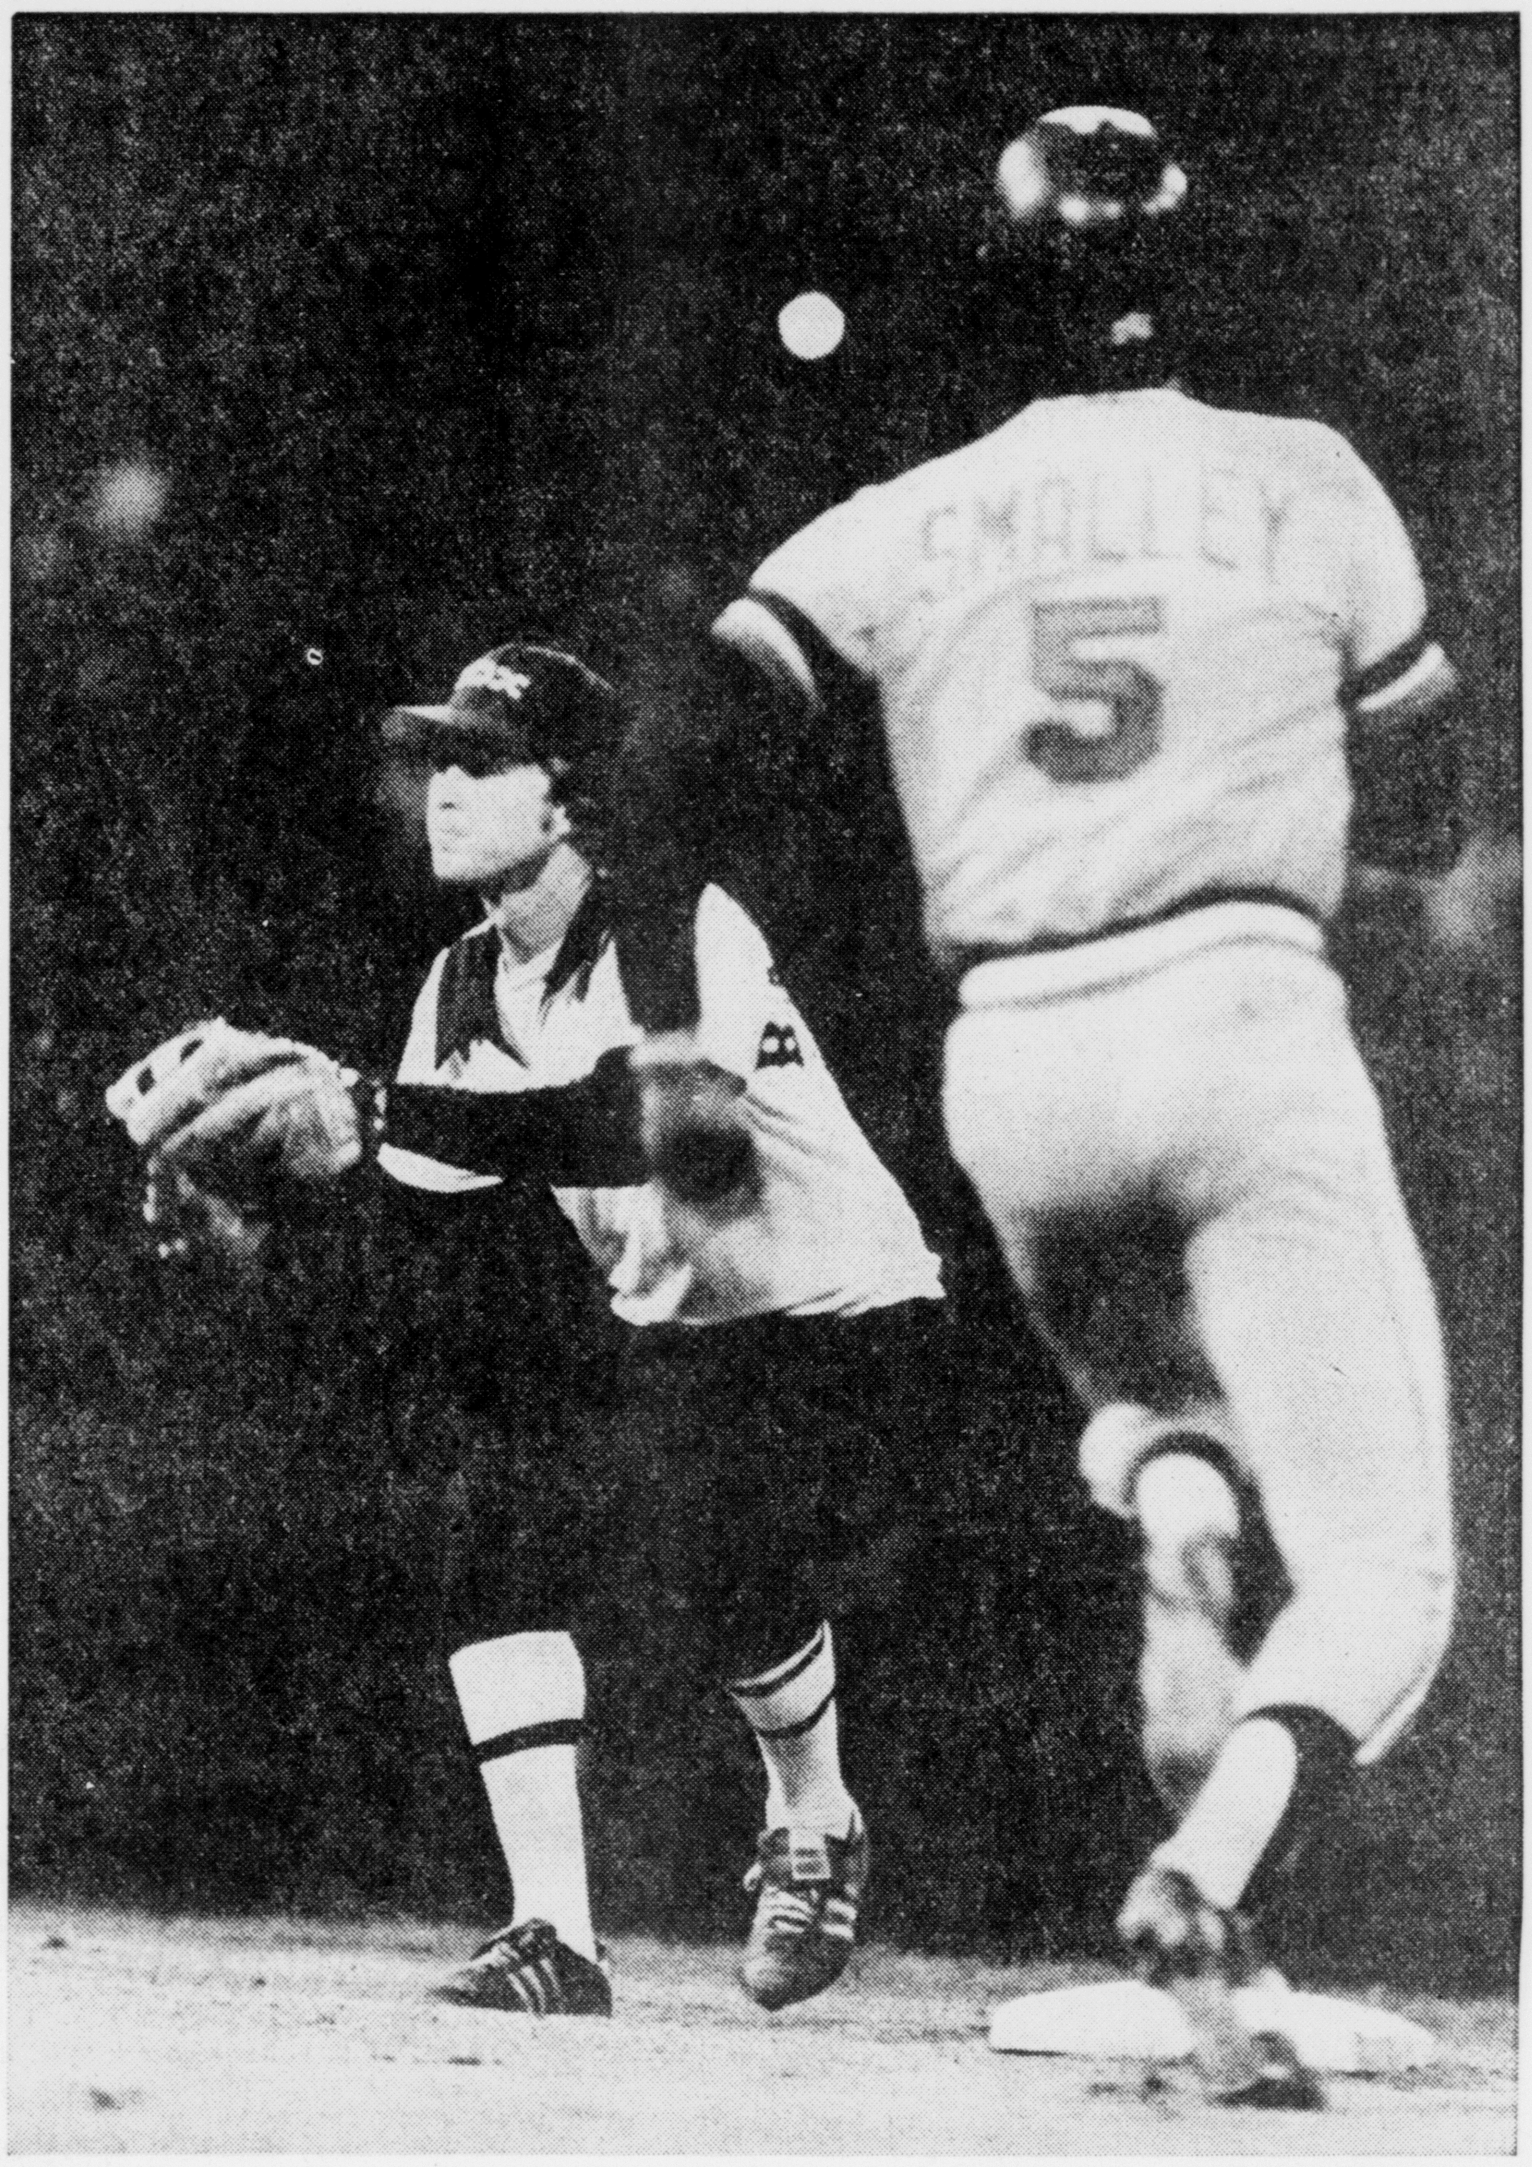
Goltz went into the fifth inning nursing a two-hitter, but successive singles by Alan Bannister, Don Kessinger, and Jim Essian, the 7, 8 and 9 men in the batting order, loaded the bases with one out.

BUT GOLTZ GOT Ralph Garr to ground into a force out at home on a check swing and Chet Lemon rolled out to end the inning. After the three hits, Goltz retired the next nine men he faced before Garr doubled with one out in the eighth.

The Twins batted around in the eighth when they put the game out of reach. Kravec, who also struck out four and yielded eight hits in 7-1/3 innings of work, left after walking two and giving up a base hit, which drove in another run.

Kirkwood came on with runners at first and third with one out faced five men before he could get the sideout, after three more runs, two of which were charged to Kravec, had come across.

Kravec took the loss as his record evened at 8-8. He has not lost six of his last seven decisions.



ROB ROY. Minnesota's Roy Smalley is an easy out for shortstop Alan Bannister while trying to steal second base in the first inning of the Twins' 7-0 triumph over the White Sox Wednesday night at Comiskey Park. The Sox dropped nine games behind red-hot Kansas City which swept a doubleheader from Oakland.

Cubs bow to Montreal in 12th, 3-2

MONTREAL — Andre Dawson's 12th-inning triple that eluded centerfielder Greg Gross and bounced to the wall drove in Stan Papi with the winning run as the Montreal Expos handed the Cubs a disappointing 3-2 loss Wednesday night.

The loss dropped the Cubs into fourth place, a half-game behind St. Louis in the National League East.

Relievers Paul Reuschel and Bruce Sutter held the Expos scoreless from the eighth through the 10th before Giusti got the call.

DAVE CASH LED off the 12th with a single but was forced by Papi, who was trying to sacrifice. Dawson followed with his triple on a high palm ball from Giusti. Papi raced around the bases when Gross could get only part of his glove on the ball. The winner was Expo reliever Bill Atkinson, who pitched the top of the 12th.

The Cubs jumped out to a 2-0 lead with single runs in the second and third off Expo rookie righthander Hal Dues (1-0).

In the second inning Gross led off with a double into the left field corner and went to third on an infield out. With two down, Gross raced home when Krukow's tap down the third base line went for an infield hit.

Larry Biittner, the Cubs' cleanup hitter Tuesday night in St. Louis, was back in his familiar No. 2 spot in Montreal and slammed his 10th homer of the year to lead off the third inning.

KRUKOW, 8-12 IN his rookie season, was rolling along, seemingly headed for his second complete-game victory of the year, until the seventh inning when a leadoff single by Ellis Valentine and a walk to Gary Carter upset his rhythm.

With runners at first and second, Expo Warren Cromartie ripped a line single to right, loading the bases, and Cub manager Herman Franks decided to call on Reuschel.

Reuschel faced Chris Speier who lifted a sacrifice fly to center, scoring one run before pinch-hitter Jerry White struck out to ease the situation. But with Carter at third and Cromartie at first, the Expos pulled a double steal, catching Cub rookie catcher Mike Gordon by surprise.

Gordon fired to Manny Trillo at second as Carter raced home with the tying run. Trillo's return throw was less than perfect or it might have been in time to get the runner. Reuschel went on to fan Cash to end the inning.

THE EXPOS threatened to end the game in the ninth against Sutter, who walked the first man he faced and gave up a single to Carter with no out. After a sacrifice and an intentional walk, however, Sutter struck out pinch batter Jose Morales and Cash. Cash, the hardest man to fan in the NL last year, struck out three times Wednesday night.

The Cubs loaded the bases in the 11th after two were out against reliever Don Stanhouse on a two-base throwing error on Speier, an intentional walk and another pass to pinch hitter Jose Cardenal. But Ivan DeJesus popped up to end the inning.

Kusek knows the trials of the cross country runner

Rick Christopher
Byline report

The scenario of the cross country runner rarely wanders from the ordinary.

There are the familiar paths along asphalt terrain. Or the hazy streetlights that illuminate the distance runner as he strides by.

Elgin High School Cross country coach Jerry Kusek remembers those days well.

"AT ONE POINT in time, that was me," Kusek said. The 8 and 10 mile runs through the streets were familiar pastimes.

"You can usually spot them because none of their uniforms ever match different socks, shorts, etc. Sure, some are joggers but for the most part, they're high school runners out practicing."

"There is a certain individualism that cross country runners like to maintain," Kusek added.

Although Kusek maintains his own individuality as a four-year cross country coach at Elgin, he credits two former coaches for his success as a runner.

A change in coaches during that year to new coach Joe Johnson, increased Kusek speed, which eventually earned him a third place finish in state.

"I really think that the change in coaching styles helped me to where I'm at today," Kusek said. "Under Johnson, we went back to more interval training and less long distance, which increased my speed considerably. And just maturing as a runner helped me."

Besides his state finish as a senior, Kusek ran 40 victories in the Janesville (Wis) Invitational, where he beat Wisconsin's No. 1 runner; the St. Charles Tournament, that included participants from 22 schools; and a district and conference title in the Mid-Suburban League.

KUSEK NEVER rested on his honors during a four-year career at Northeast Missouri State University.

As a freshman, he placed second in the conference. He had top 10 finishes or better, the remaining three years. As a senior, Kusek placed 18th in the national meet in Wheaton, Ill., and his team placed second in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Assn.

A two-year tour of duty as an infantryman in Vietnam and the only limbering up he did was to run from bullets.

"There were plenty of nights of sleeping in the rain and just staying out of the cross fire. And they made me, the smallest guy in the company, carry a 65-pound radio in my pack," he recalled.

During his induction into cross country as a freshman in high school, he had to overcome an initial dislike for the sport.

"TO BE HONEST, I didn't enjoy going out and logging the miles day after day," Kusek said. "But I did it to compete and I had good success at it. So I stuck with it."

Kusek, finds himself on the opposite side of the runner-coach relationship Certain techniques that were once employed to make him a better runner are now the basis for his coaching. Mixing 20-mile road races with interval running, Kusek has emulated Johnson's method of "fartlek"; a Swedish term for speed play, sprinting, jogging and striding.

"You do what you feel during that particular time span," Kusek said. "It's broken pace running to be run ideally over hills and roving terrain."

"I'M TEACHING my group the same way I was coached. This type of training not only builds the runner's endurance but also speed, Kusek said. "They can make it as easy or hard as they want to."

But an average cross country runner wants to be more than just a member of a team. Some will settle into their pace and be content. The more disciplined runner, such as Kusek was, will run in front of others and be competitive.

Kusek has made it clear to his 21-member varsity, frosh-soph squad that there is no easy way to run cross country. Careful study of the course, learning its blind spots and knowing when to attack the hill are just a few criteria that distinguish the average runner from the disciplined competitor.

"There's always a personal duel to be had if the runner wants it," Kusek said. "Either with one of his teammates or with the opponent."

Kusek's primary opponent in recent days has been the athletes at Elgin who are slowly slipping away to outside interests such as work and girls.

With Elgin being a three-year school, the majority of underclassmen have shown more allegiance to their junior high schools. Kusek has learned to accept that fact. But it still has not altered his quest at an eventual state cross country team.

"It's hard to reason with someone that personal pride and physical pain can be rewarding as a $5-an-hour job," Kusek said.

by BOB GALLAS

The Bears, perhaps figuring they need a pass receiver more than good humor, cut running back Mike Adamle for the second time in as many days and then signed three-time All-Pro receiver John Gilliam, who was released by Atlanta.

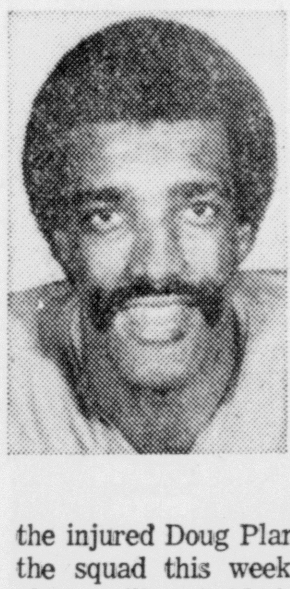
Gilliam, 32, saw his best days under Jim Finks at Minnesota before defecting to the World Football League's Chicago Winds in 1975. When the league folded he returned to the Vikings in time to see action in all 14 games in 1975, although he played out his option and signed with Atlanta for 1976.

Adamle was cut Tuesday but reassigned to the Bears' two-man taxi-squad, with the understanding he would be back if he recovered from a torn stomach muscle suffered just before training camp opened. A tough, hard-nosed special teams player, Adamle was the club jester and kept things loose with everything from poems about players to Art Fern imitations.

GILLIAM CAUGHT only 21 passes for 292 yards last season, a career low. He caught only five passes this preseason with the Falcons and rumors labeling him a troublemaker and malcontent have flowed freely out of Atlanta.

Gilliam arrived in town early enough Wednesday to practice with the Bears but coach Jack Pardee said he did not know whether Gilliam would dress for Sunday's season opener with Detroit at Soldier Field. Pardee did say Gilliam would start working at the strong side receiver's position, now held by Brian Baschnagel.

The Bears do not have to designate the two-man taxi squad until an hour before gametime and the two on the squad can vary every week. Pardee has already said the injured Doug Plank will be on the squad this week. The other player will probably be rookie Len Walterscheid or Gilliam.



John Gilliam

"This is just like coming home," said Gilliam, referring to his reunion with Bears' boss Finks. "They have a lot of problems in Atlanta and they all start up top (in the front office). That's why I chose Chicago out of the teams that contacted me, because of Finks."

GILLIAM'S TROUBLES in Atlanta centered around his outside business venture, a shop that makes custom shoes. His teammates complained he concentrated more on his shoe business than on playing football.

Gilliam refuted the charge by pointing out his attendance at practice Wednesday. "The average player wouldn't be out there without a contract," said Gilliam, who later signed after huddling with Finks. "I have pride."

Gilliam's best pro season was in 1972, his first year with the Vikings, when he caught 47 passes for 1,035 yards, an average of 22 yards per catch, and seven touchdowns. He slipped to 26 catches for 578 yards and five touchdowns by 1974 but came back in 1975 to catch 50 for 777 yards and seven touchdowns.

Gilliam entered pro football with the New Orleans Saints in 1967, hen was dealt to St. Louis in 1969.

Pardee left the door open for Adamle to return to the Bears. "Mike Adamle was still not able to play the way he can. He has to strengthen himself." Pardee acknowledged Adamle, who was already passed over by every NFL club when he was waived Tuesday, is a free agent free to make a deal with any club, but said Adamle is welcome to work in the Bears' weight room to regain his strength.

BEAR FACTS: Pardee said he is "planning" on using Walterscheid in Sunday's game if the defensive back is sufficiently healed from an ankle injury . . . That means Gilliam would not dress for the game . . . Pardee said there is a "chance" Wally Chambers would start at right tackle but would see plenty of action regardless of whether he started or not.

Awaited rematch scuttled in Arlington Secretariat

It was learned Wednesday that the much looked forward to Chicago-rematch between Silver Series and Run Dusty Run won't take place Saturday in the Secretariat as expected.

Reportedly, Silver Series galloped fine over the Aqueduct turf yesterday but owner Dr. Ardhie Donaldson opted to try his luck against the likes of Forego and others in the Woodward, instead.

Before leaving for New York yesterday, trainer Oscar Dishman said that if Silver Series received 114 pounds or less for the Woodward then they would have to consider running him against the older horses.

SILVER SERIES will be receiving 19 pounds from Forego. Different strategy is sure to be in the offing for Silver Series after his connections tried to rate him in the Jerome Mile.

The field should look like this: Seth Beller's Qui Native; Robert Billips' True Colors; Maribel Blum's Dreaming Of Moe; Helen Brach's Brach's Hilarious; Elmendorf's Text; Golden Chance Farm's Run Dusty Run; A. U. Jones' Prefontaine; King Haven Farm's Inhibiter; Joe LaCroix's Always Gallant; Mike Navilio and Phio Teinowityz's Flag Officer; W. C. Partee's Best Person; F. J. Sitzberger's That's A Nice, and either Brigadore or O'Gorman from Eugene Cashman's stable.

Jackson's feats put Boston third

Reggie Jackson, George Steinbrenner's colorful and controversial $3 million right fielder, paid his biggest divident to the New York Yankees' American League East pennant drive Wednesday night by clouting a two-run ninth inning homer and making a pair of circus catches which produced a 2-0 victory over Boston and dropped the Red Sox into third place.

The Yankee victory, combined with Baltimore's double-headed sweep over Toronto, vaulted the "Cinderella" Orioles over Boston into second place in the AL East, 2½ games behind the Yankees.

ELSEWHERE IN the American League Wednesday night, Kansas City swept a doubleheader from Oakland 5-4, and 6-0, Baltimore took both ends of a doubleheader from Toronto 6-5 and 4-2, Texas nipped California 2-1 and Cleveland lost twice to Detroit 5-3 and 2-1. Milwaukee was scheduled to play at Seattle later.

In the National League, New York blanked Philadelphia 1-0. Pittsburgh was rained out at St. Louis, while Atlanta at San Diego, Cincinnati at Los Angeles and Houston at San Francisco began later.

John Mayberry stroked three singles and knocked in two runs to extend the Kansas City Royals' club-record and 1977 major league high winning streak to 14 games with a 6-0 second game victory over the Oakland A's for a sweep of their doubleheader.

Al Cowens belted a two-run homer and Tom Poquette added a two-run single to propel the Royals to a 5-4 victory in the first game behind the combined seven-hit pitching of Jim Colborn and Larry Gura.

Major league baseball

LEE MAY DROVE in three runs in the opener and doubled home a run in the second game, helping the Baltimore Orioles to sweep a doubleheader from the Toronto Blue Jays, 6-5 and 4-2.

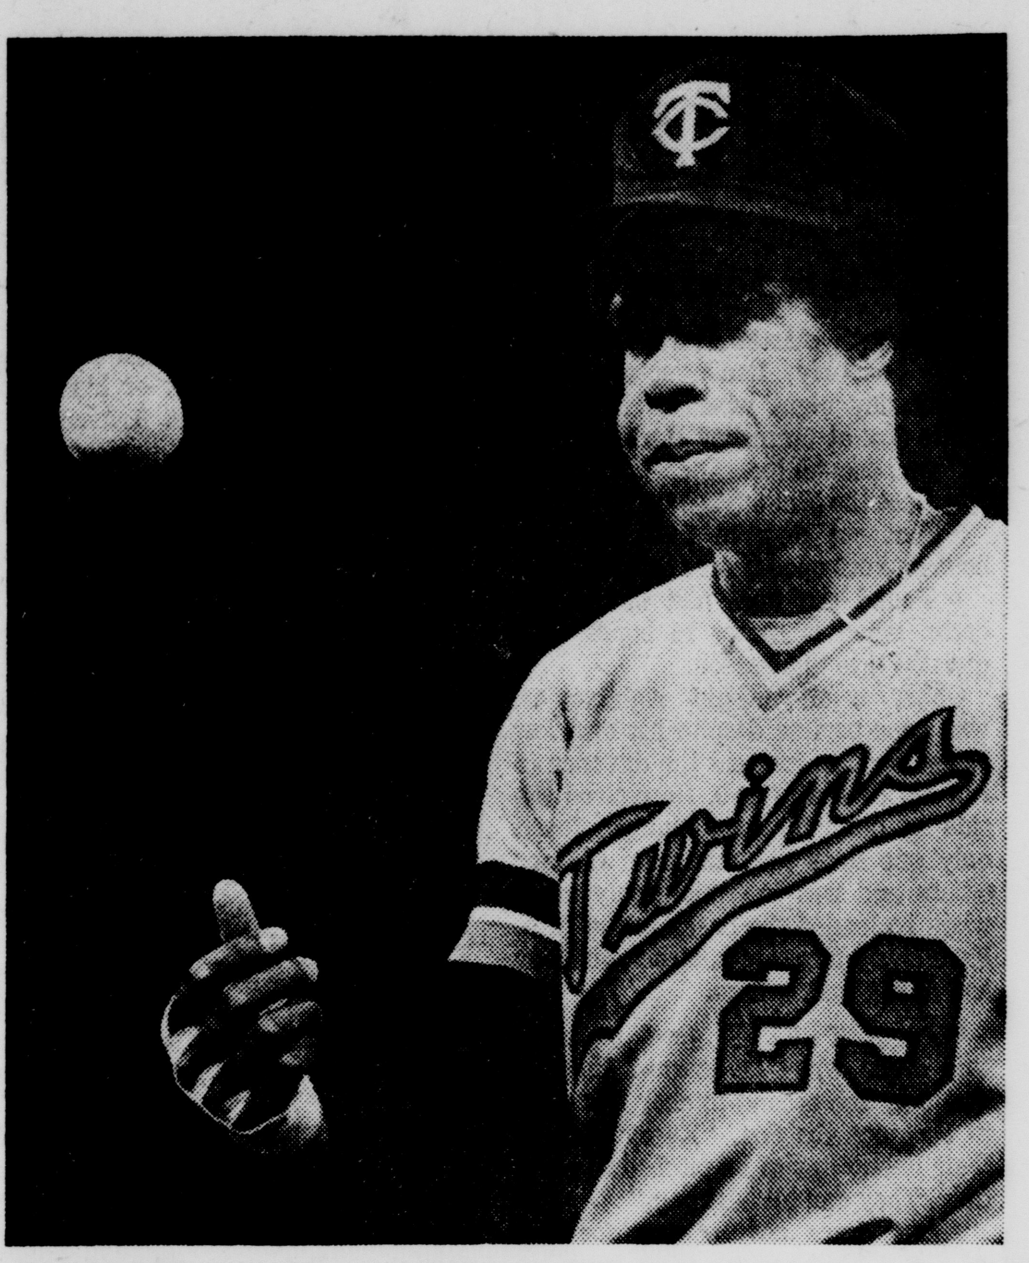
The sweep stretched the Orioles' winning streak to seven games.

Toby Harrah's sixth-inning sacrifice fly provided the winning run and Doyle Alexander survived his own costly throwing error, allowing the Texas Rangers to nip the California Angels 2-1.

Ron LeFlore, who scored the tying run in the eighth inning, hit a sacrifice fly to score Tim Corcoran from third with the winning run in the 10th inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 2-1 victory and a doubleheader sweep over the Cleveland Indians.

Ben Ogilvie had four hits, including his 19th homer, and Jason Thompson became the first Detroit player since 1966 to drive in 100 runs in a season, as the Tigers snapped a six-game losing streak with a 5-3 triumph in the opener.

Winning pitcher Nino Espinosa singled home a fifth inning run and outdueled 21-game winner Steve Carlton to lead the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.



BANDAGED, but not damaged. The major league's leading hitter Rod Carew must use the bandage he wears on his right hand while playing solitaire catch for psychological reasons. He's certainly not hurt as he proved with three hits in the Twins' 7-0 triumph over the White Sox Wednesday night.

North side netters cream of MSL

by VIC NOVAK

Horace Greeley told young men to go west but Mid-Suburban League girls tennis enthusiasts will be heading north this season.

The North here is the MSL's North division. Most observers expect the North to be a much stronger division than the South.

Arlington and Barrington are the reasons why the North is tougher. Both are regarded as the teams to beat in the league.

"I THINK IT'S going to be a tough year being in a division like we are," said Arlington coach Mary Lou Hundt. "I guess I'm happy where I am, because we play the tougher schools. It gives our young people a chance to find out how good we are."

Last year, Arlington was good enough to win the conference championship and tie for sixth in the state meet.

Hundt explained she would not know for four or five weeks if her Cardinals could fly as high again this season.

However, a strong nucleus of returning veterans certainly bodes well for future success. Hundt's team is so deep that the first, second, and third singles positions and the first and second doubles teams are manned by experienced, varsity veterans.

THE GROUP includes Janet Haberkorn at first singles, Kris Richey at second singles and Sherry Weber at third singles. The first doubles team consists of Laura Sanders and Kim Broderick while the second doubles squad features Lisa Pugsley and Beth Klawitter.

It's a talented assemblage. A year ago, Haberkorn won the conference No. 2 singles title while Sanders and Broderick competed in the state meet as singles competitors.

Barrington, a perennial tennis power is new to the MSL this year. Hundt described the Broncos as the league's strongest overall team.

Barrington returns only three players from the team that placed third in the North Suburban Conference last year. They are sophomore Sarah Olson, now at first singles, and the returning, first doubles tandem of Sue Gregory and Tina Stephen. In 1976, Gregory and Stephen made the state tournament quarterfinals.

TWO TEAMS rated as darkhorses in the North are Buffalo Grove and Fremd. Junior Lisa Smart with back to back MSL first singles titles, plus senior returnees Michelle Brusseau, Laura Riforgiato and Rhonda Welch, make Buffalo Grove a definite threat. A strong junior first singles player, Kathy Pfaender, boosts Fremd's chances.

Despite heavy losses, Prospect is the favorite in the South Division race. Four Knights graduated and three switched to volleyball, now that it is a fall sport.

Returning, however, are Lisa Young, Julie Schwen, Carla Rub and Ann Hoffman. Schwen and Hoffman are alternating at the first singles spot while Young and Hoffman will play first doubles.

Schwen, and Hoffman won't be 18 and Under Doubles championship of Paddock Publications' Tennis Tournament. Another Paddock champ, 15 and under girls singles champ Vicki Moore, could help Prospect, too.

Awaited rematch scuttled in Arlington Secretariat

It was learned Wednesday that the much looked forward to Chicago-rematch between Silver Series and Run Dusty Run won't take place Saturday in the Secretariat as expected.

Reportedly, Silver Series galloped fine over the Aqueduct turf yesterday but owner Dr. Ardhie Donaldson opted to try his luck against the likes of Forego and others in the Woodward, instead.

Before leaving for New York yesterday, trainer Oscar Dishman said that if Silver Series received 114 pounds or less for the Woodward then they would have to consider running him against the older horses.

SILVER SERIES will be receiving 19 pounds from Forego. Different strategy is sure to be in the offing for Silver Series after his connections tried to rate him in the Jerome Mile.

The field should look like this: Seth Beller's Qui Native; Robert Billips' True Colors; Maribel Blum's Dreaming Of Moe; Helen Brach's Brach's Hilarious; Elmendorf's Text; Golden Chance Farm's Run Dusty Run; A. U. Jones' Prefontaine; King Haven Farm's Inhibiter; Joe LaCroix's Always Gallant; Mike Navilio and Phio Teinowityz's Flag Officer; W. C. Partee's Best Person; F. J. Sitzberger's That's A Nice, and either Brigadore or O'Gorman from Eugene Cashman's stable.

Jackson's feats put Boston third

Major league baseball

Reggie Jackson, George Steinbrenner's colorful and controversial $3 million right fielder, paid his biggest divident to the New York Yankees' American League East pennant drive Wednesday night by clouting a two-run ninth inning homer and making a pair of circus catches which produced a 2-0 victory over Boston and dropped the Red Sox into third place.

The Yankee victory, combined with Baltimore's double-headed sweep over Toronto, vaulted the "Cinderella" Orioles over Boston into second place in the AL East, 2½ games behind the Yankees.

ELSEWHERE IN the American League Wednesday night, Kansas City swept a doubleheader from Oakland 5-4, and 6-0, Baltimore took both ends of a doubleheader from Toronto 6-5 and 4-2, Texas nipped California 2-1 and Cleveland lost twice to Detroit 5-3 and 2-1. Milwaukee was scheduled to play at Seattle later.

In the National League, New York blanked Philadelphia 1-0. Pittsburgh was rained out at St. Louis, while Atlanta at San Diego, Cincinnati at Los Angeles and Houston at San Francisco began later.

John Mayberry stroked three singles and knocked in two runs to extend the Kansas City Royals' club-record and 1977 major league high winning streak to 14 games with a 6-0 second game victory over the Oakland A's for a sweep of their doubleheader.

Al Cowens belted a two-run homer and Tom Poquette added a two-run single to propel the Royals to a 5-4 victory in the first game behind the combined seven-hit pitching of Jim Colborn and Larry Gura.

LEE MAY DROVE in three runs in the opener and doubled home a run in the second game, helping the Baltimore Orioles to sweep a doubleheader from the Toronto Blue Jays, 6-5 and 4-2.

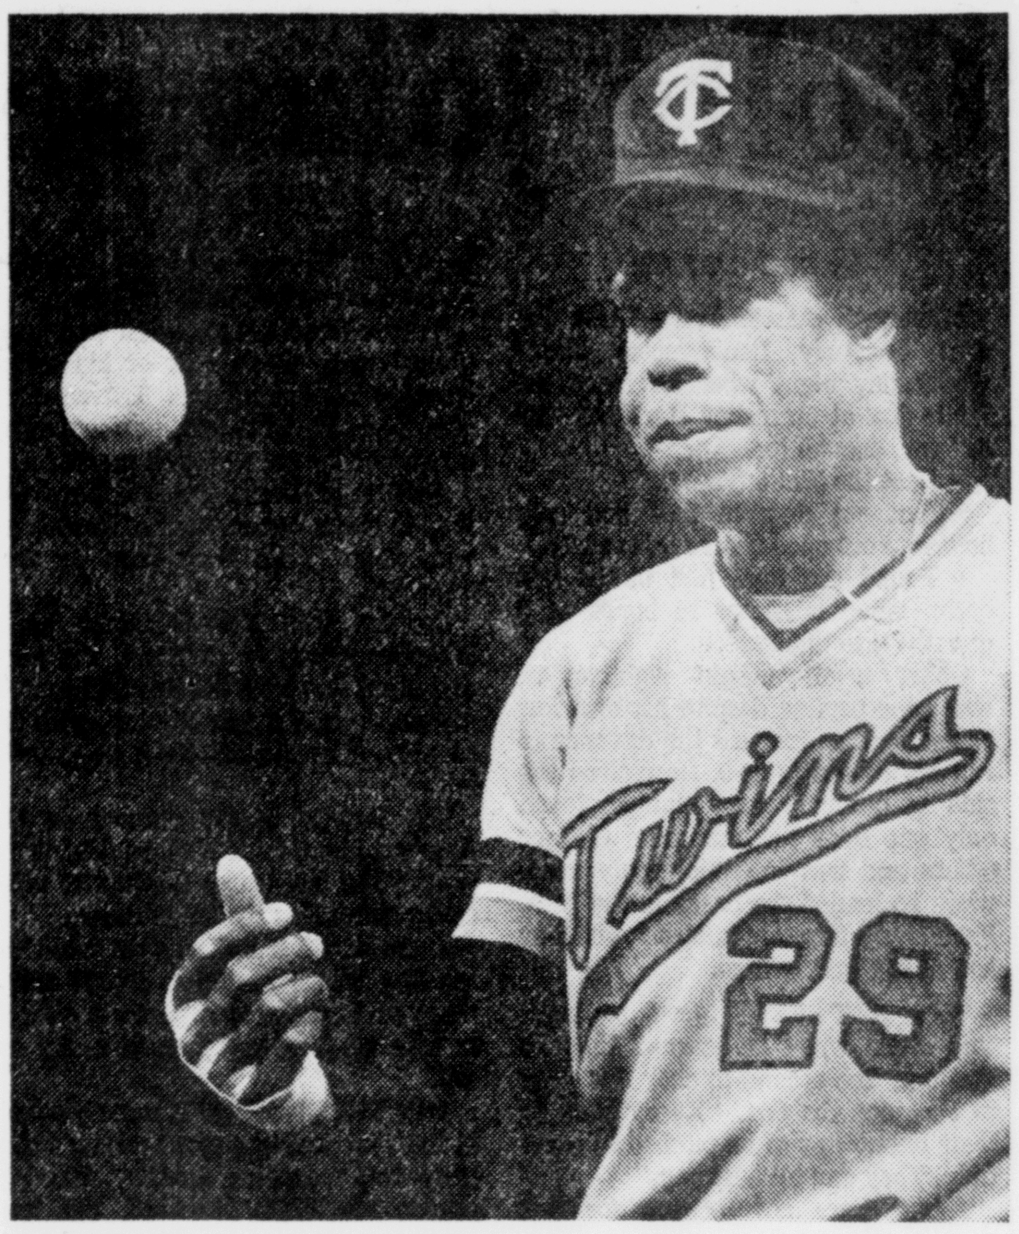
The sweep stretched the Orioles' winning streak to seven games.

Toby Harrah's sixth-inning sacrifice fly provided the winning run and Doyle Alexander survived his own costly throwing error, allowing the Texas Rangers to nip the California Angels 2-1.

Ron LeFlore, who scored the tying run in the eighth inning, hit a sacrifice fly to score Tim Corcoran from third with the winning run in the 10th inning to give the Detroit Tigers a 2-1 victory and a doubleheader sweep over the Cleveland Indians.

Ben Ogilvie had four hits, including his 19th homer, and Jason Thompson became the first Detroit player since 1966 to drive in 100 runs in a season, as the Tigers snapped a six-game losing streak with a 5-3 triumph in the opener.

Winning pitcher Nino Espinosa singled home a fifth inning run and outdueled 21-game winner Steve Carlton to lead the New York Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.



BANDAGED, but not damaged. The major league's leading hitter Rod Carew must use the bandage he wears on his right hand while playing solitaire catch for psychological reasons. He's certainly not hurt as he proved with three hits in the Twins' 7-0 triumph over the White Sox Wednesday night.

It's easy to understand why Sparky's ill at ease

Don Friske

Byline report

There was a Sunday afternoon many summers ago when I stood with a softball and bat and smiled into the face of my own little world.

For on that day I had pulled off some wheeling and dealing that would have made any baseball executive proud. As player-choosing captain on the tiny park district field, I had put together a real powerhouse of a team.

I had a set of good, quick infielders, who always seemed to hit the ball, somewhere in the top spots of the batting order. Plus they were excellent threats on the hit-and-run.

IF THAT did not work, however, I had a cleanup hitter, the tall, slender type with quick wrists. In pregame warmups, he always hit the ball into the parking lot more than 300 feet away.

In the outfield there were a couple of speedy kids who could track down just about anything. And when they did, they had the arms to get the ball to the plate on one bounce.

So when I took the mound as my team's pitcher that day, you can see that I had every reason to be wearing a smug smile. But it didn't last long.

I admit that my pitching abilities weren't the best, but in this game you just hoped to get the ball close to the plate and let your fielders handle the rest. The first opposing batter hit a fly ball to left-center, which I figured would be the first out.

BUT MY two outfielders argued the entire time the ball was in the air about who would handle it, and the result was disastrous as it fell to the ground.

Then, on the next play, one of my infielders tried to make a great catch out of a routine popout and again the ball wasn't caught. During all of this, my power hitter just stood in short center field and complained about the heat.

On that day, I learned a valuable lesson about the game of baseball. I realized that a team effort is essential, no matter what type of individual talent you might have on your roster.

Somehow, I failed to put things together and we lost the game by a lopsided score.

BECAUSE OF this memory from my past, I feel compassion when I think about Sparky Anderson and his Cincinnati Reds.

After winning the World Series the last two years, the Reds are currently fighting to stay out of third place in the National League West. The Houston Astros are only 2½ games behind them.

As manager of the team Anderson has put much of the blame on himself when asked about the downfall. He explains that he has all sorts of quality players, but that he hasn't been able to put everything together.

Of course, Cincinnati's pitching has fallen on hard times. The Reds have had to rely on a crew of youngsters and old veterans this year. But they never really had top-notch pitching during the glory years.

LAST YEAR, when they captured the NL pennant, the Reds finished with a team earned run average of 3.51, only fifth best in the league.

This year, that figure has ballooned to 4.32 and dropped five spots in the standings.

But in terms of hitting, the Reds are the same awesome outfit. Entering the final month of the season, they were second in the league with a .274 batting average. They had the top three run-scorers in the league (Joe Morgan, George Foster and Ken Griffey), the leading man in home runs (Foster) and RBIs (Foster) and three of the top five in total hits (Pete Rose, Foster and Griffey).

The division-leading Dodgers had only one player listed in all of the offensive categories combined, yet they were running away with the division.

BOB WATSON of the Astros described his feelings on the down-trodden Reds after his team had clobbered the World Champions 13-4 Tuesday night.

"They had lots of opportunities to score on us, but they couldn't do it most of the time," Watson said, alluding to the Reds' inability to put things together for a unified attack. "It used to be that when the Reds got you down, they would kick you."

This year, though, the Reds have often been the ones who have been kicked.

For now, the Big Red Machine is in need of repair. It is nothing more than a pile of high-quality parts in search of the championship mold it possessed for so many years.

Eight coaches at cage clinic

Eight assistant basketball coaches will headline the Scholastic Coach Pro Keds Basketball Clinic at the O'Hare Kennedy Holiday Inn, 5440 N. River Rd., Rosemont, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The registration fee is $25 for interested basketball coaches.

The eight speakers are Vanderbilt's Roger Couch, Pittsburgh's Fran Webster, Colorado's Terry Traux, Mississippi State's Steve Newton, Detroit's Dave Gaines, Jacksonville's Gerald Oliver, and Indiana's Bob Donewald.

For more information call Larry Leon at 367-3165.

PSHA tryout and draft set Friday

The Prairie State Hockey Assn. will conduct its Sr. "A" amateur hockey tryout and draft Friday at the Northbrook Sport Complex.

Registration begins at 8 p.m. Those interested must be at least 19 years old by no later than Dec. 31, pay a fee of $44 and be prepared to scrimmage.

Forty-one dollars will be immediately refunded to anyone not selected to an association team. Each of the six 18-member teams will play a 25-game schedule with regular-season play beginning Oct. 4.

It's easy to understand why Sparky's ill at ease

Don Friske

Byline report

There was a Sunday afternoon many summers ago when I stood with a softball and bat and smiled into the face of my own little world.

For on that day I had pulled off some wheeling and dealing that would have made any baseball executive proud. As player-choosing captain on the tiny park district field, I had put together a real powerhouse of a team.

I had a set of good, quick infielders, who always seemed to hit the ball, somewhere in the top spots of the batting order. Plus they were excellent threats on the hit-and-run.

IF THAT did not work, however, I had a cleanup hitter, the tall, slender type with quick wrists. In pregame warmups, he always hit the ball into the parking lot more than 300 feet away.

In the outfield there were a couple of speedy kids who could track down just about anything. And when they did, they had the arms to get the ball to the plate on one bounce.

So when I took the mound as my team's pitcher that day, you can see that I had every reason to be wearing a smug smile. But it didn't last long.

HEAVYWEIGHT DATE. When waltzing and hugging didn't work after nine rounds, Ron Lyle tried lunging at Stan Ward in the 10th and got a majority decision. The lackluster workout drew many boos from the Las Vegas crowd.

Norton, Young win Las Vegas tuneups

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Top-ranked heavyweight contender Ken Norton worked up just a little sweat Wednesday night to knock out Lorenzo Zanon of Milan, Italy in the fifth round of a 10-round fight.

Norton, 233, of Los Angeles decked Zanon, 207, twice in the fifth to raise his record to 39-4-0 and notch his 32nd KO.

In the fourth of the five fights Wednesday night, Young scored a surprisingly-rugged 10-round victory over 26-year-old journeyman Jody Ballard.

Young was judged a 47-42 winner by David Moretti and a 47-41 winner by both Harold Buck and Art Lurie. Referee Charlie Roth took one point away from both fighters, taking one away from Young for a low blow and one from Ballard for a rabbit punch.

Aussies spend day altering sails

NEWPORT, R.I. — Superior tactics, masterful sail handling and a note of congratulations from President Carter all figure to help the bid of America's Cup defender Courageous to gain a 2-0 lead today over challenging Australia in the 23rd renewal of this inetrnational nautical classic.

Courageous tactician Gary Jobson's covering strategy paid off for the United States Tuesday as the defender beat the Aussies by one minute and 48 seconds in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

The Aussies blew a lay day Wednesday when they asked for time off to work on altering their jibs to improve their windward performance. With winds gusting at 35-miles an hour, and seas at 4 - 8 feet, racing would have been called off and the Aussies could have asked for a layover on Thursday to gain more time in their preparations.

Nicklaus, Watson get Ryder nod

LYTHAN ST. ANNES, ENGLAND — U.S. non-playing captain Dow Finsterwald Wednesday paired Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson and benched U.S. Open champion Hubie Green for today's foursomes against Britain and Ireland on the opening day of the Golden Jubilee Ryder Cup match at Royal Lytham St. Annes.

Nicklaus and Watson, who have both won more money this season than the whole of the 12 home team players put together, play the fifth and final match of the day against Tommy Horton and Mark James, Britain's 1976 Rookie of the year.

Finsterwald said his decision to drop Green was a difficult one.

"It was a very painful decision for me. Hubert is our open champion and has played quite well," he said. "But his play at the World Series (of golf) was not too strong and his practice rounds here have not been too strong either."

Fans riot before soccer match

SAINT-ETIENNE, France — English soccer fans did nothing to improve their record of unruly violence Wednesday when Manchester United supporters staged a stadium battle with local supporters just one hour before their club drew a 1-1 tie with Saint-Etienne in the first round of the European Cup Winners' Cup. The battle, which broke out around a crowd of about 100 Manchester United supporters in the south stand of the Goeffroy-Guichard Stadium, left a toll of 33 injured, five of them seriously. Five of those involved were English.

Twenty-five ambulances were needed to take the injured to the hospital. Three companies of riot police from the surrounding cities of Lyon, Clermont-Ferrand and Montelimar, waited half an hour as fists, kicks and beer bottles flew between the warring camps before moving in to eject about 100 people from the stadium and make scores of arrests.

HEAVYWEIGHT DATE. When waltzing and hugging didn't work after nine rounds, Ron Lyle tried lunging at Stan Ward in the 10th and got a majority decision. The lackluster workout drew many boos from the Las Vegas crowd.

Norton, Young win Las Vegas tuneups

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Top-ranked heavyweight contender Ken Norton worked up just a little sweat Wednesday night to knock out Lorenzo Zanon of Milan, Italy in the fifth round of a 10-round fight.

Norton, 233, of Los Angeles decked Zanon, 207, twice in the fifth to raise his record to 39-4-0 and notch his 32nd KO.

In the fourth of the five fights Wednesday night, Young scored a surprisingly-rugged 10-round victory over 26-year-old journeyman Jody Ballard.

Young was judged a 47-42 winner by David Moretti and a 47-41 winner by both Harold Buck and Art Lurie. Referee Charlie Roth took one point away from both fighters, taking one away from Young for a low blow and one from Ballard for a rabbit punch.

Aussies spend day altering sails

NEWPORT, R.I. — Superior tactics, masterful sail handling and a note of congratulations from President Carter all figure to help the bid of America's Cup defender Courageous to gain a 2-0 lead today over challenging Australia in the 23rd renewal of this inetrnational nautical classic.

Courageous tactician Gary Jobson's covering strategy paid off for the United States Tuesday as the defender beat the Aussies by one minute and 48 seconds in the opener of the best-of-seven series.

The Aussies blew a lay day Wednesday when they asked for time off to work on altering their jibs to improve their windward performance. With winds gusting at 35-miles an hour, and seas at 4 - 8 feet, racing would have been called off and the Aussies could have asked for a layover on Thursday to gain more time in their preparations.

Nicklaus, Watson get Ryder nod

LYTHAN ST. ANNES, ENGLAND — U.S. non-playing captain Dow Finsterwald Wednesday paired Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson and benched U.S. Open champion Hubie Green for today's foursomes against Britain and Ireland on the opening day of the Golden Jubilee Ryder Cup match at Royal Lytham St. Annes.

Nicklaus and Watson, who have both won more money this season than the whole of the 12 home team players put together, play the fifth and final match of the day against Tommy Horton and Mark James, Britain's 1976 Rookie of the year.

Finsterwald said his decision to drop Green was a difficult one.

"It was a very painful decision for me. Hubert is our open champion and has played quite well," he said. "But his play at the World Series (of golf) was not too strong and his practice rounds here have not been too strong either."

SAINT-ETIENNE, France — English soccer fans did nothing to improve their record of unruly violence Wednesday when Manchester United supporters staged a stadium battle with local supporters just one hour before their club drew a 1-1 tie with Saint-Etienne in the first round of the European Cup Winners' Cup. The battle, which broke out around a crowd of about 100 Manchester United supporters in the south stand of the Goeffroy-Guichard Stadium, left a toll of 33 injured, five of them seriously. Five of those involved were English.

Twenty-five ambulances were needed to take the injured to the hospital. Three companies of riot police from the surrounding cities of Lyon, Clermont-Ferrand and Montelimar, waited half an hour as fists, kicks and beer bottles flew between the warring camps before moving in to eject about 100 people from the stadium and make scores of arrests.

Cheap homes?

They're rare in this neck of woods but they are out there if you're willing to look

by DAVE IBATA

Mission Impossible: Find a house for less than $50,000.

Strategy: comb the outer regions of the Northwest suburbs; haunt real estate offices, keeping abreast of the latest listings; and once you find your single-family, detached home for less than that elusive figure, pounce on it before another famished buyer snatches it.

Such is the fate of the home buyer — typically, a young family looking for their first house, or an older couple with an empty nest too large for them to keep — who seeks modest quarters in an exploding real estate market.

WITH PATIENCE and perseverance, one finds homes for less than $50,000. But such homes are an endangered species, disappearing as housing costs soar at an inflationary rate of 10 per cent a year.

Hanover Park, Bartlett and Streamwood still offer specimens of the vanishing species, real estate agents say.

However, said Betty Corr, manager of the Schaumburg office of Homefinders, "By next spring, they'll be gone."

She said, "It certainly is scary to watch. I feel a little bit of sympathy for young people, and I wonder where it's all going to end."

FOR EXAMPLE, she said, a home that sold for $18,000 in 1970 now sells for $48,000.

"It really is getting harder and harder for younger couples to find a house," Ms. Corr said.

Other realty sales persons agree that if a family is determined to purchase a home for less than $50,000, they should buy now.

"This year there's a fair selection" in the Hanover Park area, said Stuart Edinoff, a broker for Hearth and Home Realtors in Hanover Park. He said an average of six under-$50,000 homes a week appear on the market, mostly in Streamwood.

"The farther you go from the city, the lower the prices seem to be," he said.

Annual Household Income	Percentage of all Households	Price Ranges of Affordable Homes	Percentage of Homes Sold in the Listed Ranges (1976) Existing	New
$ 7,000- 9,999	12.7%	$15,039-21,489	16.1%	3.6%
10,000-11,999	9.3	21,489-25,781	7.7	3.1
12,000-14,999	14.3	25,781-32,225	15.0	10.0
15,000-17,499	11.2	32,225-37,596	11.9	13.0
17,500-19,999	9.0	37,596-42,967	11.0	15.7
20,000-24,999	12.3	42,967-53,709	16.0	24.5
25,000-29,999	6.7	53,709-64,450	9.5	14.0
30,000-and more	8.4	64,450-and more	12.9	16.0

HOW MUCH DO YOU earn? And how much can you afford? John Stafford, vice president and director of research for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, made this chart as a guideline for prospective home buyers. It is based on figures from Stafford's organization, the U.S. Dept. of Commerce and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

A LISTING OF homes for sale in the Northwest suburbs last week reported 50 homes for sale in Streamwood for less than $50,000; 15 in Hanover Park; 10 in Hoffman Estates; and 3 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

"In almost any area you could find a home for under $50,000," said Ann Bartlett, realty agent at Thorsen Realtors in Arlington Heights.

"It's not impossible, but you should work through a broker," Ms. Bartlett said.

Baird & Warner Inc., of Chicago, reported during the first six months of 1977 it handled 57 detached single-family homes that sold for less than $50,000 in the Northwest suburbs.

THE 57 HOUSES accounted for 55.8 per cent of the firm's residential sales for less than $50,000; the remainder was distributed among condominiums (29 per cent) and townhomes (14.7 per cent).

The majority of Baird & Warner's under-$50,000 houses were found in the Western and Southern suburbs, which reported 77 per cent and 85 per cent of less than $50,000 residential sales, respectively.

A survey by Baird & Warner of sales in the suburbs and North Side neighborhoods of Chicago reported the firm sold 521 single-family houses for less than $50,000 during the first half of 1977.

"Although it's true that you may not always find the home of your dreams in the most desirable section of town for under $50,000, the fact is that there are many homes in this price level available, which is what the averages conceal," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of the residential sales division of Baird & Warner.

AVERAGE SALES prices of properties handled by Baird & Warner were $93,879 in the Northern suburbs; $81,676 in the Northwest suburbs; $75,487 in the Western suburbs; $58,147 in the Southern suburbs; and $59,317 on the North Side of Chicago, the firm reported.

Average sales price for residential properties in the Chicago area, according to Baird & Warner figures, was $73,965.

What does the home buyer find in the under-$50,000 price range? Examples culled for realty listings for the Northwest suburbs included:

- In Arlington Heights: a 25-year-old, two-bedroom ranch house with a two-car garage, air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting and aluminum construction. Price: $49,900.
- In Hanover Park: a 20-year-old, two-bedroom ranch house with a 1½-car garage, hardwood floors, shag carpeting and vinyl siding. Price: $45,900.
- In Streamwood: an 18-year-old, three-bedroom ranch house with a custom kitchen, new bathroom fixtures and aluminum construction. Price: $42,900.

IN HANOVER PARK one also finds an even rarer animal: a new single-family detached house for $49,900.

The house is a basic design offered by the Illinois Communities Corp./U.S. Home development, Woodlake Trails, on Army Trail Road in southern Hanover Park. It is called the "Farmington," a three-bedroom, one-bath ranch house with a country kitchen and an attached one-car garage.

However, the price for the Farmington is subject to change without notice, said Joe Hassler, sales manager for the developer. Already the home has gone up $8,000 since sales began in May 1976, Hassler said.

Closer to Chicago the home buyer may find a "handyman's special" — a house for less than $50,000 but in need of repairs, said Burt Schoepp, president of Century 21 Northwest Realty Inc. in Des Plaines.

Such homes may cost between $40,000 and $47,000, and usually would be 40- to 60-year-old frame houses, Schoepp said.

"IF YOU CATCH one, it might be an older frame house, a homestead of an older family," Schoepp said. "The

PERHAPS NEITHER house is "the home of your dreams," but both will do for starters if you're looking for a house for less than $50,000. These two-bedroom ranches in Arlington Heights (top) and Hanover Park are typical dwellings one will find in the upper $40,000 bracket.

Tax break in offing? Only if you live outside of Cook

by DAVE IBATA

The Illinois General Assembly has passed a bill designed to give homeowners a break in their property tax assessments, but because of politics, Cook County residents are ineligible for the reductions.

The bill, HB 2195, provides that homeowners will not be assigned higher tax bills because of improvements they make on their properties. It was passed by the legislature earlier this year, and is awaiting Gov. James Thompson's signature.

However, the Cook County assessor's office opposed the bill, and legislators added a provision that exempted counties of more than 3 million persons.

CONSEQUENTLY, COOK County residents — particularly homeowners in the Northwest suburbs — who saw their tax bills go up as much as 50 per cent this year will receive no benefit from the bill.

Sponsors of the bill say they are hopeful the bill will be amended in the next session of the legislature to include Cook County.

The bill, which if signed would become law Oct. 1, states that residents will not be penalized by higher tax assessments because of routine repair and maintenance costing less than $7,500, and made during a 10-year period.

The bill was proposed by a coalition of Downstate taxpayers' organizations working through the Illinois Public Action Council. It was introduced on the House floor in April by Representatives David Robinson, D-Springfield, and Roland Tipsword, D-Taylorville.

IN THE BILL'S final form, Cook County was exempted "because you can only accomplish so much in one session," Robinson said.

"We felt we needed to make a start on this, so we decided to start Downstate," Robinson said.

As for the chances Cook County may be included in the bill's provisions, Robinson said. "I think it will. I think it's the kind of thing that will happen, probably in the next session, probably in conjunction with a whole series of bills to change Cook County's tax assessment procedures."

However, Bob Heineman, a spokesman for IPAC, said, "It would take a great deal of pressure by citizens to put it through the legislature."

LAWMAKERS EXCLUDED Cook County because they believed present assessment policies by the Cook County assessor were adequate, and because the assessor's office balked at increased state controls of its operations, Heineman said.

Current assessment procedures in Cook County give homeowners a four-year grace period after up to $15,000 in improvements to existing structures are made before a higher assessment takes effect, according to IPAC.

And, Heineman said, "(Cook County Assessor Thomas) Tully's office guards jealously its autonomy."

As for whether the bill will be signed by Thompson, "All indications are that it will be," Heineman said.

THE WISCONSIN state legislature recently passed a bill with the same goal as its Illinois counterpart: to provide tax relief for the homeowner who makes improvements on his property.

The Wisconsin law gives a tax credit to offset higher assessments. It will go into effect Jan. 1, barring a constitutional challenge.

Wisconsin State Sen. David Berger, D-Milwaukee, architect of the program, said. "It will contribute to neighborhood stability and it will help eliminate a regressive property tax. This is a credit aimed at the middle class. It is a true middle class tax break."

However, the tax credit will not cover "normal maintenance" such as painting, replacing cracked sidewalks and installing new doors.

MAIN POINTS of the program include:

- The tax credit applies to one or two family dwellings with a full valuation of $50,000 or less.
- It also applies to rental units — single-family or multifamily dwellings worth $75,000 or less.
- No property is eligible if it is less than 10 years old.
- The maximum assessment increase a property owner can claim is $3,000. In other words, if his $35,000 house was improved and then valued at $39,000, he could still only apply the credit to $3,000.

A safety valve is included in the plan to prevent fast-buck operators from taking advantage of it. Homeowners must own their homes for 10 years after first getting the credit.

That is, if a homeowner applied for the credit, got it for the five-year credit period and sold the house after only nine years, he would have to pay the entire cost of the credit he received plus 6 per cent interest per year compounded annually.

Cheap homes?

They're rare in this neck of woods but they are out there if you're willing to look

by DAVE IBATA

Mission Impossible: Find a house for less than $50,000.

Strategy: comb the outer regions of the Northwest suburbs; haunt real estate offices, keeping abreast of the latest listings; and once you find your single-family, detached home for less than that elusive figure, pounce on it before another famished buyer snatches it.

Such is the fate of the home buyer — typically, a young family looking for their first house, or an older couple with an empty nest too large for them to keep — who seeks modest quarters in an exploding real estate market.

WITH PATIENCE and perseverance, one finds homes for less than $50,000. But such homes are an endangered species, disappearing as housing costs soar at an inflationary rate of 10 per cent a year.

Hanover Park, Bartlett and Streamwood still offer specimens of the vanishing species, real estate agents say.

However, said Betty Corr, manager of the Schaumburg office of Homefinders, "By next spring, they'll be gone."

She said, "It certainly is scary to watch. I feel a little bit of sympathy for young people, and I wonder where it's all going to end."

FOR EXAMPLE, she said, a home that sold for $18,000 in 1970 now sells for $48,000.

"It really is getting harder and harder for younger couples to find a house," Ms. Corr said.

Other realty sales persons agree that if a family is determined to purchase a home for less than $50,000, they should buy now.

"This year there's a fair selection" in the Hanover Park area, said Stuart Edinoff, a broker for Hearth and Home Realtors in Hanover Park. He said an average of six under-$50,000 homes a week appear on the market, mostly in Streamwood.

"The farther you go from the city, the lower the prices seem to be," he said.

$ 7,000- 9,999	12.7%	$15,039-21,489	16.1%	3.6%

HOW MUCH DO YOU earn? And how much can you afford? John Stafford, vice president and director of research for the U.S. League of Savings Associations, made this chart as a guideline for prospective home buyers. It is based on figures from Stafford's organization, the U.S. Dept. of Commerce and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

A LISTING OF homes for sale in the Northwest suburbs last week reported 50 homes for sale in Streamwood for less than $50,000; 15 in Hanover Park; 10 in Hoffman Estates; and 3 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

"In almost any area you could find a home for under $50,000," said Ann Bartlett, realty agent at Thorsen Realtors in Arlington Heights.

"It's not impossible, but you should work through a broker," Ms. Bartlett said.

Baird & Warner Inc., of Chicago, reported during the first six months of 1977 it handled 57 detached single-family homes that sold for less than $50,000 in the Northwest suburbs.

THE 57 HOUSES accounted for 55.8 per cent of the firm's residential sales for less than $50,000; the remainder was distributed among condominiums (29 per cent) and townhomes (14.7 per cent).

The majority of Baird & Warner's under-$50,000 houses were found in the Western and Southern suburbs, which reported 77 per cent and 85 per cent of less than $50,000 residential sales, respectively.

A survey by Baird & Warner of sales in the suburbs and North Side neighborhoods of Chicago reported the firm sold 521 single-family houses for less than $50,000 during the first half of 1977.

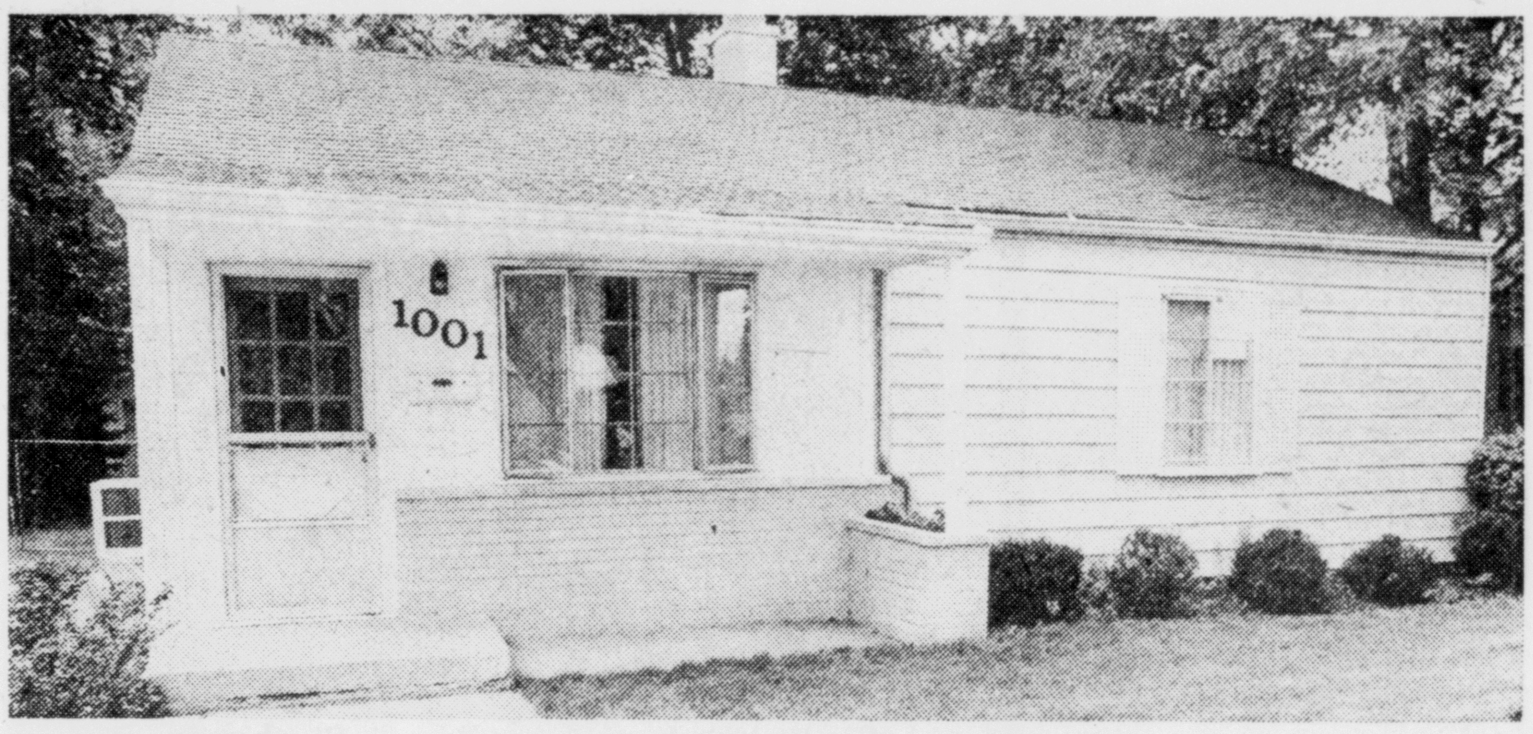
"Although it's true that you may not always find the home of your dreams in the most desirable section of town for under $50,000, the fact is that there are many homes in this price level available, which is what the averages conceal," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of the residential sales division of Baird & Warner.

AVERAGE SALES prices of properties handled by Baird & Warner were $93,879 in the Northern suburbs; $81,676 in the Northwest suburbs; $75,487 in the Western suburbs; $58,147 in the Southern suburbs; and $59,317 on the North Side of Chicago, the firm reported.

Average sales price for residential properties in the Chicago area, according to Baird & Warner figures, was $73,965.

What does the home buyer find in the under-$50,000 price range? Examples culled for realty listings for the Northwest suburbs included:

- In Arlington Heights: a 25-year-old, two-bedroom ranch house with a two-car garage, air conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting and aluminum construction. Price: $49,900.
- In Hanover Park: a 20-year-old, two-bedroom ranch house with a 1½-car garage, hardwood floors, shag carpeting and vinyl siding. Price: $45,900.
- In Streamwood: an 18-year-old, three-bedroom ranch house with a custom kitchen, new bathroom fixtures and aluminum construction. Price: $42,900.



PERHAPS NEITHER house is "the home of your dreams," but both will do for starters if you're looking for a house for less than $50,000. These two-bedroom ranches in Arlington Heights (top) and Hanover Park are typical dwellings one will find in the upper $40,000 bracket.

IN HANOVER PARK one also finds an even rarer animal: a new single-family detached house for $49,900.

The house is a basic design offered by the Illinois Communities Corp./U.S. Home development, Woodlake Trails, on Army Trail Road in southern Hanover Park. It is called the "Farmington," a three-bedroom, one-bath ranch house with a country kitchen and an attached one-car garage.

However, the price for the Farmington is subject to change without notice, said Joe Hassler, sales manager for the developer. Already the home has gone up $8,000 since sales began in May 1976, Hassler said.

Closer to Chicago the home buyer may find a "handyman's special" — a house for less than $50,000 but in need of repairs, said Burt Schoepp, president of Century 21 Northwest Realty Inc. in Des Plaines.

Such homes may cost between $40,000 and $47,000, and usually would be 40- to 60-year-old frame houses, Schoepp said.

"IF YOU CATCH one, it might be an older frame house, a homestead of an older family," Schoepp said. "The

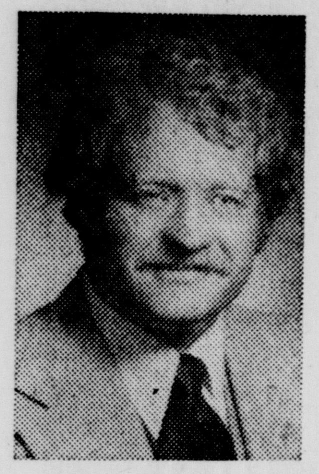
Million dollar club



Peter Jensen

T. A. Bolger, Realtors' Hoffman Estates office announced that Peter Jensen has sold $2,750,000 of residential real estate after being in the business one year.

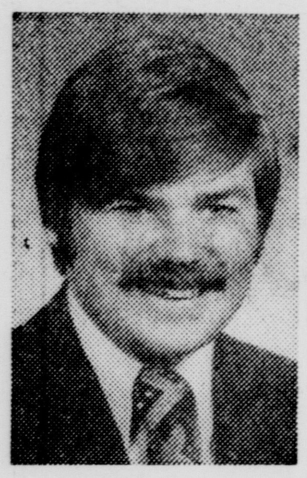
Jensen, who resides in Hoffman Estates, and specializes in investment properties, has sold more real estate than any new salesman in the 11-year history of the company.

Six sales associates with Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, Des Plaines residential office, passed the $1 million mark in real estate sales during the first six months of 1977, leading the firm to a record in total sales for the period. Million Dollar Club members are Anne Georges, Fran Mills, G.R.I., Penny Savage, G.R.I., Woody Squassoni, G.R.I., Elaine Pekarek, G.R.I., and William C. Danielson, G. R. I. Doug DeCremer, G.R.I., achieved million dollar sales status for 1977 in July. All seven have now qualified for membership in the Million Dollar Sales Club of the Illinois Association of Realtors for 1977, and all but Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Pekarek are eligible for life membership. All seven Kunkel sales associates are Realtor Associate members of Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. Mrs. Savage is a Mount Prospect resident. The others are all residents of Des Plaines.

Richard B. Wilson, a sales associate with Koenig & Strey Realtors' Palatine office, has again sold over $1 million in residential property.

Wilson, a veteran in the real estate field since 1970, affiliated with Koenig & Strey in March.

A resident of Barrington for 10 years, Wilson and his wife Marie, an avid racquetball enthusiast, are British born and raised and came to the United States in 1953. They have two children, Laura and Andrew, who attend Fremd HS. The Wilsons are members of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Barrington Hills.



Al Lindeman

Al Lindeman, associate broker in the Schaumburg office of T. A. Bolger Realtors, has exceeded the million dollar mark in residential sales for 1977.

This is the second consecutive year Lindeman has achieved this sales record. He has been a resident of the Schaumburg area for the past four years. He is also an active member of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Schaumburg.

kids really don't want the old house, and the house has been neglected."

"Those are very, very few and far between, and usually they're snapped up so fast they don't even have time to get on the computer," Schoepp said.

"Some Realtors may buy them as an investment for themselves," Schoepp said. However, he said, such houses usually are purchased by "a young couple as their very first house, and they would really enjoy fixing up a home like that because everything they do to that house would be their own."

Farther out, one typically finds for under $50,000 a two- or three-bedroom house about 15 years old, with a large kitchen-eating area, no dining room, an attached 1½-car garage and kitchen appliances, Ms. Bartlett said.

BUYERS ARE usually younger families, she said.

"They're not going to buy their dream house," Ms. Bartlett said. "They're not going to be buying the house they'll live in forever."

The couple likely will stay with their inexpensive home for three to five years, and take the equity they accumulate on their house to buy a larger, more expensive home, she said.

Million dollar club

Peter Jensen

T. A. Bolger, Realtors' Hoffman Estates office announced that Peter Jensen has sold $2,750,000 of residential real estate after being in the business one year.

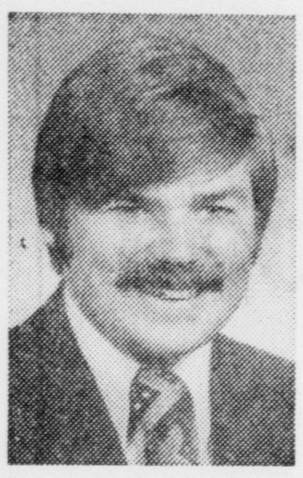
Jensen, who resides in Hoffman Estates, and specializes in investment properties, has sold more real estate than any new salesman in the 11-year history of the company.

Six sales associates with Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, Des Plaines residential office, passed the $1 million mark in real estate sales during the first six months of 1977, leading the firm to a record in total sales for the period. Million Dollar Club members are Anne Georges, Fran Mills, G.R.I., Penny Savage, G.R.I., Woody Squassoni, G.R.I., Elaine Pekarek, G.R.I., and William C. Danielson, G. R. I. Doug DeCremer, G.R.I., achieved million dollar sales status for 1977 in July. All seven have now qualified for membership in the Million Dollar Sales Club of the Illinois Association of Realtors for 1977, and all but Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Pekarek are eligible for life membership. All seven Kunkel sales associates are Realtor Associate members of Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. Mrs. Savage is a Mount Prospect resident. The others are all residents of Des Plaines.

Richard B. Wilson, a sales associate with Koenig & Strey Realtors' Palatine office, has again sold over $1 million in residential property.

Wilson, a veteran in the real estate field since 1970, affiliated with Koenig & Strey in March.

A resident of Barrington for 10 years, Wilson and his wife Marie, an avid racquetball enthusiast, are British born and raised and came to the United States in 1953. They have two children, Laura and Andrew, who attend Fremd HS. The Wilsons are members of St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Barrington Hills.



Al Lindeman

Al Lindeman, associate broker in the Schaumburg office of T. A. Bolger Realtors, has exceeded the million dollar mark in residential sales for 1977.

This is the second consecutive year Lindeman has achieved this sales record. He has been a resident of the Schaumburg area for the past four years. He is also an active member of the Church of the Holy, Spirit in Schaumburg.

Cheap homes? You gotta hunt

kids really don't want the old house, and the house has been neglected."

"Those are very, very few and far between, and usually they're snapped up so fast they don't even have time to get on the computer," Schoepp said.

"Some Realtors may buy them as an investment for themselves," Schoepp said. However, he said, such houses usually are purchased by "a young couple as their very first house, and they would really enjoy fixing up a home like that because everything they do to that house would be their own."

Farther out, one typically finds for under $50,000 a two- or three-bedroom house about 15 years old, with a large kitchen-eating area, no dining room, an attached 1½-car garage and kitchen appliances, Ms. Bartlett said.

BUYERS ARE usually younger families, she said.

"They're not going to buy their dream house," Ms. Bartlett said. "They're not going to be buying the house they'll live in forever."

The couple likely will stay with their inexpensive home for three to five years, and take the equity they accumulate on their house to buy a larger, more expensive home, she said.

Loan plan for inner-city residents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to stimulate home purchases in inner-city areas, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is proposing changes in some rules for home loans.

The first of two proposed amendments announced by Chairman Robert H. McKinney would permit federally chartered savings and loan associations to make loans in excess of 80 per cent of house value on two-family dwellings.

An agency spokesman said the regulation would allow persons with less than 20 per cent in down payment money to buy duplex homes and use the rent from one of the units for mortgage payments. The "double-decker, older homes" in cities such as Boston and Worcester, Mass., were cited as examples of homes that could benefit by the change.

THE SECOND proposal would permit savings and loan associations to make more loans to persons with 20 per cent or less in house down payment funds. Under present regulations the associations can put no more than 30 per cent of their assets into such "high risk" loans, the spokesman said.

The new proposal would increase the amount to 50 per cent.

"The board believes," McKinney said, "that these changes are needed to encourage home ownership, principally in inner-city areas where low- and moderate-income families may use the rental income from the second units to make their mortgage payments."

McKey, Poague adds 1,400 units

The property management division of McKey & Poague Inc. has announced more than 1,400 new units were added to the division during the first half of 1977, a record for the firm.

Among the new accounts is The Baybrook Condominiums with 178 units in Palatine.

Other new accounts included The Park of River Oaks in Calumet City, 578 units; The Stonebridge Condominiums in Hazel Crest, 128 units; The Tamarac Condominiums in Flossmoor, 75 units; The Pattington Condominiums in Chicago, 94 units; and North Park Towers, Chicago, 125 units.

McKey & Poague has central offices in Chicago and six branch offices in the Chicago area. The firm is planning to open a seventh branch office in Des Plaines.

Loan plan for inner-city residents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to stimulate home purchases in inner-city areas, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is proposing changes in some rules for home loans.

The first of two proposed amendments announced by Chairman Robert H. McKinney would permit federally chartered savings and loan associations to make loans in excess of 80 per cent of house value on two-family dwellings.

An agency spokesman said the regulation would allow persons with less than 20 per cent in down payment money to buy duplex homes and use the rent from one of the units for mortgage payments. The "double-decker, older homes" in cities such as Boston and Worcester, Mass., were cited as examples of homes that could benefit by the change.

THE SECOND proposal would permit savings and loan associations to make more loans to persons with 20 per cent or less in house down payment funds. Under present regulations the associations can put no more than 30 per cent of their assets into such "high risk" loans, the spokesman said.

The new proposal would increase the amount to 50 per cent.

"The board believes," McKinney said, "that these changes are needed to encourage home ownership, principally in inner-city areas where low- and moderate-income families may use the rental income from the second units to make their mortgage payments."

McKey, Poague adds 1,400 units

The property management division of McKey & Poague Inc. has announced more than 1,400 new units were added to the division during the first half of 1977, a record for the firm.

Real estate testing plan approved by Thompson

A pilot program that could save up to 30 per cent of the current cost of licensing real estate salesmen and brokers in Illinois has been signed into law by Gov. James R. Thompson.

SB-1264, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader David C. Shapiro, R-Amboy, will allow real estate license applicants to be tested by outside testing services, rather than the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

The department will approve all testing and scoring procedures of testing services before they are allowed to give the tests.

Thompson said that if the outside testing program is successful administratively, he will ask the legislature for similar provisions in the testing of other professions.

Licensing and testing of real estate salesmen and brokers and the licensing and testing of nurses are the two largest licensing operations undertaken by the department, Thompson said.

Thompson based his estimates of potential savings on the fact that about a third of those who take the real estate examinations fail.

"When the applicants contract on their own for taking these examinations, it will mean that the present state cost of administering these tests can be eliminated," he said.

Thompson said applicants for real estate licenses would benefit because they will be able to take examinations at their own convenience, rather than waiting for the periodic department tests.

Real estate testing plan approved by Thompson

A pilot program that could save up to 30 per cent of the current cost of licensing real estate salesmen and brokers in Illinois has been signed into law by Gov. James R. Thompson.

SB-1264, sponsored by Senate Minority Leader David C. Shapiro, R-Amboy, will allow real estate license applicants to be tested by outside testing services, rather than the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

The department will approve all testing and scoring procedures of testing services before they are allowed to give the tests.

Thompson said that if the outside testing program is successful administratively, he will ask the legislature for similar provisions in the testing of other professions.

Licensing and testing of real estate salesmen and brokers and the licensing and testing of nurses are the two largest licensing operations undertaken by the department, Thompson said.

Thompson based his estimates of potential savings on the fact that about a third of those who take the real estate examinations fail.

"When the applicants contract on their own for taking these examinations, it will mean that the present state cost of administering these tests can be eliminated," he said.

Thompson said applicants for real estate licenses would benefit because they will be able to take examinations at their own convenience, rather than waiting for the periodic department tests.

Don't be afraid to speak up, put complaint in writing

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

Nowadays people are intimidated by many things because they don't understand how they can protect themselves. They're afraid of their doctors, their lawyers and their landlords, among other things.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am a widow and live in an apartment that I like very much. When I took it four years ago, I had no idea that I was living directly under the swimming pool, which is located on the roof of the building.

I first learned of it when my next-door neighbor met me in the hall and poured out her tale of woe. It had leaked from the pool into her apartment while she was at work, and her couch and another piece of furniture had been ruined. According to her, the building management claimed no responsibility.

Later in the summer I opened one of the cabinets in my kitchen and was amazed to find all the glasses filled with water, and running over. I telephoned the manager of the building immediately and he sent up a maintenance man to clean out the cabinet. But I don't think anything's been done to correct the leak. I'm afraid to leave the apartment for fear it will happen again there or somewhere else.

What recourse do I have? — Living in Fear.

In additiion to contacting the manager, superintendent or landlord by telephone (as you did), you should put your complaint in writing.

Call attention to the landlord that he is overlooking a potentially risky problem. Describe the repair or maintenance problem which could create that risky situation. Detail what steps you would like him to take to rectify the problem.

Contrary to what many people think, most landlords are reliable, honest people. Don't be afraid to speak up and state your problem. If it is not followed through, then you can resort to advising your landlord that he will be held liable if damage is sustained by you.

Dear. Mr. Meltzer: I remember reading a long time ago in one of your columns the difference between condominium and cooperative housing. However, at that time I wasn't interested myself, so I didn't absorb it carefully.

Now my husband and I are thinking seriously of selling our house and moving to a condominium or cooperative building. Maybe we sound a little retarded to you because we're not sure which is which, but we hope not.

Can you clarify this for us? — Not Too Bright.

You needn't feel uninformed. Many people ask me the same question.

In condominium housing, individuals take title to their own particular units, on which they are taxed separately. Theye may or may not have mortgages, and individuals vote on a proportionate basis.

In cooperative housing, each individual has a stock ownership and the right to live in a unit. They pay their share of the taxes in their monthly carrying charges. The mortgage covers all the units — not just yours. Each individual has one vote, regardless of the size of his unit.

Condominium housing has become more popular than cooperative because many cooperative owners might not be able to make the monthly payments during a depression or recession, which could result in the corporation being foreclosed for failure to pay mortgage or tax payments.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have long been under the impression that a property always had a definite "fair market value." But something has happened that has me very "fuzzy" on this point.

Our house is about to be sold. Remembering your advice, I had it appraised by a professional real estate appraiser. He placed its value at $50,000. My real estate broker says he can get more than that because he has sensational banking connections.

I'm more than confused. Help me out on this. — Befuddled.

It is true that the price of a house is very definitely affected by the mortgage terms which are available. And if your broker has "sensational banking connections," he may be right.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My father-in-law died recently and left his house to my husband, his only child. There isn't much in it that's worth a great deal, but there is a lovely old table I always liked.

However, it has pretty deep scratches and nicks in it. Is there any way we can fill these in without resorting to a professional refinisher? We're a little short on funds, and if we can't do it ourselves, I'm afraid we'll have to cover up the dents and scratches with little ash trays or knick knacks — or not use the table at all until our ship comes in. — Give Us a Hint.

I don't think it would be a difficult job to restore the table to its original beauty. You will need to buy a putty stick in the same color tone as the table. Naturally, you'll have to have a putty knife, a soft cloth, furniture polish containing oil and a razor blade in a holder.

Using the furniture polish, rub over the entire surface of the table until it is dry. Then rub the putty stick over the scratches, nicks and dents. Keep turning the stick as you go. Build up the rubbed material in the nicks until it is higher than the surface surrounding it. Press the filler into the spaces with the putty knife.

Using the razor blade, scrape excess filler away so that it is even with the surface of the table, being careful not to scrape the finish of the table. Then repolish.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When we were looking at sample houses, before we bought our house, I was very much taken with the den in one of them. The walls wer cork and gave a very stunning appearance.

We'd like to do the walls in our den with cork — and several people told us that it isn't hard to do, nor is it expensive. What do you say? — Ready to Go.

You can buy cork squares with self-adhesive backs. They are very easy to install. All you do is press them into place.

There are also cork squares which are less expensive than the ones with self-adhesive backs. They can be cemented to the wall with floor-tile adhesive.

80 per cent occupancy

After a year of sales, the builders of the twin 13-story Oak Brook Regency Towers have reported the $25 million office buildings are more than 80 per cent occupied.

Tenants include Shell Oil, the RCA Records Division, Spiegel Co. and Local Loan, said a spokesman for the complex at 1415 W. 22nd St., Oak Brook.

The towers are owned by First Mortgage Investors of Miami Beach, Fla. Leasing agent is Romanek-Golub and Co.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

Nowadays people are intimidated by many things because they don't understand how they can protect themselves. They're afraid of their doctors, their lawyers and their landlords, among other things.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am a widow and live in an apartment that I like very much. When I took it four years ago, I had no idea that I was living directly under the swimming pool, which is located on the roof of the building.

I first learned of it when my next-door neighbor met me in the hall and poured out her tale of woe. It had leaked from the pool into her apartment while she was at work, and her couch and another piece of furniture had been ruined. According to her, the building management claimed no responsibility.

Later in the summer I opened one of the cabinets in my kitchen and was amazed to find all the glasses filled with water, and running over. I telephoned the manager of the building immediately and he sent up a maintenance man to clean out the cabinet. But I don't think anything's been done to correct the leak. I'm afraid to leave the apartment for fear it will happen again there or somewhere else.

What recourse do I have? — Living in Fear.

In additiion to contacting the manager, superintendent or landlord by telephone (as you did), you should put your complaint in writing.

Call attention to the landlord that he is overlooking a potentially risky problem. Describe the repair or maintenance problem which could create that risky situation. Detail what steps you would like him to take to rectify the problem.

Contrary to what many people think, most landlords are reliable, honest people. Don't be afraid to speak up and state your problem. If it is not followed through, then you can resort to advising your landlord that he will be held liable if damage is sustained by you.

Dear. Mr. Meltzer: I remember reading a long time ago in one of your columns the difference between condominium and cooperative housing. However, at that time I wasn't interested myself, so I didn't absorb it carefully.

Now my husband and I are thinking seriously of selling our house and moving to a condominium or cooperative building. Maybe we sound a little retarded to you because we're not sure which is which, but we hope not.

Can you clarify this for us? — Not Too Bright.

You needn't feel uninformed. Many people ask me the same question.

In condominium housing, individuals take title to their own particular units, on which they are taxed separately. Theye may or may not have mortgages, and individuals vote on a proportionate basis.

In cooperative housing, each individual has a stock ownership and the right to live in a unit. They pay their share of the taxes in their monthly carrying charges. The mortgage covers all the units — not just yours. Each individual has one vote, regardless of the size of his unit.

Condominium housing has become more popular than cooperative because many cooperative owners might not be able to make the monthly payments during a depression or recession, which could result in the corporation being foreclosed for failure to pay mortgage or tax payments.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have long been under the impression that a property always had a definite "fair market value." But something has happened that has me very "fuzzy" on this point.

Our house is about to be sold. Remembering your advice, I had it appraised by a professional real estate appraiser. He placed its value at $50,000. My real estate broker says he can get more than that because he has sensational banking connections.

I'm more than confused. Help me out on this. — Befuddled.

It is true that the price of a house is very definitely affected by the mortgage terms which are available. And if your broker has "sensational banking connections," he may be right.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My father-in-law died recently and left his house to my husband, his only child. There isn't much in it that's worth a great deal, but there is a lovely old table I always liked.

However, it has pretty deep scratches and nicks in it. Is there any way we can fill these in without resorting to a professional refinisher? We're a little short on funds, and if we can't do it ourselves, I'm afraid we'll have to cover up the dents and scratches with little ash trays or knick knacks — or not use the table at all until our ship comes in. — Give Us a Hint.

I don't think it would be a difficult job to restore the table to its original beauty. You will need to buy a putty stick in the same color tone as the table. Naturally, you'll have to have a putty knife, a soft cloth, furniture polish containing oil and a razor blade in a holder.

Using the furniture polish, rub over the entire surface of the table until it is dry. Then rub the putty stick over the scratches, nicks and dents. Keep turning the stick as you go. Build up the rubbed material in the nicks until it is higher than the surface surrounding it. Press the filler into the spaces with the putty knife.

Using the razor blade, scrape excess filler away so that it is even with the surface of the table, being careful not to scrape the finish of the table. Then repolish.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When we were looking at sample houses, before we bought our house, I was very much taken with the den in one of them. The walls wer cork and gave a very stunning appearance.

We'd like to do the walls in our den with cork — and several people told us that it isn't hard to do, nor is it expensive. What do you say? — Ready to Go.

You can buy cork squares with self-adhesive backs. They are very easy to install. All you do is press them into place.

There are also cork squares which are less expensive than the ones with self-adhesive backs. They can be cemented to the wall with floor-tile adhesive.

80 per cent occupancy

After a year of sales, the builders of the twin 13-story Oak Brook Regency Towers have reported the $25 million office buildings are more than 80 per cent occupied.

Tenants include Shell Oil, the RCA Records Division, Spiegel Co. and Local Loan, said a spokesman for the complex at 1415 W. 22nd St., Oak Brook.

The towers are owned by First Mortgage Investors of Miami Beach, Fla. Leasing agent is Romanek-Golub and Co.

He lifts firm from rags to riches

In late 1974, the directors of L. B. Nelson Corp., a publicly held building and development company, met at their headquarters in Menlo Park, Calif., to decide whether to file for bankruptcy. The country was in the midst of a building slump, and Nelson-built condominiums from California to Virginia were languishing unsold.

Les Nelson himself, voted out as president seven months earlier, called the meeting to order. Determined not to let the company he built die, he threatened to lead a stockholders' suit if the directors voted for bankruptcy. In an hour, he was voted back into the presidency. In another seven months, Nelson took the company from a negative net worth of $9.9 million to a positive net worth of $4.2 million and turned a profit for the first time in a year-and-a-half.

The company has continued its climb back. First-quarter 1977 net earnings were up almost five times from the same period last year. Nelson predicts the company will net $4 million this year.

WHAT HAPPENED? "We were looking at the hole in the doughnut," Nelson says. "We weren't as broke as we had thought."

His contagious confidence lifted company morale, and they were able to see assets that were ignored before. Then, working with lenders all over the country, he exchanged property and stock for debts and soon had his company out of the red.

Nelson Corp. also has returned to its home territory — Arizona, California, and the Pacific Northwest. Nelson says he has no interest in building nationwide again. His goal is to be known as the best quality, best organized, and one of the most profitable ("in that order," he says) building companies on the West Coast.

Also, Nelson has changed his personnel policy. Before 1974, he trained many of his people; now he's taking on "men with proven experience, not good theory." He has hired Colburn Jones, for example, a former New York builder with 20 years experience, as president of his Northern California Division, and Donald Sholz, former president of Sholz Homes of Toledo, Ohii, as president of the new Arizona Division.

"My top people are entrepreneurs," Nelson says. "Most of them had their own building companies before they came to us."

Nelson Corp. is concentrating much of its effort now on securing and developing property — for its own use as well as for other builders — and on bringing down the cost of homes through more efficient use of land. Over the past two years, the company has been researching and designing an adaptation of the basic "fourplex" concept.

THE NEW design will enable the company to build 14 to 18 units per acre, while at the same time preserving the residential character that buyers want, company officials maintain. Nelson expects to build 1,000 of these units in the next 12 to 15 months, and to sell them for as low as $35,000. In contrast, single-family homes in many areas where his company is building average over $75,000, and in some areas approach $100,000.

Nelson thinks the rise in home prices is going to continue.

"Within 10 years, in many areas," he says, "only the wealthy will be able to afford new single-family homes."

Nelson also is beginning to use the "zero lot line" idea in some areas. Zero-lot-line homes ar priced between four-plexes and single-family homes and offer more efficient use of land. Zero-lot-line houses are built on one of the side lines of a lot, giving more usable space than the conventional "postage stamp" configuration. The chief attraction for the builder (and, ultimately, for the home buyer looking for a lower price) is that density averages eight per acre, compared to four for the normal single-family home.

WITH READY-to-build land becoming increasingly scarce, Nelson has relied heavily on option agreements to acquire enough land to meet future construction needs. He sees option agreements as the only way he can secure and control the land he needs quickly and for long periods without assuming burdensome interest costs or the financial risks that outright purchase would involve.

He lifts firm from rags to riches

In late 1974, the directors of L. B. Nelson Corp., a publicly held building and development company, met at their headquarters in Menlo Park, Calif., to decide whether to file for bankruptcy. The country was in the midst of a building slump, and Nelson-built condominiums from California to Virginia were languishing unsold.

Les Nelson himself, voted out as president seven months earlier, called the meeting to order. Determined not to let the company he built die, he threatened to lead a stockholders' suit if the directors voted for bankruptcy. In an hour, he was voted back into the presidency. In another seven months, Nelson took the company from a negative net worth of $9.9 million to a positive net worth of $4.2 million and turned a profit for the first time in a year-and-a-half.

The company has continued its climb back. First-quarter 1977 net earnings were up almost five times from the same period last year. Nelson predicts the company will net $4 million this year.

WHAT HAPPENED? "We were looking at the hole in the doughnut," Nelson says. "We weren't as broke as we had thought."

His contagious confidence lifted company morale, and they were able to see assets that were ignored before. Then, working with lenders all over the country, he exchanged property and stock for debts and soon had his company out of the red.

Nelson Corp. also has returned to its home territory — Arizona, California, and the Pacific Northwest. Nelson says he has no interest in building nationwide again. His goal is to be known as the best quality, best organized, and one of the most profitable ("in that order," he says) building companies on the West Coast.

Also, Nelson has changed his personnel policy. Before 1974, he trained many of his people; now he's taking on "men with proven experience, not good theory." He has hired Colburn Jones, for example, a former New York builder with 20 years experience, as president of his Northern California Division, and Donald Sholz, former president of Sholz Homes of Toledo, Ohii, as president of the new Arizona Division.

"My top people are entrepreneurs," Nelson says. "Most of them had their own building companies before they came to us."

Nelson Corp. is concentrating much of its effort now on securing and developing property — for its own use as well as for other builders — and on bringing down the cost of homes through more efficient use of land. Over the past two years, the company has been researching and designing an adaptation of the basic "fourplex" concept.

THE NEW design will enable the company to build 14 to 18 units per acre, while at the same time preserving the residential character that buyers want, company officials maintain. Nelson expects to build 1,000 of these units in the next 12 to 15 months, and to sell them for as low as $35,000. In contrast, single-family homes in many areas where his company is building average over $75,000, and in some areas approach $100,000.

Nelson thinks the rise in home prices is going to continue.

"Within 10 years, in many areas," he says, "only the wealthy will be able to afford new single-family homes."

Nelson also is beginning to use the "zero lot line" idea in some areas. Zero-lot-line homes ar priced between four-plexes and single-family homes and offer more efficient use of land. Zero-lot-line houses are built on one of the side lines of a lot, giving more usable space than the conventional "postage stamp" configuration. The chief attraction for the builder (and, ultimately, for the home buyer looking for a lower price) is that density averages eight per acre, compared to four for the normal single-family home.

WITH READY-to-build land becoming increasingly scarce, Nelson has relied heavily on option agreements to acquire enough land to meet future construction needs. He sees option agreements as the only way he can secure and control the land he needs quickly and for long periods without assuming burdensome interest costs or the financial risks that outright purchase would involve.

Need a refresher in real estate? Plenty of classes

A person seeking instruction in real estate in the Chicago area will have an abundance of courses from which to choose this autumn.

The Gladstone School of Real Estate will hold a review session open to applicants for the state Real Estate Salesman's License Examination. The session will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the school's headquarters, 390 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The review is open to the public. The fee is $15 for Gladstone students and $25 for others. Applicants previously should have completed the state's 30-classroom-hour requirement for the test, to be held Monday and Tuesday.

Interested pessons should call the Gladstone office at 439-1100.

The Chicago Real Estate Board also will hold a review Saturday for persons taking the state licensing test.

The review session will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for those taking the broker's exam, and from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for those taking the sales exam, at the Leaning Tower YMCA, 6300 W. Touhy Ave., Niles. Tuition is $25.

To enroll, one may call the board at 236-4688.

Courses offered by the real estate board include a 30-hour real estate sales transaction course beginning Monday at the board offices, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

The class will meet from 6 to 9 p.m. Mondays through Nov. 21. Tuition is $110, and includes texts and materials.

The board will offer broker classes beginning this month. Contracts and Conveyances will be taught from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Sept. 20, and from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursdays beginning Sept. 22.

The course is worth 15 hours of credit toward the 60-credit-hour requirement necessary to apply for the state broker's license exam. Tuition is $75.

The Real Estate Education Co. will offer the 30-hour course, Basic Real Estate Transactions, beginning Oct. 4 at the Palatine Howard Johnson's Motor Inn, Ill. Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway, Palatine.

The class will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. A home study program also is offered for those unable to attend classroom sessions.

To register, call the Real Estate Education Co. at 836-4444, or write the company at 500 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers will offer three classes in appraisal at its headquarters at 430 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Course 1-B, Capitalization Theory and Techniques, will be offered Nov. 27-Dec. 9; Course IV, Condemnation, will be offered Oct. 6-15; and Course VI, Investment Analysis, will be offered Oct. 16-22.

Tuition for Course 1-B is $275; and for Courses IV and VI, $225.

The institute also will offer a one-week, accelerated real estate appraisal course, Course II, Urban Properties, Oct. 16-22 at Indiana University, Bloomington. Tuition is $275.

To register, write Director of Education, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, 430 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Kunkel reports sales

William L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, has reported 260 transactions totaling more than $14.6 million for the first six months of 1977.

Ralph H. Martin, president of Kunkel, said the sales represented an 18.5 per cent increase in the number of transactions and a 28 per cent increase in dollar volume over the same period in 1976.

Kunkel, with offices in Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, reported 212 transactions totaling almost $10.5 million during the first half of 1976, Martin said.

The class will meet from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. A home study program also is offered for those unable to attend classroom sessions.

To register, call the Real Estate Education Co. at 836-4444, or write the company at 500 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

The American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers will offer three classes in appraisal at its headquarters at 430 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Course 1-B, Capitalization Theory and Techniques, will be offered Nov. 27-Dec. 9; Course IV, Condemnation, will be offered Oct. 6-15; and Course VI, Investment Analysis, will be offered Oct. 16-22.

Tuition for Course 1-B is $275; and for Courses IV and VI, $225.

The institute also will offer a one-week, accelerated real estate appraisal course, Course II, Urban Properties, Oct. 16-22 at Indiana University, Bloomington. Tuition is $275.

To register, write Director of Education, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, 430 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Kunkel reports sales

William L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, has reported 260 transactions totaling more than $14.6 million for the first six months of 1977.

Ralph H. Martin, president of Kunkel, said the sales represented an 18.5 per cent increase in the number of transactions and a 28 per cent increase in dollar volume over the same period in 1976.

Kunkel, with offices in Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, reported 212 transactions totaling almost $10.5 million during the first half of 1976, Martin said.

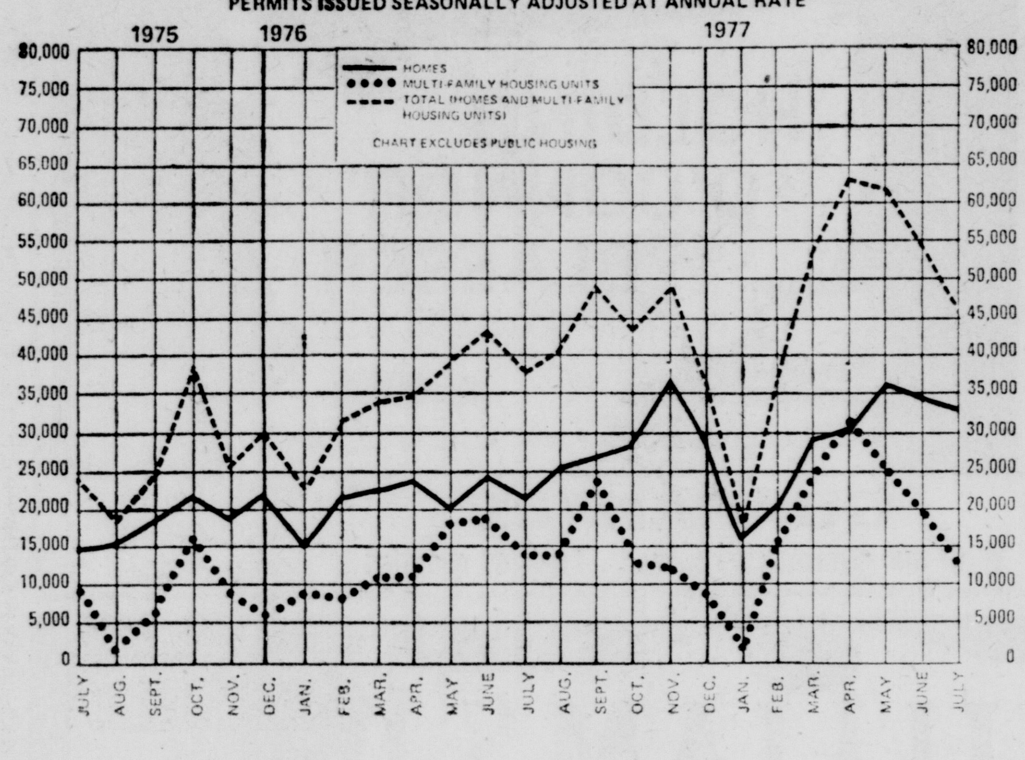
HOUSING CONSTRUCTION INDICATOR
PERMITS ISSUED SEASONALLY ADJUSTED AT ANNUAL RATE



July permits up: Bell

July permits in the Chicago metropolitan area continued on their steady recovery course in homes, but multi-family housing's upturn slowed considerably, according to the Bell Federal Savings Survey of Building.

Permits for single-family homes totaled 3,360 in the entire area, an increase of 39 per cent from 2,410 in July 1976.

Multi-family housing permits resulted in 1,074 multi-family units, an increase of only 3 per cent from the previous July level of 1,047.

Permits issued for both homes and apartments during the first seven months of 1977 totaled 28,367 units, which is 44 per cent ahead of 19,686 housing units reported in the same period last year. Despite the slowing of multi-family housing activity in July, year-to-date comparisons indicate multi-family housing is up 60 per cent while homes increased 37 per cent.

Single-family home permits issued during the first seven months totaled 18,287 compared to 13,382 reported during the same period of 1976.

Multi-family housing activity to date shows 10,080 multi-family units compared with 6,304 units for the same period of last year.

Brings buyers, sellers together

by DONALD B. THACKREY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Marriages may be made in heaven, but not so real estate deals. They are best arranged by deliberately bringing together buyers and sellers.

That's what happened on a large scale in San Francisco recently at an American Real Estate Exchange Market Day.

More than $1.5 billion worth of property was offered for sale in an atmosphere somewhat resembling that of the conventional stock exchange.

ALTHOUGH RESULTS won't be known for months, the day's activity is expected to result in sales totaling about $150 million, according to Gerald Jackson, founder and president of AMREX.

Some 500 pieces of property, each with a minimum value of $1 million, were listed by number for the consideration of the 200 persons in attendance.

The listings included a shopping center in Farmington, N.M., for $2.5 million, a chain of 14 gas stations in Chicago and northeastern Illinois for $1.86 million and an office building in Georgia for $2.17 million.

A prospective buyer interested in these or any other listed properties handed a slip to an AMREX representative with the number of interest to him. The AMREX staff checked identities and paged the prospective buyer and seller, introducing them and giving them privacy to explore the transaction and perhaps begin negotiations. About 800 such introductions are made at each Market Day, Jackson said.

PERSONS OFFERING property for sale must be principals or have exclusive rights to it so, if a buyer and a seller seem to be reaching near-accord, the property can be taken off the AMREX listing.

Unlike the usual stock exchange, however, no actual sales are made during Market Day. Negotiations take time. Attorneys for both parties must draw up agreements and eventual deals must go through escrow.

"Today's results probably won't be complete until about next May," Jackson said. "I believe the average actual time per deal is about 6.2 months."

Jackson started AMREX eight years ago because "real estate was a fragmented market."

Anyone interested in establishing a portfolio of large real estate deals on a national scale had no one place to go. The properties were described locally or regionally "in everything from a one-page flyer to a six-pound documentation," he said.

AMREX WAS Jackson't answer, and it now has offices in San Francisco, Houston, Atlanta, New York and will move into Chicago next month and Los Angeles in November. There are also plans to go international with offices in Canada and elsewhere, Jackson said.

Jackson also plans complete automation of AMREX in 1978 so electronics can keep track of all transactions.

AMREX is a private company, has been expanding every year and "is in the black," he said.

Its income is mainly from a fee of one-half of one per cent on the first million dollars of any deal that results from its introduction of buyer and seller. Above $1 million, the fee is one-quarter of one per cent.

Both buyers and sellers sign contracts that bind them to that fee.

"Also, we monitor the title companies for ownership changes for 18 months after an introduction," Jackson said.

Bath and tennis club

Interim and permanent financing totaling $11,145,600 has been arranged for the 448-unit Deer Grove Bath and Tennis Club near Palatine.

The one-, two- and three-bedroom rental complex will be developed at Quentin Road and Poplar Street by Deer Grove Associates. Financing was arranged by the Chicago office of Banco Mortgage Co.

General contractor is Transcontinental Development Co. Architects and Planners International is the architect.

A simple design for a sandbox

Herman Baum

The house doctor

Dear House Doctor: I recently obtained plans for building a sandbox from a lumber company, but they are too involved for my purpose. Two sheets of plywood are required for its construction and I think it is too much work for the two or three years before my children outgrow it. Do you have a plan that is less involved?—S.S.M.

I did not have a plan, but your request was a challenge and I set to work to build a sandbox using only one sheet of plywood. I almost succeeded.

Unless I designed the box too shallow to be very practical, I could not squeeze out enough material for the two side pieces of the canopy, so you will have to buy extra scrap material for these. The canopy is intended to be lowered as a cover for when the box is not being used.

The material for construction is 5/8-inch exterior grade plywood. In addition, you will require three pressure-treated 2 by 4s to support the box above the earth, 2 by 3s for the vertical supports for the canopy and 1 by 2s for the ends of the canopy and for holding the awning canvas in place.

The floor of the box is 48 by 42 inches. Drill several half-inch holes in the floor and cover these with fine wire screen. The four sides of the box are nailed to the edges of the box floor.

Fill cut edges of the plywood with wood putty and paint with two coats of exterior oil base paint.

Dear House Doctor; My toilet does not flush properly. There does not seem to be enough water in the tank, so I have to pour a bucket of water into the bowl while it is flushing to make it empty properly. — A.M.

A toilet tank should fill to within one inch of the top of the overflow pipe and it seems that yours does not. The remedy, though, is very simple.

The water heights is controlled by the large ball float which operates through several levers to close the filling valve when the proper water level is reached. With both hands, grasp the rod to which the float is attached and bend the float end up a little at a time until it shuts off at the proper level.

I have an illustrated bulletin that explains many toilet tank operation problems. A copy is available by sending 15 cents in coin (no stamps or checks, please) and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to the House Doctor, in care of Real Estate, Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Ask for Bulletin No. J-163. I must have the stamped, return envelope to fill your order.

Dear House Doctor: My home is equipped with a circulating hot water heating system. In summer, when the boiler is used only for heating water, several radiators remain warm. What's wrong?—Mrs. D.S.P.

If the heating system did not have a circulating pump, hot water would rise in the pipes due to convection. Normally, the pump provides sufficient obstruction to prevent this from happening when the pump is not in operation. Apparently, the pump is not performing this function.

Dear House Doctor: I have asbestos-cement shingle siding on my house, but I want to replace it with either aluminum siding or cedar shingles. One contractor said to leave the siding on as it provides insulation, but another said it must be removed. Who is correct?—Mrs. M.M.

It seems obvious that the first contractor has had no experience in this work. If you attempt to nail any other siding over the asbestos shingles, the shingles will break into a few million postage-stamp-size pieces. The shingles must be removed.

Dear House Doctor: I have asked my husband to build a cedar closet for me, but he said cedar does nothing but make the clothes smell good. Please tell me what the advantages of having a cedar closet are. — Mrs. B.D.

It will make your clothes smell good.

Dear House Doctor: The latch side of a door inside my home drags on the floor when it is closed. I tightened the hinge screws but this did not help.—H.B.D.

Try inserting a cardboard shim beneath one side of the bottom hinge. If this causes the edge of the door to bind against the jamb, remove the shim and saw or plane the bottom edge to provide clearance.

Hearings in capital

Hearings in Washington D.C. on the Federal Trade Commission's proposed rules for Mobile Home Sales and Service have been postponed until Oct. 11. They were scheduled for Sept. 12.

The hearings will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Room 2008, the New Executive Office Building, Washington, D.C. Those wishing to appear at the hearings should contact Charles A. Taylor III, FTC, 6th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

Payments going up, he asks why?

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

Three things are certain in this world — death, taxes and living costs. In the real estate field, taxes and living costs make a formidable pair.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am in a correctional institution so my wife is handling our affairs. She recently informed me that our monthly mortgage payment had gone up for the second time in five years. She said the mortgage company told her that increases in taxes and insurance were the reasons for the raise.

I don't understand this. I was under the impression that a mortgage never went up. At settlement, it was not mentioned that the lender would pay the taxes and insurance. I don't recall reading it in the papers I signed, although I read them carefully. Can a lending institution raise my mortgage if it is assumed to be an amortized mortgage? And can I get my monthly payments back down to where they were? — Mr. P. S.

Except in localities where "variable mortgages" are being permitted, mortgage payments do remain "flat" over the life of the mortgage. Variable mortgages permit the lender to adjust the interest rate up or down, depending on current money rates.

Unfortunately, local taxes, insurance and virtually everything else are going through the roof. Since the lender is impounding money for these "extras," he has to raise monthly payments to offset the increases. If you'll look at the annual breakdown provided you by your lender you'll find that the mortgage itself hasn't gone up.

Yes, it was there in the mountain of stuff you signed. You have to look at it this way, I guess: As painful as the higher monthly payments are, they're preferable to being hit twice a year with tax bills you probably wouldn't be able to meet.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband and I are retiring and getting ready to move to a warmer climate. We have a home and want to sell it to our son, who doesn't have much money, for a token amount and with no interest. A friend, though, says we could get into trouble with the Internal Revenue Service. Is that true? — Mrs. O. T.

Not serious trouble, perhaps, but the IRS doesn't let such benevolence go unnoticed. The difference between what you charge your son and the fair market price will be regarded as a gift. That doesn't necessarily mean that a tax will be involved, though. Also, it doesn't make any difference what interest rate you charge your son. The IRS will regard a 5 per cent interest rate as fair and you'll have to report this as income.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am a single woman with an executive job. After years of apartment living and fighting non-stop rent increases I recently decided to buy a house. The lender rejected my application, though, saying, I didn't "qualify." No other explanation was given.

From talking to married friends who have bought houses, I can't see how my financial situation was any different from theirs. Is it legal to turn me down because I am a single woman? — Ms. M. T. H.

No, and if you can prove your suspicions the lender is on the spot.

Before filing a formal complaint with your state Civil Rights Commission, or the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, though, you might want to notify your lender of your intention and give him a chance to get off the hook.

Dear Mr. Campbell: Do you think it would pay to sue my real estate broker? He recently sold a business property of mine for $45,000, but I discovered after closing that an identical piece of property just a block away was sold for $55,000. I think he owes me the difference. — Mr. G. F.

You can sue anybody, of course, but it sounds like a rough one to win. There's no such thing as "identical" pieces of property. Maybe the guy who paid $55,000 was a sucker.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My new house will be finished in about six months and I'll put my current abode on the market. It has occurred to me that I might have better luck selling the house if I add a small swimming pool to the backyard. Do you think this would pay for itself? — Mr. L.L.

It practically never does — your money would be better spent painting, correcting any obvious defects and generally fixing-up the property. You can "turn off" almost as many prospective buyers with a small pool as you would attract.

If a prospective buyer likes the house and WANTS a pool, he would normally prefer to add it later — of a size and design that HE prefers.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I rent out a house next door to mine and it is occupied by two young men. They pay their rent promptly and keep it in good repair, but I am convinced they are doing something shady. There is a great deal of activity at night with lots of cars coming and going. It's not noisy or too bothersome, but I think they must be dealing in drugs or something. Could I get in trouble if they are arrested? —Mrs. P.L.

Not unless you're a party to it. I think you may be reading too much into this, though. Young people do a lot of "coming and going" without there being anything sinister involved. Maybe they're popular.

Payments going up, he asks why?

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

Three things are certain in this world — death, taxes and living costs. In the real estate field, taxes and living costs make a formidable pair.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am in a correctional institution so my wife is handling our affairs. She recently informed me that our monthly mortgage payment had gone up for the second time in five years. She said the mortgage company told her that increases in taxes and insurance were the reasons for the raise.

I don't understand this. I was under the impression that a mortgage never went up. At settlement, it was not mentioned that the lender would pay the taxes and insurance. I don't recall reading it in the papers I signed, although I read them carefully. Can a lending institution raise my mortgage if it is assumed to be an amortized mortgage? And can I get my monthly payments back down to where they were? — Mr. P. S.

Except in localities where "variable mortgages" are being permitted, mortgage payments do remain "flat" over the life of the mortgage. Variable mortgages permit the lender to adjust the interest rate up or down, depending on current money rates.

Unfortunately, local taxes, insurance and virtually everything else are going through the roof. Since the lender is impounding money for these "extras," he has to raise monthly payments to offset the increases. If you'll look at the annual breakdown provided you by your lender you'll find that the mortgage itself hasn't gone up.

Yes, it was there in the mountain of stuff you signed. You have to look at it this way, I guess: As painful as the higher monthly payments are, they're preferable to being hit twice a year with tax bills you probably wouldn't be able to meet.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband and I are retiring and getting ready to move to a warmer climate. We have a home and want to sell it to our son, who doesn't have much money, for a token amount and with no interest. A friend, though, says we could get into trouble with the Internal Revenue Service. Is that true? — Mrs. O. T.

Not serious trouble, perhaps, but the IRS doesn't let such benevolence go unnoticed. The difference between what you charge your son and the fair market price will be regarded as a gift. That doesn't necessarily mean that a tax will be involved, though. Also, it doesn't make any difference what interest rate you charge your son. The IRS will regard a 5 per cent interest rate as fair and you'll have to report this as income.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am a single woman with an executive job. After years of apartment living and fighting non-stop rent increases I recently decided to buy a house. The lender rejected my application, though, saying, I didn't "qualify." No other explanation was given.

From talking to married friends who have bought houses, I can't see how my financial situation was any different from theirs. Is it legal to turn me down because I am a single woman? — Ms. M. T. H.

No, and if you can prove your suspicions the lender is on the spot.

Before filing a formal complaint with your state Civil Rights Commission, or the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, though, you might want to notify your lender of your intention and give him a chance to get off the hook.

Dear Mr. Campbell: Do you think it would pay to sue my real estate broker? He recently sold a business property of mine for $45,000, but I discovered after closing that an identical piece of property just a block away was sold for $55,000. I think he owes me the difference. — Mr. G. F.

You can sue anybody, of course, but it sounds like a rough one to win. There's no such thing as "identical" pieces of property. Maybe the guy who paid $55,000 was a sucker.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My new house will be finished in about six months and I'll put my current abode on the market. It has occurred to me that I might have better luck selling the house if I add a small swimming pool to the backyard. Do you think this would pay for itself? — Mr. L.L.

It practically never does — your money would be better spent painting, correcting any obvious defects and generally fixing-up the property. You can "turn off" almost as many prospective buyers with a small pool as you would attract.

If a prospective buyer likes the house and WANTS a pool, he would normally prefer to add it later — of a size and design that HE prefers.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I rent out a house next door to mine and it is occupied by two young men. They pay their rent promptly and keep it in good repair, but I am convinced they are doing something shady. There is a great deal of activity at night with lots of cars coming and going. It's not noisy or too bothersome, but I think they must be dealing in drugs or something. Could I get in trouble if they are arrested? —Mrs. P.L.

Not unless you're a party to it. I think you may be reading too much into this, though. Young people do a lot of "coming and going" without there being anything sinister involved. Maybe they're popular.

Lance issue—mismanagement for all

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON — President Carter has privately made the wrenching decision that his Budget Director and personal confidant Bert Lance must go, hopefully in a way that will preserve some dignity for him and recover some credibility for Carter.

Yet, his downfall from his mighty post, equivalent in some respects to Deputy President, is probably something of a mystery to Lance. Against the standards and mores of the banking world in which he was a respected and influential figure, Lance may judge hismelf to be clean.

Despite the appalling pileup of ethical questions and demonstrably unsound practices, one can assume that if Lance had had no political ambitions that brought him to Washington, he would be at the old stand in Calhoun or Atlanta, wheeling and dealing to build his fortune. And no one would be the wiser.

BUT HIGHER standards than Lance's are required of the man to manage the multibillion U.S. budget in an administration whose President suggested the theme, "Why not the best?"

So far, the Carter administration has mismanaged the Lance affair about as badly as Lance mismanaged the affairs of the Calhoun bank. The administration's most incredible act was the attempt to whitewash Lance after Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann issued his first damaging report August 18.

Carter embraced Lance with his now famous line, "Bert, I'm proud of you." And Press Sec. Jody Powell then engaged in a foolhardy and pugnacious defense of Lance, challenging reporters to find anything unethical in Lance's conduct.

There is plenty: — massive overdrafts over an extended period at the Calhoun bank; "kiting" collateral (using the same stock for loans at two different banks); and extensive personal use of his bank's airplane, which may result in a government tax suit. The are, moreover, intimations of a coverup of these and other shady practices from both administration and a Senate committee.

THE GREAT miscalculation made by the White House Aug. 18 was that the issue would fade away because Heimann launched no charges warranting criminal prosecution. But the press and public correctly perceived the Heimann report for the crusher that it really was. Clearly, the President was not well served by his lawyers, who should have been hard-headed enough to give him a full and accurate briefing.

But if the White House tried to stonewall the issue, Lance's old pals in the American Bankers Assn. quickly cut him adrift after Lance chose to defend overdrafts as "typical banking practice."

The Lance family overdrafts were not of the accidental kind where a personal balance may be exceeded by a few dollars for a few days. Over a four-year period, the Lances dipped into the Calhoun bank on a deliberate basis, taking what amounted to interest-free loans for hundreds of thousands of dollars. The practice was stopped only when the government caught up with Lance in 1974.

Bankers, who have long fought regulatory reform, now understand that the Lance affair will provide the wedge for a new examination into questionable banker-to-banker privileges. But they insist that practices such as kiting collateral, or failing to report dealings to his own boards of directors, as required by law — Heimann cites 50 such cases — are anything but typical.

PRESIDENT CARTER and the rest of his Georgia crew are now trying to find a scenario that will be "kind to Bert," and still regain public confidence in the over-all integrity of the administration. It will be tough to do both.

It has become convenient for some apologists to say that Lance "didn't do much that is wrong." Others say that only the excessive morality of the post-Watergate era could have smudged the record of a fine man like Bert Lance.

This conveys an utter blindness to the extensive misbehavior in Lance's private banking role, that is documented in the Heimann reports to a degree unacceptable in pre-or post-Watergate times. It is true, as Lance himself has bitterly observed, that the public airing of charges against him will discourage many businessmen from accepting Washington jobs in the future. There are plenty of people, in all walks of life, who could not stand the scrutiny Lance received. They had best stay where they are.

Carter's best course, as Lance leaves town, is to admit that he misjudged the real case against his friend Bert. Between understandable loyalty to Bert and LaBelle Lance, and the reestablishment of faith in his administration — Carter has no choice.

Avoid 'staff job' trap, women told

NEW YORK (UPI) — The woman who really wants to get ahead in the world of business should learn how to avoid being trapped in a "staff position."

Ambitious men have known this for centuries. They learned it by fighting wars. The officers who commanded in the field got the big prizes of fame and glory. Those who stayed behind the lines and planned had to settle for safety and minor rewards.

Without using the military analogy, Noreen Connell, president of the New York Chapter of the National Organization for Women, warned women that staff positions — in the personnel and public relations departments in particular — are likely to be dead ends. The ambitious woman should look for a "line job," where she is involved in the strenuous and risky business of making the decisions that affect the company's profits and growth.

MS. CONNELL'S advice was echoed by Betsy Jaffe of Catalyst, a national non-profit association that helps women launch and achieve careers. She said to be really successful, a woman must seek the limelight and hunt for a chance to affect profits.

Being sidetracked into a staff job is following the line of least resistance. According to many studies, including a recent one by National Personnel Associates, a group of 182 agencies in 130 cities, women are more likely to be offered management level jobs in personnel, public relations, accounting, data processing and the like. But the big opportunity jobs are in sales, finance and production, Ms. Connell said.

Ruby L. Letsch of Springfield, Mo., the first female president of National Personnel Associates said the woman who wants more of a challenge must be prepared to pay a bigger price for success than many women are. "She must be willing to work to 60 hours a week if that's what the job calls for, she may have to leave her relatives and friends and relocate and perhaps be away from home frequently," Ms. Letsh said.

CHARLES MARKS, executive director of National Personnel Associates, said ambitious women, as well as men, should be more aware of the realities of how management level workers are chosen. Most of the time, he said, the candidate eventually chosen is not the one with the most pleasing personality or the highest motivation and career orientation.

But the press and public correctly perceived the Heimann report for the crusher that it really was. Clearly, the President was not well served by his lawyers, who should have been hard-headed enough to give him a full and accurate briefing.

But if the White House tried to stonewall the issue, Lance's old pals in the American Bankers Assn. quickly cut him adrift after Lance chose to defend overdrafts as "typical banking practice."

The Lance family overdrafts were not of the accidental kind where a personal balance may be exceeded by a few dollars for a few days. Over a four-year period, the Lances dipped into the Calhoun bank on a deliberate basis, taking what amounted to interest-free loans for hundreds of thousands of dollars. The practice was stopped only when the government caught up with Lance in 1974.

Bankers, who have long fought regulatory reform, now understand that the Lance affair will provide the wedge for a new examination into questionable banker-to-banker privileges. But they insist that practices such as kiting collateral, or failing to report dealings to his own boards of directors, as required by law — Heimann cites 50 such cases — are anything but typical.

PRESIDENT CARTER and the rest of his Georgia crew are now trying to find a scenario that will be "kind to Bert," and still regain public confidence in the over-all integrity of the administration. It will be tough to do both.

It has become convenient for some apologists to say that Lance "didn't do much that is wrong." Others say that only the excessive morality of the post-Watergate era could have smudged the record of a fine man like Bert Lance.

This conveys an utter blindness to the extensive misbehavior in Lance's private banking role, that is documented in the Heimann reports to a degree unacceptable in pre-or post-Watergate times. It is true, as Lance himself has bitterly observed, that the public airing of charges against him will discourage many businessmen from accepting Washington jobs in the future. There are plenty of people, in all walks of life, who could not stand the scrutiny Lance received. They had best stay where they are.

Carter's best course, as Lance leaves town, is to admit that he misjudged the real case against his friend Bert. Between understandable loyalty to Bert and LaBelle Lance, and the reestablishment of faith in his administration — Carter has no choice.

Avoid 'staff job' trap, women told

NEW YORK (UPI) — The woman who really wants to get ahead in the world of business should learn how to avoid being trapped in a "staff position."

Ambitious men have known this for centuries. They learned it by fighting wars. The officers who commanded in the field got the big prizes of fame and glory. Those who stayed behind the lines and planned had to settle for safety and minor rewards.

Without using the military analogy, Noreen Connell, president of the New York Chapter of the National Organization for Women, warned women that staff positions — in the personnel and public relations departments in particular — are likely to be dead ends. The ambitious woman should look for a "line job," where she is involved in the strenuous and risky business of making the decisions that affect the company's profits and growth.

MS. CONNELL'S advice was echoed by Betsy Jaffe of Catalyst, a national non-profit association that helps women launch and achieve careers. She said to be really successful, a woman must seek the limelight and hunt for a chance to affect profits.

Being sidetracked into a staff job is following the line of least resistance. According to many studies, including a recent one by National Personnel Associates, a group of 182 agencies in 130 cities, women are more likely to be offered management level jobs in personnel, public relations, accounting, data processing and the like. But the big opportunity jobs are in sales, finance and production, Ms. Connell said.

Ruby L. Letsch of Springfield, Mo., the first female president of National Personnel Associates said the woman who wants more of a challenge must be prepared to pay a bigger price for success than many women are. "She must be willing to work to 60 hours a week if that's what the job calls for, she may have to leave her relatives and friends and relocate and perhaps be away from home frequently," Ms. Letsh said.

CHARLES MARKS, executive director of National Personnel Associates, said ambitious women, as well as men, should be more aware of the realities of how management level workers are chosen. Most of the time, he said, the candidate eventually chosen is not the one with the most pleasing personality or the highest motivation and career orientation.

Expert sees future housing 'boom'

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — With new-home prices soaring straight through the chimney — and prospective buyers smoking mad about it — is the U.S. housing industry itself in danger of serious collapse?

Not in the view of the nation's top home builders, Eli Broad, who tells me he sees just the reverse. Despite heavily publicized inflationary pressures on housing, Broad said, he believes the U.S. is on the verge of a housing "boom" that will increase at a rate greater than the gross national product over the next five years.

The views of Broad, who is chairman of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., are certainly worth heeding. Just 2½ years ago the country's housing industry was in not just a recession but an outright depression; the professional pessimists were predicting that the industry would never again be able to pick itself up from off the financial floorboards. Now, though — to their total surprise — the annual rate of housing starts already has doubled (to just under 2 million) and, even at today's painfully inflated prices, buyers are lining up eagerly in nearly every part of the country.

Broad, whose 20-year-old firm has constructed more than 100,000 housing units in the U.S. and four foreign countries (Canada, France, West Germany and Belgium), cited these factors as contributing to the housing "boom" he foresees:

- The growth of the two-income family, as well as demand for new homes from single and divorced persons. Not only does a working wife add to a couple's home-buying ability, but mortgage lenders now accept her salary as a stable part of the couple's income in determining mortgage eligibility — "an important major change in attitude."
- The introduction of new, innovative financing methods, such as variable-rate mortgages (which adjust to changes in interest rates) and so-ialled FLIP mortgages (a system of graduated payments that allows young home-buyers to start with smaller monthly outlays). This trend toward flexibility is expected to accelerate; for example, proposed revisions in FHA lending guidelines would permit buyers of a $60,000 home to put down as little as $2,500 — versus the $6,750 that today's guidelines require.
- The addition to the new-home market of many present homeowners who have decided to trade up. The new-home area traditionally has been the bastion of the first-time buyer, but as house prices continue to rise it takes on fresh appeal for those who can use their increased equity in their current homes to acquire more expensive new homes — and thus take better advantage of what many see as the average family's "last available tax shelter."

Openings

A new Nautilus strength machine club recently opened in Elk Grove Village.

The Nautilus Fitness Center is the brainchild of fitness expert Arthur Jones. The program uses 25 different Nautilus "time machines" each designed for a different part of the body and valued at over $75,000. The idea behind the patented system combines physics and physiology to put maximum stress on selected muscles for a short period of time without straining the rest of the body. Greater muscle tone is the claimed result of "high intensity" workouts.

Nautilus has gained quite a reputation in the last few years with Dick Butkus promoting it and White Sox third baseman Eric Soderholm offering praises.

Soderholm was almost hopelessly crippled from an accident but worked all winter in Florida on the machines and increased his strength three times. Now even the White Sox have three of the machines in Comiskey Park.

The club is divided into two parts — men and women . The women work on toning, many of the men on strength.

The secret of the Nautilus is the full range of motion with steady pressure applied during the entire lift. That comes from the gear-shaped nautilus shells.

The new club, at Higgins and Arlington Heights roads, is similar to those in Cincinnati and Dallas. Individual memberships are $168, family $298.

Dow gains .18 despite loan rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blue-chip bargain hunters, ignoring Chase Manhattan Bank's decision to raise its prime lending rate a quarter point to 7.25 per cent, drove stock prices higher Wednesday. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average, off more than a point at the outset, climbed 4.15 points to 858.71. The closely watched average managed to squeeze out a 0.18 point gain Tuesday.

Since the blue-chip average has fallen 150 points so far this year, many stocks were selling at attractive prices. Furthermore, the Dow appeared to have support at the 854 level, a 20-month low it first hit back in late August.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index rose 0.23 to 52.79 and the average price of a share gained 13 cents. Advances topped declines, 763 to 586, among the 1,834 issues crossing the composite tape at 3 p.m.

Business briefs

Domestic auto sales rise 11%

Domestic automakers carried their hot summer selling pace into September, reporting Wednesday that new car sales in the Sept. 1-10 period topped the year-ago level by 11 per cent to fall just short of a record dating to 1955.

The strong Sept. 1-10 sales followed record August sales. Automakers have only missed matching year-ago levels in five of the 25 sales periods this year.

Ford reported record sales — up 9.5 per cent with 55,945 deliveries — while Chrysler topped year-ago sales by 16 per cent and General Motors by 13 per cent.

Only American Motors failed to match its year-ago level, slipping 28 per cent with sales of just 417 cars in each of the eight selling days — just one car a day for every four dealers in its sales organization.

'Board chiefs independent'

Board directors of American corporations are showing a new independence and authority and acting less as rubber stamps for management decisions, according to a Conference Board study.

The Conference Board, an independent business research organization supported by some 4,000 businesses and businessmen, studied board practices in nine countries — the United States, Britain, Canada, Sweden, West Germany, France, Japan, Turkey and Venezuela.

The study found three major shifts in board practices: the growing independence of U.S. boards, the addition of nonmanagement workers to corporate boards, and the use of two-tier boards, one a management and executive body, the other a supervisory group.

The muscle-flexing by American boards, the study found, has led to two "important developments; boards are demanding and getting better information about company affairs, and they are challenging management on important issues.

Economy positive: expert

The chief economist for Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh said Wednesday the national economic outlook for 1978 is generally positive but warned against too much government stimulation.

Norman Robertson told a group of Texas businessmen that overstimulative government action could threaten the country's stable long-term growth and "put us on a roller coaster rise of severe inflation followed by deep and prolonged recession."

Robertson, senior vice president of the nation's 17th largest commercial bank, said there is no denying the economic upswing has shifted into lower gear.

"But fears of recession can be discounted at this time because there is very little evidence of the speculative excesses, imbalances and distortions that characteristically breed prolonged economic downturns," he said.

Robertson said the mainstays of the current recovery — consumer spending and homebuilding activity — appear likely to continue as sustaining but not expansionist forces in a "path of moderate expansion in the 4-5 per cent range next year."

Domestic auto sales rise 11%

Domestic automakers carried their hot summer selling pace into September, reporting Wednesday that new car sales in the Sept. 1-10 period topped the year-ago level by 11 per cent to fall just short of a record dating to 1955.

The strong Sept. 1-10 sales followed record August sales. Automakers have only missed matching year-ago levels in five of the 25 sales periods this year.

Ford reported record sales — up 9.5 per cent with 55,945 deliveries — while Chrysler topped year-ago sales by 16 per cent and General Motors by 13 per cent.

Only American Motors failed to match its year-ago level, slipping 28 per cent with sales of just 417 cars in each of the eight selling days — just one car a day for every four dealers in its sales organization.

'Board chiefs independent'

Board directors of American corporations are showing a new independence and authority and acting less as rubber stamps for management decisions, according to a Conference Board study.

The Conference Board, an independent business research organization supported by some 4,000 businesses and businessmen, studied board practices in nine countries — the United States, Britain, Canada, Sweden, West Germany, France, Japan, Turkey and Venezuela.

The study found three major shifts in board practices: the growing independence of U.S. boards, the addition of nonmanagement workers to corporate boards, and the use of two-tier boards, one a management and executive body, the other a supervisory group.

The muscle-flexing by American boards, the study found, has led to two "important developments; boards are demanding and getting better information about company affairs, and they are challenging management on important issues.

Economy positive: expert

The chief economist for Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh said Wednesday the national economic outlook for 1978 is generally positive but warned against too much government stimulation.

Norman Robertson told a group of Texas businessmen that overstimulative government action could threaten the country's stable long-term growth and "put us on a roller coaster rise of severe inflation followed by deep and prolonged recession."

Robertson, senior vice president of the nation's 17th largest commercial bank, said there is no denying the economic upswing has shifted into lower gear.

"But fears of recession can be discounted at this time because there is very little evidence of the speculative excesses, imbalances and distortions that characteristically breed prolonged economic downturns," he said.

Robertson said the mainstays of the current recovery — consumer spending and homebuilding activity — appear likely to continue as sustaining but not expansionist forces in a "path of moderate expansion in the 4-5 per cent range next year."

Atomic power cheaper, say utility officials

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Electricity generated by nuclear plants in Connecticut, a pioneer in the atomic power field, is much cheaper than power produced from conventional sources, the state's top utility regulator told Congress Wednesday.

The average cost in 1976 for nuclear generated electricity was only two-thirds the cost per kilowatt of electricity generated by oil-powered facilities. Albert J. Kleban, chairman of the Connecticut Public Utilities Control Authority, said in testimony prepared for a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations.

Kleban said nuclear power cost 1.4 cents per kilowatt, a figure that included the cost of nuclear plant construction, operation and mainetnance, as well as fuel charges.

Commonwealth Edison, which serves northern Illinois, gets more than 40 per cent of its electrical power from nuclear power plants. By the 1980s, that number is expected to reach 50 per cent.

Although nuclear opponents dispute the claim, Commonwealth Edison claims nuclear power costs nearly 20 per cent less than energy generated from a coal-or oil-fired plant. Utility officials say that's why local rates are half those of other large metropolitan areas like New York.

THE DAILY HERALD

Seafood with Old World flavor

Old World fishermen would be hard pressed to recognize their New World grandsons who fish out of Massachusetts ports these days. Although the catch is the same, the chase usually is made in diesel-powered vessels equipped with modern fish-finding and direction-finding gear.

But some old country customs survive despite the diversions of the 20th century. Chief among these is the wonderful way fishermen's wives prepare the fish and shellfish their husbands bring home from the sea. Although they are not averse to introducing a few time-saving twists, they never stray far from the traditional recipes.

BARBECUED COD ITALIAN STYLE

1½	pounds cod fillets	⅛	teaspoon ground thyme
¼	cup olive oil	½	teaspoon salt
1	clove garlic, finely chopped		Fresh ground pepper to taste
¼	cup onion, finely chopped	1	can (8-ounces) tomato sauce
1	bay leaf	¼	cup water
2 or 3	sprigs fresh thyme or	2 or 3	sprigs parsley, chopped

Place cod fillets in a flat pan. Heat olive oil and saute garlic and onion over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and simmer for 5 minutes. Pour about ⅔ of the hot sauce over fish in pan. Refrigerate for 30 minutes to 2 hours.

When ready to cook place fillets in fish grill or on grill and cook about 4 inches from heat about 5 minutes, basting with sauce. (Do not turn.) Serve with any leftover sauce. Serves 4.

MACKEREL A PORTUGUESA

6	mackerel fillets (3 fish, about 1 pound each)
1	envelope (1⅜ ounces) dry onion soup mix
3	tablespoons cider vinegar
3	tablespoons salad oil
3	tablespoons apricot preserves

Place mackerel fillets on large foil strip, about 6 to 8 inches long. Sprinkle with dry onion soup mix. Combine vinegar, oil and apricot preserves. Pour over fish. Wrap foil around to form a packet, enclosing fish fairly snugly and sealing all edges with double fold. Place on tray under broiler or on rack of grill, about 4 inches from heat. Cook 12 minutes. Serves 6.

NORWEGIAN FISH SOUFFLE

6	tablespoons butter or margarine
½	cup all-purpose flour
2	teaspoons salt
¼	teaspoon pepper
2¼	cups milk
6	eggs, separated
3	cups cooked, flaked flounder
1	tablespoon grated onion and juice
1	tablespoon butter or margarine
2	tablespoons fine, dry bread crumbs

Melt 6 tablespoons butter; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Stir in milk. Stir over moderate heat until smooth and thickened. Beat egg yolks; add a little of the hot sauce; beat into remaining sauce. Stir in flaked fish and grated onion. Cool.

Beat egg whites stiff but not dry; fold into fish mixture. Use remaining 1 tablespoon butter to grease 2-quart souffle dish. Coat evenly with bread crumbs. Spoon fish mixture into souffle dish.

Bake at 325 degrees until deep golden brown and set, about 1 to 1¼ hours. Serve immediately. Serves 6. If desired, a sauce, such as tomato or mushroom, may be served with the souffle.

Old World fishermen would be hard pressed to recognize their New World grandsons who fish out of Massachusetts ports these days. Although the catch is the same, the chase usually is made in diesel-powered vessels equipped with modern fish-finding and direction-finding gear.

But some old country customs survive despite the diversions of the 20th century. Chief among these is the wonderful way fishermen's wives prepare the fish and shellfish their husbands bring home from the sea. Although they are not averse to introducing a few time-saving twists, they never stray far from the traditional recipes.

BARBECUED COD ITALIAN STYLE

1½ pounds cod fillets
¼ cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
¼ cup onion, finely chopped
1 bay leaf
2 or 3 sprigs fresh thyme or
⅛ teaspoon ground thyme
½ teaspoon salt
Fresh ground pepper to taste
1 can (8-ounces) tomato sauce
¼ cup water
2 or 3 sprigs parsley, chopped

Place cod fillets in a flat pan. Heat olive oil and saute garlic and onion over medium heat for 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and simmer for 5 minutes. Pour about ⅔ of the hot sauce over fish in pan. Refrigerate for 30 minutes to 2 hours.

When ready to cook place fillets in fish grill or on grill and cook about 4 inches from heat about 5 minutes, basting with sauce. (Do not turn.) Serve with any leftover sauce. Serves 4.

MACKEREL A PORTUGUESA

6 mackerel fillets
(3 fish, about 1 pound each)
1 envelope (1⅜ ounces)
dry onion soup mix
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
3 tablespoons salad oil
3 tablespoons apricot preserves

Place mackerel fillets on large foil strip, about 6 to 8 inches long. Sprinkle with dry onion soup mix. Combine vinegar, oil and apricot preserves. Pour over fish. Wrap foil around to form a packet, enclosing fish fairly snugly and sealing all edges with double fold. Place on tray under broiler or on rack of grill, about 4 inches from heat. Cook 12 minutes. Serves 6.

NORWEGIAN FISH SOUFFLE

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2¼ cups milk
6 eggs, separated
3 cups cooked, flaked flounder
1 tablespoon grated onion and juice
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons fine, dry bread crumbs

Melt 6 tablespoons butter; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Stir in milk. Stir over moderate heat until smooth and thickened. Beat egg yolks; add a little of the hot sauce; beat into remaining sauce. Stir in flaked fish and grated onion. Cool.

Beat egg whites stiff but not dry; fold into fish mixture. Use remaining 1 tablespoon butter to grease 2-quart souffle dish. Coat evenly with bread crumbs. Spoon fish mixture into souffle dish.

Bake at 325 degrees until deep golden brown and set, about 1 to 1¼ hours. Serve immediately. Serves 6. If desired, a sauce, such as tomato or mushroom, may be served with the souffle.

September's crisp air a signal that it soon is apple-a-day time

Eileen Kelly

Let's learn to micro-cook

Along with autumn leaves and back-to-school clothes, September brings with it the apple! An apple baked in a microwave oven gives bility the microwave oven gives to a perfect illustration of the flexi- whoever is in charge of meal preparation in your home.

If one has a household where it is necessary to cater to a variety of individual needs, the microwave oven can make this situation much more tolerable. Do you have an elderly person with a special diet, a teenager with a weird work schedule, a baby with a very inflexible desire to be served exactly upon awakening or someone like Mary, our 6-year-old, who loves it when I prepare something special just for her? Delicious and nourishing foods for all these special needs are right at your fingertips when you use a microwave oven.

LET'S BAKE AN APPLE.

Take a medium-sized cooking apple and wash and core it. Take a generous slice of skin off the top of the apple.

Place 1 tablespoon of butter and 1 tablespoon of brown sugar in the center of each apple. Sprinkle cinnamon on top of the apple. Microwave on high for about 2 minutes or until the apple is tender. Some raisins and-or chopped nuts also can be added to the butter and sugar. Let the apple stand for a few minutes before eating. McIntosh apples, available locally, make great baked apples.

When doing individual baked apples, I use small casserole dishes that have handles. You also can use glass custard cups or a bowl from your regular service, providing it's non-metal and hasn't got any metal trim.

If you were going to bake four to six apples, you would use an 8x8 inch glass baking dish. Prepare them the same as for individual servings and cook on high for eight to 12 minutes. Let stand about five to seven minutes before eating.

ANOTHER USE for the cooking apples is in Apple Crisp:

6 cups pared, cored and sliced cooking apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats
¾ cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/3 cup butter or margarine

Put the sliced apples into an 8x8-inch glass baking dish and sprinkle with lemon juice.

Mix together the flour, oats, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in butter or margarine until mixture looks like coarse crumbs. Sprinkle the crumb mixture over the apples.

Microwave on high for 14 minutes or until the apples are tender. Serve warm or cold. Top with light cream or ice cream. Serves 6.

Use grapes for tasty salad and fruit treats

Fresh grapes bring a refreshing touch to salads or desserts and are a fruit available in a number of varieties throughout the year.

An attractive confetti salad combines fresh grapes with cabbage, celery and carrots in a lemon-flavored gelatin. Top this molded salad with a sour cream-mayonnaise dressing with a gingery touch.

A special departure for fresh grapes is to combine them with chocolate chips and strawberry ice cream for a grape cream cone. You may want to try different ice cream flavors with this grape recipe.

GRAPE CONFETTI SALAD

1 package (6 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 1/3 cups cold water
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups halved and seeded fresh California grapes
2/3 cup finely shredded cabbage
2/3 cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup shredded carrot
Salad greens

FRESH GRAPE CREAM CONES

½ cup chocolate chips
1 package (5 ounces) ice cream cones (12 cones)
2 packages (3 ounces each) lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 quart strawberry ice cream, softened
3 cups California seedless grapes

Melt chocolate chips over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until smooth. Dip top edge of cones into chocolate. (Swirl chocolate inside if desired.) Stand in small water glasses. Chill. Empty gelatin into bowl. Add boiling water and stir to dissolve thoroughly. Spoon ice cream into bowl, stirring until smooth. Fold in grapes. Refrigerate until serving time. Scoop nomelt cream into cones or serving dishes. Makes about 1½ quarts.

Grape Confetti Salad

GINGER DRESSING

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup dairy sour cream
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Salad: In mixing bowl, dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Cool Stir cold water, vinegar and salt into gelatin. Chill mixture until gelatin is syrupy. Spoon about ½ cup mixture into a 6-cup mold and arrange a few grape halves in mold. Chill until set. Mix remaining grapes, cabbage, celery and carrot into remaining gelatin. Pour into mold over decorative layer. Chill until firm. Unmold salad on serving dish. Garnish with salad greens and serve with ginger dressing.

Ginger Dressing: In small bowl, thoroughly combine mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon peel and ginger. Serves 8.

Hanover cook adds own zip to Italian food

Lois Seiler

Cook of the week

Although she is of Irish descent, Joan Barone of Hanover Park has been cooking in the Italian manner since her marriage. Her husband, Lou, village president of Hanover Park, is of Italian heritage, and Joan quickly learned to appreciate the flavorful qualities of Italian cuisine.

She learned to make ravioli from scratch, lasagna and even Italian hors d' oeuvres. One of her favorite appetizers is a recipe she clipped from a newspaper years ago featuring hard salami, mozarella cheese and oregano-flavored tomato sauce encased in small pastry rounds. They can be made ahead, frozen and baked before serving. The Barones are partial to the nippy taste of salami, and their two children, Mary Ann, 13, and John, 11, like the pizza flavor of these appetizers.

Nice for a cocktail party, the Italian hors d' oeuvres also are appealing to serve prior to an Italian meal or Joan's spaghetti casserole. The casserole recipe was featured on a box of Creamettes and Joan changed it to suit her taste. It made an immediate hit with her family, and Joan also says it is ideal to take to homes where there is illness in the family.

THE RECIPE makes a large quantity, enough to make two meals for the Barones, or it can be divided among two baking dishes, one stored in the freezer for future use. Ground beef is incorporated into the tomato sauce, which is seasoned with chili powder and dotted with mushrooms. The sauce is layered in a casserole with cooked spaghetti and grated Cheddar cheese, and all is baked for a mere half hour. It is juicy and flavorful, with the chili powder adding zip, and leftovers even taste better the next day.

As accompaniments, Joan suggests garlic bread and a tossed salad with bleu cheese dressing, and spumoni for dessert. Joan acquired the dressing recipe from her sister-in-law years ago. It is so easy her daughter usually makes it. It combines bleu cheese with buttermilk and mayonnaise seasoned with garlic salt and onion salt. Rich and creamy, the dressing will keep in the refrigerator for a month, but Joan chuckles that in her family it never lasts that long.

Active in the Hanover Park Women's Club, Joan also is a lifetime Jaycee Wife. She likes all types of arts and crafts and makes all handmade ornaments for the family's Christmas tree.

ITALIAN HORS d' OEUVRES

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ cup shredded mozarella cheese
½ cup finely-chopped hard salami
¼ teaspoon oregano
Pastry enough for a double crust pie

Combine half of the can of tomato sauce with the cheese, salami and oregano.

On a lightly-floured surface, roll pastry 1/8-inch thick. Cut into 2-inch rounds with floured biscuit cutter. Place small amount of filling in center of each round. Moisten edge of pastry and fold in half. Seal edges and crimp curved edge with a fork. Bake at 450 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Makes approximately 2½ dozen. Heat remaining tomato sauce and serve as a dip for the hors d' oeuvres. This recipe may be frozen, unbaked. Bake unthawed 12 to 15 minutes.

SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1½ pounds lean ground beef
4 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
1 cup water
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons garlic juice or 2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons chili powder
1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms, drained
1 pound spaghetti, broken in half, cooked and drained
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook ground beef until lightly browned. Stir in tomato sauce, water, seasonings and garlic. Simmer 25 minutes. Stir in mushrooms.

Place half of the spaghetti into a 3-quart casserole. Cover with half the sauce and half the cheese. Repeat layers. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. This freezes well covered with foil. Thaw and bake. Serves 8.

BLEU CHEESE DRESSING

1 large wedge bleu cheese
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon onion salt

Mash cheese with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill in covered jar in refrigerator. Serve over a tossed salad.

CONCENTRATION AND skill are the secrets to homemade ravioli — a favorite in the home of Joan and Lou Barone.

USDA offers food pamphlets

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA) offers two free booklets for consumers. "Food For Thrifty Families" tells how much food to buy for a family of four plus shopping tips, suggested menus and recipes for a month. The booklet is written especially for families on limited budgets.

Keep food hot — keep food cold — and keep food clean, says USDA. To learn more about food safety and the prevention of food poisoning, order "Food Safety for the Family."

Challah bread fine on Yom Kippur

The tenth day of Tishre is a fast day for members of the Jewish faith. Better known as Yom Kippur, the day commemorates God's forgiveness of the Jews for sins against the golden calf, says Rabbi Michael Myers, Or Chadash Traditional Congregation, Schaumburg.

"This commemoration of forgiveness shows God can forgive even the greatest of transgressions," says Rabbi Myers. The fasting begins the night before, usually with a candlelight service. During Yom Kippur, which means Day of Atonement, no food or drink is consumed. The fast ends at dark — 42 minutes after sunset.

No special foods are served following the fast but "it's usually something light," says Rabbi Myers. Observant traditional or orthodox Jews cannot cook the fast days, so foods must be prepared ahead.

CHALLAH, A BREAD served during Jewish holidays, may appear on the supper table with a tuna salad or soup.

The following recipes are from the "Portal of Good Cooking," published by the Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training (ORT), Midwest District VII. ORT is a vocational education program for Jewish people with members in all parts of the world. District VII includes the Chicago area and surrounding states.

Challah, pronounced with the "c" silent, is a braided egg bread topped with poppy seeds. For smaller amounts, make only half the recipe.

CHALLAH

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
½ cup oil
9 cups sifted flour
2 cups warm water
Egg yolk and water
Poppy seeds

Dissolve yeast in ½ cup warm water; set aside. Beat eggs; add sugar, salt and oil. Add 1 cup flour and dissolved yeast. Alternately add remaining flour with 2 cups water. Beat well. Dough will be stiff.

Turn out on floured pastry cloth and let rest 5 minutes, covered with dish towel. Knead for 12 to 15 minutes, until smooth. (A small amount of flour will be needed to keep dough from sticking.) Place dough in a greasted bowl. Set in warm place and let rise until doubled. Turn out on floured cloth, punch down and divide dough into 4 parts.

Divide each into 3 pieces. With hands, make 3 ropes of the 3 pieces and braid. Place in greased and floured 8½-x3-inch loaf pans and let rise in a warm place, covered until doubled. Brush with egg yolk wash (add 1 teaspoon water to 1 egg yolk). Sprinkle with poppy seeds, if desired. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Turn out of pans immediately. May be frozen. Makes 4 loaves.

Here is a recipe for preparing pickled fish at home.

PICKLED FISH

6 pounds fish (trout, pickerel or white fish) sliced 1½ to 2 inches thick
1½ pounds onions, sliced
5 cups water
4 cups vinegar
2 tablespoons pickling spices
1 lemon, peeled and sliced
2 tablespoons salt
1¾ cup sugar

Boil onions in water and vinegar for 1 hour, covered. Strain and transfer to large pot. Add remaining ingredients, except fish. Heat to boiling. Add fish, a piece at a time. Cook for 25 minutes or until fish flakes; cool 10 minutes in liquid. Remove fish to cookie sheet to cool completely. When broth and fish are cold, place fish in a bowl, pour broth over fish and refrigerate.

Chicken soup — a well-known and traditional Jewish recipe. Since the soup must be chilled, it can be prepared in advance and heated for the evening meal.

CHICKEN SOUP

1 (3 pound) stewing chicken or capon
3 quarts water
3 carrots
3 ribs celery
1 parsley root with greens
3 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons pepper
1 small onion

In large soup pot, heat chicken with water to boiling. Skim off top; simmer for 2 hours. Add vegetables and seasonings. Simmer 30 minutes longer. Strain out vegetables. Cut chicken into small pieces; return to soup. Chill soup thoroughly; remove fat from top. Serve hot with matzo balls, noodles or rice. Serves 8.

THE RECIPE makes a large quantity, enough to make two meals for the Barones, or it can be divided among two baking dishes, one stored in the freezer for future use. Ground beef is incorporated into the tomato sauce, which is seasoned with chili powder and dotted with mushrooms. The sauce is layered in a casserole with cooked spaghetti and grated Cheddar cheese, and all is baked for a mere half hour. It is juicy and flavorful, with the chili powder adding zip, and leftovers even taste better the next day.

As accompaniments, Joan suggests garlic bread and a tossed salad with bleu cheese dressing, and spumoni for dessert. Joan acquired the dressing recipe from her sister-in-law years ago. It is so easy her daughter usually makes it. It combines bleu cheese with buttermilk and mayonnaise seasoned with garlic salt and onion salt. Rich and creamy, the dressing will keep in the refrigerator for a month, but Joan chuckles that in her family it never lasts that long.

Active in the Hanover Park Women's Club, Joan also is a lifetime Jaycee Wife. She likes all types of arts and crafts and makes all handmade ornaments for the family's Christmas tree.

ITALIAN HORS d' OEUVRES

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
½ cup shredded mozarella cheese
½ cup finely-chopped hard salami
¼ teaspoon oregano
Pastry enough for a double crust pie

Combine half of the can of tomato sauce with the cheese, salami and oregano.

On a lightly-floured surface, roll pastry 1/8-inch thick. Cut into 2-inch rounds with floured biscuit cutter. Place small amount of filling in center of each round. Moisten edge of pastry and fold in half. Seal edges and crimp curved edge with a fork. Bake at 450 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes. Makes approximately 2½ dozen. Heat remaining tomato sauce and serve as a dip for the hors d' oeuvres. This recipe may be frozen, unbaked. Bake unthawed 12 to 15 minutes.

SPAGHETTI CASSEROLE

1½ pounds lean ground beef
4 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
1 cup water
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons garlic juice or 2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons chili powder
1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms, drained
1 pound spaghetti, broken in half, cooked and drained
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese

Cook ground beef until lightly browned. Stir in tomato sauce, water, seasonings and garlic. Simmer 25 minutes. Stir in mushrooms.

Place half of the spaghetti into a 3-quart casserole. Cover with half the sauce and half the cheese. Repeat layers. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. This freezes well covered with foil. Thaw and bake. Serves 8.

BLEU CHEESE DRESSING

1 large wedge bleu cheese
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup mayonnaise
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon onion salt

Mash cheese with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Chill in covered jar in refrigerator. Serve over a tossed salad.

CONCENTRATION AND skill are the secrets to homemade ravioli — a favorite in the home of Joan and Lou Barone.

USDA offers food pamphlets

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA) offers two free booklets for consumers. "Food For Thrifty Families" tells how much food to buy for a family of four plus shopping tips, suggested menus and recipes for a month. The booklet is written especially for families on limited budgets.

Keep food hot — keep food cold — and keep food clean, says USDA. To learn more about food safety and the prevention of food poisoning, order "Food Safety for the Family."

Challah bread fine on Yom Kippur

The tenth day of Tishre is a fast day for members of the Jewish faith. Better known as Yom Kippur, the day commemorates God's forgiveness of the Jews for sins against the golden calf, says Rabbi Michael Myers, Or Chadash Traditional Congregation, Schaumburg.

"This commemoration of forgiveness shows God can forgive even the greatest of transgressions," says Rabbi Myers. The fasting begins the night before, usually with a candlelight service. During Yom Kippur, which means Day of Atonement, no food or drink is consumed. The fast ends at dark — 42 minutes after sunset.

No special foods are served following the fast but "it's usually something light," says Rabbi Myers. Observant traditional or orthodox Jews cannot cook the fast days, so foods must be prepared ahead.

CHALLAH, A BREAD served during Jewish holidays, may appear on the supper table with a tuna salad or soup.

The following recipes are from the "Portal of Good Cooking," published by the Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training (ORT), Midwest District VII. ORT is a vocational education program for Jewish people with members in all parts of the world. District VII includes the Chicago area and surrounding states.

Challah, pronounced with the "c" silent, is a braided egg bread topped with poppy seeds. For smaller amounts, make only half the recipe.

CHALLAH

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water
4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
½ cup oil
9 cups sifted flour
2 cups warm water
Egg yolk and water
Poppy seeds

Dissolve yeast in ½ cup warm water; set aside. Beat eggs; add sugar, salt and oil. Add 1 cup flour and dissolved yeast. Alternately add remaining flour with 2 cups water. Beat well. Dough will be stiff.

Turn out on floured pastry cloth and let rest 5 minutes, covered with dish towel. Knead for 12 to 15 minutes, until smooth. (A small amount of flour will be needed to keep dough from sticking.) Place dough in a greasted bowl. Set in warm place and let rise until doubled. Turn out on floured cloth, punch down and divide dough into 4 parts.

Divide each into 3 pieces. With hands, make 3 ropes of the 3 pieces and braid. Place in greased and floured 8½-x3-inch loaf pans and let rise in a warm place, covered until doubled. Brush with egg yolk wash (add 1 teaspoon water to 1 egg yolk). Sprinkle with poppy seeds, if desired. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Turn out of pans immediately. May be frozen. Makes 4 loaves.

Here is a recipe for preparing pickled fish at home.

PICKLED FISH

6 pounds fish (trout, pickerel or white fish) sliced 1½ to 2 inches thick
1½ pounds onions, sliced
5 cups water
4 cups vinegar
2 tablespoons pickling spices
1 lemon, peeled and sliced
2 tablespoons salt
1¾ cup sugar

Boil onions in water and vinegar for 1 hour, covered. Strain and transfer to large pot. Add remaining ingredients, except fish. Heat to boiling. Add fish, a piece at a time. Cook for 25 minutes or until fish flakes; cool 10 minutes in liquid. Remove fish to cookie sheet to cool completely. When broth and fish are cold, place fish in a bowl, pour broth over fish and refrigerate.

Chicken soup — a well-known and traditional Jewish recipe. Since the soup must be chilled, it can be prepared in advance and heated for the evening meal.

CHICKEN SOUP

1 (3 pound) stewing chicken or capon
3 quarts water
3 carrots
3 ribs celery
1 parsley root with greens
3 tablespoons salt
2 teaspoons pepper
1 small onion

In large soup pot, heat chicken with water to boiling. Skim off top; simmer for 2 hours. Add vegetables and seasonings. Simmer 30 minutes longer. Strain out vegetables. Cut chicken into small pieces; return to soup. Chill soup thoroughly; remove fat from top. Serve hot with matzo balls, noodles or rice. Serves 8.

Fat is where it's at if used with well-balanced diet

Joyce Lofstrom
Byline report

If you consume more than one-third of your total calories from fat, you might want to reconsider your eating patterns. Research shows fats in meats, dairy products and some vegetable oils have been linked to colon, rectal and breast cancers.

The fat, especially saturated fat, does not cause cancer but interacts with body processes to promote the disease, says Dr. John Weisburger, a researcher wih the American Health Assn.

Fat often is considered one of the "bad guys" when it comes to nutrition, but in fact, it is essential to good health. Fat provides heat and energy for the body, acts as a cushioning agent for internal organs and carries fat-soluble vitamins throughout the body. The problem appears with the type and amounts of fat people eat daily.

Fat appears in three forms in foods — saturated, unsaturated and monosaturated. Foods with animal saturated fats include beef, lamb, pork, ham, butter, cream, whole milk and products made with cream and whole milk. Saturated vegetable fats appear in solid shortening, coconut and palm oils and cocoa butter.

POLYUNSATURATED FATS, the type of fat recommended in a low-fat diet, appear in liquid vegetable oils including safflower, soybean, corn, cottonseed and sesame seed. Monosaturated fats include peanut and olive oils.

To limit fat consumption to 33 per cent of the total daily calories means about a 10 per cent reduction in normal fat intake; most Americans eat 40 to 45 per cent fat. The American Heart Assn. recommends a diet with less than 10 per cent of total calories from saturated fats and up to 10 per cent from polyunsaturated fats, with the remainder from foods with monosaturated fats.

The scientific jargon may sound confusing, but eating less fat simply means less fatty meats, butter, whole milk, chocolate, nuts and gravies, says Nancy Wilson, R.D., nutritionist for the Chicago Heart Assn.

"That doesn't mean to eliminate them completely, just cut down," she says.

FOR EXAMPLE, skim milk is recommended instead of whole milk with 2 per cent as the second best choice, says Ms. Wilson. Limit ice cream and try ice milk as a lower fat treat. Common snack foods such as candy, cookies and cakes plus convenience foods also contain fat, so consider fruits and vegetables as alternatives.

Whether for a school lunch or a dinner at home, dietary changes require planning and creativity. Eating in America means more than breakfast, lunch and dinner, as people munch away before, during, or after a show, before bed, after school, while shopping or to celebrate a variety of events. To limit fat in your diet, think before you buy with these shopping tips from the American Heart Assn.

- Buy more lean meats, such as fish, chicken, turkey and veal. Limit the use of luncheon and variety meats.
- Look for medium-to-deep color ground beef; a light pink color may signify excess fat ground in with the meat.
- Use polyunsaturated vegetable oils for cooking such as safflower, the most polyunsaturated, or soybean, corn or cottonseed.

Read the label when selecting any foods from margarine to mixes. For margarines, high in polyunsaturated fats, look for liquid vegetable or liquid oil listed as the first ingredient followed by one or more partially hydrogenated vegetable oils. Vegetable fat usually means a saturated fat, so check the leabel thoroughly, especially with convenience foods.

Take one-third of daily caloric needs to find the number of calories needed daily from fat.

Age Group	Calories Needed Daily	Fat Calories Needed Daily
Children (4-6)	1,300	430
Children (7-10)	1,800	600
Adolescent males	2,900 (average)	960
Adolescent females	2,250 (average)	750

Taco Franks

Mexican flair flavors ordinary frankfurters

If you're looking for a creative way to use that last package of hot dogs, try Taco Franks with a Mexican flair. With a combination of cheese, onions and chili sauce, the proverbial frankfurter becomes a delicious dinner meal.

TACO FRANKS

1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup crushed corn chips
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup green chili salsa
6 frankfurters split lengthwise

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine cheese, chips, onion and salsa. Stuff each frank with ¼ cup of mixture; place in 10 x 6-inch baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Fresh salads are a yummy way to get those vegetables

Fresh salads, using such year-round items as avocado, iceberg lettuce, red onions, spinach, cucumbers and tomatoes please the eye and the tummy. What is more, nutritionists would like to see more Americans, especially younger ones, add more fresh vegetables and fruits to their daily meals.

A fresh salad becomes, as many discover, a very special part of a lunch or dinner menu that a person can soon come to crave as much as they do extra coffee or cola and salads are far more healthful. As a special treat, make your own salad dressings of oil and vinegar and herbs.

LAYERED FRESH SALAD

1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 clove fresh garlic, minced
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
6 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
4 tomatoes, peeled and sliced
2 small cucumbers, pared and sliced
1 red onion, sliced

In medium bowl combine salt, basil, pepper and garlic. Stir in vinegar, oil and parsley. Place layers of sliced tomatoes in clear container, then red onion and cucumber. Pour dressing over all. Cover and refrigerate several hours. Take to picnic in container. Serves 6.

MIXED GREEN SALAD WITH LEMON DRESSING

2½ cups iceberg lettuce, torn into bite-size pieces
2½ cups fresh spinach, torn into bite-size pieces
1 cup escarole, torn into bite-size pieces

In a large bowl combine salad greens. Add about 1/3 cup Lemon Dressing, toss lightly. Serves 6.

Lemon Dressing

2/3 cup salad oil
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 clove garlic, peeled and split
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1/8 teaspoon paprika

In a small bowl or jar with tight-fitting lid combine all ingredients. Beat or shake until well mixed. Let stand 1 hour and remove garlic. Store in refrigerator. Makes 1 cup dressing.

AVOCADO SALAD

2 avocados, peeled and sliced
2 cups spinach leaves
2 cups torn lettuce
½ red onion, sliced
3 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
$¾8 teespoon dried leaf oregano
1/8 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds

In a large bowl mix together avocado, spinach, lettuce and red onion. In smaller bowl mix together remaining ingredients pour over avocado and toss well. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

Fat is where it's at if used with well-balanced diet

Joyce Lofstrom

Byline report

If you consume more than one-third of your total calories from fat, you might want to reconsider your eating patterns. Research shows fats in meats, dairy products and some vegetable oils have been linked to colon, rectal and breast cancers.

The fat, especially saturated fat, does not cause cancer but interacts with body processes to promote the disease, says Dr. John Weisburger, a researcher wih the American Health Assn.

Fat often is considered one of the "bad guys" when it comes to nutrition, but in fact, it is essential to good health. Fat provides heat and energy for the body, acts as a cushioning agent for internal organs and carries fat-soluble vitamins throughout the body. The problem appears with the type and amounts of fat people eat daily.

Fat appears in three forms in foods — saturated, unsaturated and monosaturated. Foods with animal saturated fats include beef, lamb, pork, ham, butter, cream, whole milk and products made with cream and whole milk. Saturated vegetable fats appear in solid shortening, coconut and palm oils and cocoa butter.

POLYUNSATURATED FATS, the type of fat recommended in a low-fat diet, appear in liquid vegetable oils including safflower, soybean, corn, cottonseed and sesame seed. Monosaturated fats include peanut and olive oils.

To limit fat consumption to 33 per cent of the total daily calories means about a 10 per cent reduction in normal fat intake; most Americans eat 40 to 45 per cent fat. The American Heart Assn. recommends a diet with less than 10 per cent of total calories from saturated fats and up to 10 per cent from polyunsaturated fats, with the remainder from foods with monosaturated fats.

The scientific jargon may sound confusing, but eating less fat simply means less fatty meats, butter, whole milk, chocolate, nuts and gravies, says Nancy Wilson, R.D., nutritionist for the Chicago Heart Assn.

"That doesn't mean to eliminate them completely, just cut down," she says.

FOR EXAMPLE, skim milk is recommended instead of whole milk with 2 per cent as the second best choice, says Ms. Wilson. Limit ice cream and try ice milk as a lower fat treat. Common snack foods such as candy, cookies and cakes plus convenience foods also contain fat, so consider fruits and vegetables as alternatives.

Whether for a school lunch or a dinner at home, dietary changes require planning and creativity. Eating in America means more than breakfast, lunch and dinner, as people munch away before, during, or after a show, before bed, after school, while shopping or to celebrate a variety of events. To limit fat in your diet, think before you buy with these shopping tips from the American Heart Assn.

- Buy more lean meats, such as fish, chicken, turkey and veal. Limit the use of luncheon and variety meats.
- Look for medium-to-deep color ground beef; a light pink color may signify excess fat ground in with the meat.
- Use polyunsaturated vegetable oils for cooking such as safflower, the most polyunsaturated, or soybean, corn or cottonseed.

Read the label when selecting any foods from margarine to mixes. For margarines, high in polyunsaturated fats, look for liquid vegetable or liquid oil listed as the first ingredient followed by one or more partially hydrogenated vegetable oils. Vegetable fat usually means a saturated fat, so check the leabel thoroughly, especially with convenience foods.

Take one-third of daily caloric needs to find the number of calories needed daily from fat.

Age Group	Calories Needed Daily	Fat Calories Needed Daily
Children (4-6)	1,300	430
Children (7-10)	1,800	600
Adolescent males	2,900 (average)	960
Adolescent femaies	2,250 (average)	750
Adult males (23-50)	2,700	900
Adult females (23-50)	2,000	666
Adult males (51 and over)	2,400	800
Adult females (51 and over	1,800	600
Pregnant women	+300	+100
Lactating women	+500	+166

Mexican flair flavors ordinary frankfurters

TACO FRANKS

1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup crushed corn chips
½ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup green chili salsa
6 frankfurters split lengthwise

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine cheese, chips, onion and salsa. Stuff each frank with ¼ cup of mixture; place in 10 x 6-inch baking dish. Bake at 350 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Fresh salads are a yummy way to get those vegetables

Fresh salads, using such year-round items as avocado, iceberg lettuce, red onions, spinach, cucumbers and tomatoes please the eye and the tummy. What is more, nutritionists would like to see more Americans, especially younger ones, add more fresh vegetables and fruits to their daily meals.

A fresh salad becomes, as many discover, a very special part of a lunch or dinner menu that a person can soon come to crave as much as they do extra coffee or cola and salads are far more healthful. As a special treat, make your own salad dressings of oil and vinegar and herbs.

LAYERED FRESH SALAD

1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 clove fresh garlic, minced
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
6 tablespoons salad oil
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
4 tomatoes, peeled and sliced
2 small cucumbers, pared and sliced
1 red onion, sliced

In medium bowl combine salt, basil, pepper and garlic. Stir in vinegar, oil and parsley. Place layers of sliced tomatoes in clear container, then red onion and cucumber. Pour dressing over all. Cover and refrigerate several hours. Take to picnic in container. Serves 6.

MIXED GREEN SALAD WITH LEMON DRESSING

2½ cups iceberg lettuce, torn into bite-size pieces
2½ cups fresh spinach, torn into bite-size pieces
1 cup escarole, torn into bite-size pieces

In a large bowl combine salad greens. Add about 1/3 cup Lemon Dressing, toss lightly. Serves 6.

Lemon Dressing

2/3 cup salad oil
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
1 clove garlic, peeled and split
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1/8 teaspoon paprika

In a small bowl or jar with tight-fitting lid combine all ingredients. Beat or shake until well mixed. Let stand 1 hour and remove garlic. Store in refrigerator. Makes 1 cup dressing.

AVOCADO SALAD

2 avocados, peeled and sliced
2 cups spinach leaves
2 cups torn lettuce
½ red onion, sliced
3 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
$¾8 teespoon dried leaf oregano
1/8 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds

In a large bowl mix together avocado, spinach, lettuce and red onion. In smaller bowl mix together remaining ingredients pour over avocado and toss well. Serve immediately. Serves 4.

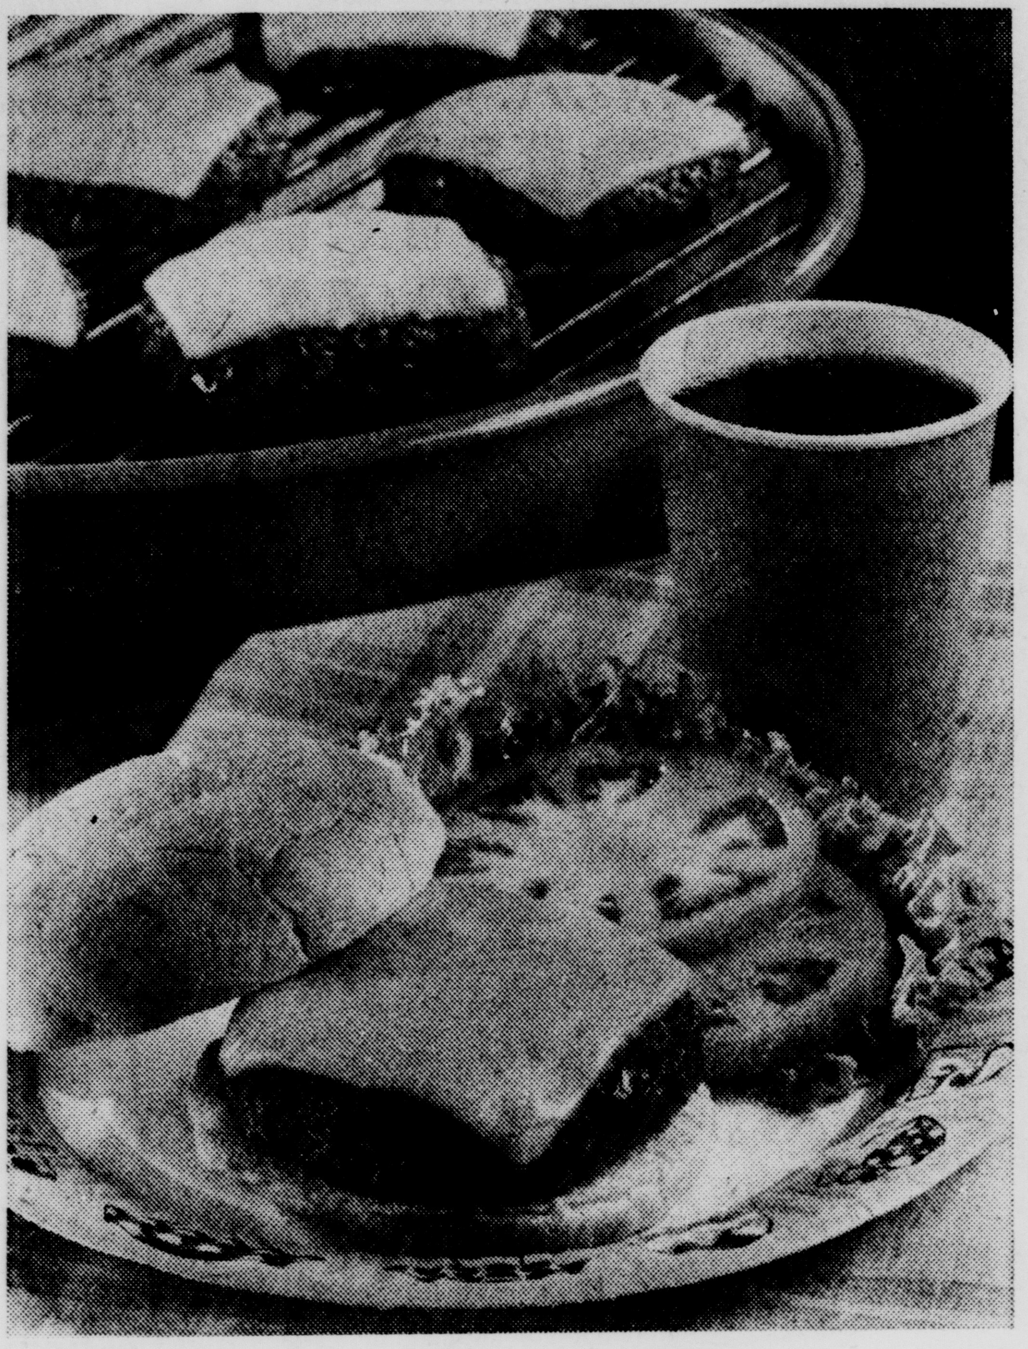
Kick off football season with spirited tailgate bash



Hamburgers on the grill

September means football season — mugs of hot chocolate — and tailgate picnics. If you're wondering what is and how to have a tailgate picnic, the procedure is easy. Simply pack a lunch, pick your favorite team and location and enjoy a pregame party from the car.

Make it simple or fancy — the picnic choices depend upon the time and appetites of the fans. If you want to grill the traditional picnic hot dogs and hamburgers, pack a portable grill and set up in the stadium parking lot before the game. Add potato salad, relishes and brownies for a scrumptious picnic package.

Fried chicken, hearty casseroles or sandwiches offer quick choices for picnic foods to prepare at home. On a diet? Pack a salad filled with vegetables, cheese and meats plus a container of low calorie dressing. Don't forget fresh fruits for dessert or at halftime.

Include a vacuum bottle filled with soups, chili or hot drinks for a filling warm-up before game time. Whether at home or on a picnic, creative cooking adds to mealtime pleasure so try a new dish or let everyone select a recipe for the tailgate picnic basket.

Try this spicy fried chicken, a popular picnic standby.

DEVILED FRIED CHICKEN

3 to 3½ pounds chicken
¾ cup flour
3 teaspoons dry mustard
3 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
Milk for dipping
Lard for frying
1 clove garlic
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

Wash and drain chicken. Sift flour, dry mustard, salt and pepper together. Dip chicken in milk and then in flour mixture. Add garlic and Worcestershire sauce to fat and fry chicken. When golden brown and almost tender, drain and bake chicken in uncovered dish at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Drain and cool.

Select your favorite whole grain bread and fill with a tasty filling:

HAM 'n' RAISIN SPREAD

1 cup minced, cooked ham
½ cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon capers
Mayonnaise to moisten

Combine ham, raisins and capers. Add mayonnaise until mixture is easy to spread.

CREAMY PEANUT BUTTER FILLING

¼ cup cream cheese
½ cup peanut butter
¼ cup mayonnaise

Combine ingredients until well mixed.

CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups diced, cooked chicken
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup diced cucumbers
2 tablespoons capers
¾ cup mayonnaise

For a picnic salad, try this main dish from Betty Crocker's Salad Cookbook:

SALADE NICOISE

1 package (10 ounces) frozen French-style green beans
2 heads Bibb or Boston lettuce, torn into bite-size pieces
2 tomatoes, cut into sixths
2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
1 can (7 ounces) tuna, drained
2 tablespoons sliced pitted ripe olives, drained
6 anchovies
Snipped parsley

Cook beans as directed on package; drain. Refrigerate until chilled. Place lettuce in salad bowl. Arrange beans, tomatoes and eggs around edge of salad. Mound tuna in center and sprinkle with olives. Garnish with anchovies and sprinkle with parsley.

For picnic convenience, transport salad ingredients in individual containers and arrange the salad when ready to eat.

FRENCH DRESSING

½ cup olive or vegetable oil or combination
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon paprika

Shake all ingredients in tightly covered jar. Makes ¾ cup dressing.

Serve Bloody Mary Soup as a hot drink or a pick-me-up to accompany meals on cold days.

BLOODY MARY SOUP

1 medium onion, diced
3 celery ribs, diced
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons tomato puree
1 tablespoon sugar
5 cups tomato juice
1 tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup vodka

Saute onions and celery in butter until light brown. Add tomato puree and sugar. Saute for 1 minute. Simmer for 8 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Strain and serve. Serves 6.

Proper picnic food storage

Picnic safety is a must for any picnic — at the park or the stadium. Proper storage of hot or cold foods prevents the growth of disease-producing bacteria.

For safe storage of leftovers during the game, carry milk in a vacuum bottle or refrigerate foods in an ice chest with a cold pack, says William J. Mack, environmental health officer, Arlington Heights.

The Division of Health Services, Arlington Heights, offers these additional tips for safe picnic meals:

- Keep foods hot or cold as soon as possible after purchase; do not let stand at room temperature.
- Place foods such as casseroles or meats in shallow pans, about three to four inches deep. Since foods acts as an insulator, deep containers of food may take several hours to reach a safe temperature.
- Transport hot foods taken immediately from the stove in an insulated container, such as an ice chest. For long distances, refrigerate foods below 40 degrees and reheat. Refrigerate cold foods with ice, dry ice, or ice packs.
- Throw away food left out for long periods of time. Although the look and taste appear normal, the food may containdisease producing bacteria.

Try enchilada and corn bread dinner for Mexican fest

Celebrate Mexican Independence Day Sept. 16 with a holiday dinner of enchiladas and corn bread. A soft tortilla filled with cheese, the enchilada also appears with a meat or poultry filling.

MEXICAN CORN BREAD

- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1 can (4 ounces) diced green chilies
- 1 can (1 pound) cream-style golden corn
- ½ cup grated Monterey Jack cheese
- ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
- 2 teaspoons bacon onion seasoning
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 cup sifted yellow cornmeal
- 4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Add chilies, corn, cheeses and seasoning; blend well. Sift together flour, cornmeal and baking powder; add to corn mixture and blend well.

Pour into a greased and floured 12x8x2-inch baking dish. Place in a preheated 350 degree oven; reduce heat to 300 degrees. Bake for 1 hour. Cut into 12 squares.

To make muffins, fill 18 muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake at same temperature as corn bread for 45 minutes.

GREEN CHILE ENCHILADAS

- 1 dozen corn tortillas
- ½ cup oil
- 2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
- ¾ cup chopped onion
- 2 packages chicken gravy mix
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 can (4 ounces) Jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped

In skillet, cook tortillas, one at a time, in hot oil for 15 seconds on each side; drain. (Do not overcook or they won't roll.) Place 2 tablespoons shredded cheese and 1 tablespoon chopped onion on each tortilla; roll up. Place seam side down in 12x8x2 inch baking dish. In saucepan, prepare chicken gravy mix according to package directions. Stir in sour cream and peppers; cook until heated through but do not boil. Pour over tortilias in baking dish. Bake in 425-degree oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top; return to oven for 5 minutes more or until cheese melts.

California plums to be abundant

Look for an abundance of plums, despite the prolonged drought in the plum country — California.

The Plum Commodity Committee said California growers are shipping a crop expected to be the biggest in history. Growers expect nearly 40 per cent more plums than harvested last year and nine per cent higher than the previous all-time record. (UPI).

Try enchilada and corn bread dinner for Mexican fest

Celebrate Mexican Independence Day Sept. 16 with a holiday dinner of enchiladas and corn bread. A soft tortilla filled with cheese, the enchilada also appears with a meat or poultry filling.

MEXICAN CORN BREAD

1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
4 eggs
1 can (4 ounces) diced green chilies
1 can (1 pound) cream-style golden corn
½ cup grated Monterey Jack cheese
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
2 teaspoons bacon onion seasoning
1 cup sifted flour
1 cup sifted yellow cornmeal
4 teaspoons baking powder

Cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Add chilies, corn, cheeses and seasoning; blend well. Sift together flour, cornmeal and baking powder; add to corn mixture and blend well.

Pour into a greased and floured 12x8x2-inch baking dish. Place in a preheated 350 degree oven; reduce heat to 300 degrees. Bake for 1 hour. Cut into 12 squares.

To make muffins, fill 18 muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake at same temperature as corn bread for 45 minutes.

GREEN CHILE ENCHILADAS

1 dozen corn tortillas
½ cup oil
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
¾ cup chopped onion
2 packages chicken gravy mix
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 can (4 ounces) Jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped

In skillet, cook tortillas, one at a time, in hot oil for 15 seconds on each side; drain. (Do not overcook or they won't roll.) Place 2 tablespoons shredded cheese and 1 tablespoon chopped onion on each tortilla; roll up. Place seam side down in 12x8x2 inch baking dish. In saucepan, prepare chicken gravy mix according to package directions. Stir in sour cream and peppers; cook until heated through but do not boil. Pour over tortilias in baking dish. Bake in 425-degree oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top; return to oven for 5 minutes more or until cheese melts.

California plums to be abundant

Look for an abundance of plums, despite the prolonged drought in the plum country — California.

The Plum Commodity Committee said California growers are shipping a crop expected to be the biggest in history. Growers expect nearly 40 per cent more plums than harvested last year and nine per cent higher than the previous all-time record. (UPI).

Brown baggin' it to school doesn't have to be dull

The opening of school brings the season of the brown bag lunch. As children explore the world of reading, writing and 'rithmetic, parents search for lunchtime packables.

If you want to add flair to a simple sandwich, try a fruit bread made with plums or prunes, a seasonal and economical choice. Fruit breads often are served at home with cream cheese, but for lunches add wrapped slices of a mild cheese, such as Monterey Jack or brick. Or, include a smaller slice of fruit bread for a lunch time treat.

Each recipe uses a different variety of plum, so take your pick. Freeze extra loaves for use later in the year - and enjoy the taste of plums year round.

PURPLE PRUNE PLUM NUT BREAD

2 cups chopped, pitted purple prune plums
1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup unflavored yogurt
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 cup chopped nuts

Prepare plums. Cream butter or margarine with sugar and vanilla until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift together flour, salt, cream of tartar and baking soda. Blend yogurt and lemon peel together and add creamed mixture alternately with dry ingredients. Stir until well blended. Add chopped plums and nuts and mix well. Divide between 2 greased and floured 9x5-inch loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 55 minutes or until bread tests done. Makes 2 loaves.

PLUM BREAD

2 eggs
1 cup water
1 (1-pound, 1-ounce) package nut bread mix
¼ teaspoon salt
2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 fresh California plums, finely chopped
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Glaze

Beat 1 egg lightly. Add water, nut bread mix and salt, and mix until moistened; then beat about 50 strokes. Set aside while preparing filling. Soften cream cheese, reserving 1 tablespoon for glaze, and beat in sugar and flour. Add remaining egg and beat until smooth. Fold plums and orange peel into cream cheese mixture. Grease a 9x5x2¾-inch loaf pan and line bottom with a strip of foil. Grease foil, and flour pan lightly.

Turn three-fourths of the batter into prepared pan. Spoon cheese-plum mixture evenly over top. Cover with remaining batter. Bake in 350-degree oven about 60 to 65 minutes until loaf is browned and tests done. Let stand 10 minutes, then loosen edges with spatula and turn out onto wire rack to cool. Makes 1 loaf.

GLAZE

1 fresh California plum, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon cream cheese, reserved from bread
½ cup powdered sugar
1½ tablespoons fresh orange juice

Place sliced plums in a row on top of cooled bread. Blend cream cheese with powdered sugar. Add orange juice and beat until smooth. Drizzle over bread.

Cooking classes for fall

If you want to widen your cooking choices or improve on basic skills, why not consider a fall cooking class?

- Attend microwave and other types of cooking classes at The Continental Cookery Shoppe and School, 1144 S. Elmhurst Road, Mount Prospect. An open house will be held Monday, September 19 at 7:30 p.m. including demonstrations, class information and refreshments. Call 593-3020 for information.
- "Cooking Vegetarian — Is It For You?" Home economists at the Jewel Food Stores will discuss the how, what and whys of vegetarian diets during a 1½ hour class Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $3 per person and must be purchased in advance. Classes also are available for organizations and clubs.

Two area stores will hold classes. Interested persons should contact the home economist at the store location: 908 E. Kensington, Arlington Heights, and 1500 S. Lee St., Des Plaines.

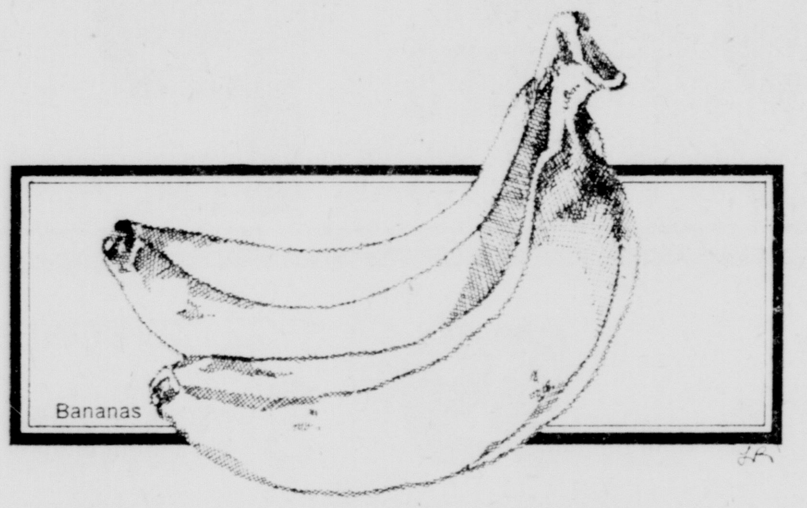
- Continuing Education Program. High School Dist. 214, offers a variety of basic and specialty cooking classes. Registration continues through Sept. 24. Class fees range from $12 to $27 and include food consumed in class. For a class brochure write: Continuing Education Office, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056, 259-5300.

Scone: treat fit for a queen

Do you know the scone? Its name may stem from the same root as the Stone of Scone — that important piece of rock that sits under Queen Elizabeth's throne. In any case, it ranks as a British favorite.

The Scots, as well as the British, first cut circles of the rich biscuit dough, then cut the circles into pie-like triangles. They serve their scones fresh from the oven with afternoon tea. Americans find scones much like shortcake. The only difference is the scone has egg added. The scone forms the basis for fancy fruit-topped desserts, or, in a word, shortcake.

Yes, we have bananas



Fresh approach

Because bananas come to us from the tropics, and taste best when ripened off the plant, the fruit is grown, harvested, transported and made ready for eating by a unique system. Bananas are picked green, washed, packed and shipped to North America under carefully controlled temperatures. Then they are put in special ripening rooms till ready for the supermarket. Bananas are in season all year 'round and often are the most inexpensive fresh fruits available, a fine value for the money.

FLAVOR TIPS:

The banana offers more than one flavor. A different nuance when cooked, another when eaten out-of-hand. Some people have a preference for bananas at a certain stage of ripeness. Brown baggin' it to school doesn't have to be dull

The opening of school brings the season of the brown bag lunch. As children explore the world of reading, writing and 'rithmetic, parents search for lunchtime packables.

If you want to add flair to a simple sandwich, try a fruit bread made with plums or prunes, a seasonal and economical choice. Fruit breads often are served at home with cream cheese, but for lunches add wrapped slices of a mild cheese, such as Monterey Jack or brick. Or, include a smaller slice of fruit bread for a lunch time treat.

Each recipe uses a different variety of plum, so take your pick. Freeze extra loaves for use later in the year - and enjoy the taste of plums year round.

PURPLE PRUNE PLUM NUT BREAD

2 cups chopped, pitted purple prune plums
1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 eggs
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup unflavored yogurt
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 cup chopped nuts

Prepare plums. Cream butter or margarine with sugar and vanilla until fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift together flour, salt, cream of tartar and baking soda. Blend yogurt and lemon peel together and add creamed mixture alternately with dry ingredients. Stir until well blended. Add chopped plums and nuts and mix well. Divide between 2 greased and floured 9x5-inch loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 to 55 minutes or until bread tests done. Makes 2 loaves.

2 eggs
1 cup water
1 (1-pound, 1-ounce) package nut bread mix
¼ teaspoon salt
2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon flour
2 fresh California plums, finely chopped
Glaze

Beat 1 egg lightly. Add water, nut bread mix and salt, and mix until moistened; then beat about 50 strokes. Set aside while preparing filling. Soften cream cheese, reserving 1 tablespoon for glaze, and beat in sugar and flour. Add remaining egg and beat until smooth. Fold plums and orange peel into cream cheese mixture. Grease a 9x5x2¾-inch loaf pan and line bottom with a strip of foil. Grease foil, and flour pan lightly.

Turn three-fourths of the batter into prepared pan. Spoon cheese-plum mixture evenly over top. Cover with remaining batter. Bake in 350-degree oven about 60 to 65 minutes until loaf is browned and tests done. Let stand 10 minutes, then loosen edges with spatula and turn out onto wire rack to cool. Makes 1 loaf.

GLAZE

1 fresh California plum, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon cream cheese, reserved from bread
½ cup powdered sugar
1½ tablespoons fresh orange juice

Place sliced plums in a row on top of cooled bread. Blend cream cheese with powdered sugar. Add orange juice and beat until smooth. Drizzle over bread.

Cooking classes for fall

If you want to widen your cooking choices or improve on basic skills, why not consider a fall cooking class?

- Attend microwave and other types of cooking classes at The Continental Cookery Shoppe and School, 1144 S. Elmhurst Road, Mount Prospect. An open house will be held Monday, September 19 at 7:30 p.m. including demonstrations, class information and refreshments. Call 593-3020 for information.
- "Cooking Vegetarian — Is It For You?" Home economists at the Jewel Food Stores will discuss the how, what and whys of vegetarian diets during a 1½ hour class Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $3 per person and must be purchased in advance. Classes also are available for organizations and clubs.

Two area stores will hold classes. Interested persons should contact the home economist at the store location: 908 E. Kensington, Arlington Heights, and 1500 S. Lee St., Des Plaines.

- Continuing Education Program. High School Dist. 214, offers a variety of basic and specialty cooking classes. Registration continues through Sept. 24. Class fees range from $12 to $27 and include food consumed in class. For a class brochure write: Continuing Education Office, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056, 259-5300.

Scone: treat fit for a queen

Do you know the scone? Its name may stem from the same root as the Stone of Scone — that important piece of rock that sits under Queen Elizabeth's throne. In any case, it ranks as a British favorite.

The Scots, as well as the British, first cut circles of the rich biscuit dough, then cut the circles into pie-like triangles. They serve their scones fresh from the oven with afternoon tea. Americans find scones much like shortcake. The only difference is the scone has egg added. The scone forms the basis for fancy fruit-topped desserts, or, in a word, shortcake.

Yes, we have bananas

Because bananas come to us from the tropics, and taste best when ripened off the plant, the fruit is grown, harvested, transported and made ready for eating by a unique system. Bananas are picked green, washed, packed and shipped to North America under carefully controlled temperatures. Then they are put in special ripening rooms till ready for the supermarket. Bananas are in season all year 'round and often are the most inexpensive fresh fruits available, a fine value for the money.

SALES

Ever try to drive a nail with a screwdriver? That's about as reasonable as trying to sell real estate without the right tools - you don't get very far.

If you really want to go places with your real estate career call us for an appointment to preview our sales training material. You will be amazed at what our Tom Hopkins FASTART (TM) Training System will do for you. It is filled with successful "how to techniques" that will help you "hit the nail on the head" in both listing and selling.

ORDINANCE NO. 2737

AN ORDINANCE CALLING AN ELECTION TO SUBMIT TO THE ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, THE QUESTION OF INCREASING THE ANNUAL LIBRARY TAX RATE FROM 0.15% TO 0.284%.

WHEREAS, on the 11th day of August, 1977, petitions were filed with the Village Clerk of the Village of Mount Prospect requesting that the Corporate Authorities of said Village call a special election for the purpose of submitting to the legal voters residing within the corporate limits of the said Village the question of whether the annual library tax rate for the establishment and maintenance of a free public library should be increased from 0.15% to 0.284% of the full fair cash value of the property within the Village, as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs of the State of Illinois; and

WHEREAS, the said petitions were presented pursuant to Sections 2-2 and 3-4 of Chapter 81 of the Illinois Revised Statutes (1975) which require Corporate Authorities to submit the question of increasing the annual library tax rate to the electors of the Village at the next general election or at a special election called for the purpose of submitting this said question to the said electors; and

WHEREAS, the Village Clerk has determined that the number of petitioners on said petition are in excess of 50 legal voters of the Village of Mount Prospect, Illinois, and that the said petitions are otherwise complete and legal on their face and in conformity with the provisions of the aforesaid Sections of said Chapter 81 and the other applicable provisions of the Illinois Revised Statutes; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees have determined to submit the aforesaid question to the legal voters of the said Village at a special municipal election to be held on the 1st day of October, 1977; and

WHEREAS, the Village Clerk has reviewed and determined the logical division of the Village for the purpose of conducting an orderly election on said question.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION ONE: That the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect find as facts the matters hereinabove set forth.

SECTION TWO: That the question of whether the annual library tax rate for the establishment and maintenance of a free public library in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, shall be increased from 0.15% to 0.284% of the full fair cash value of the property of the Village, as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs of the State of Illinois, shall be submitted to the legal voters of the said Village at a special municipal election to be held in and for the said Village on the 1st day of October, 1977, between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. of said day.

SECTION THREE: That for the purpose of said election, said Village shall be divided into ten (10) election precincts and the boundaries of said election precincts and the polling place for each election precinct shall be as hereinafter set forth in the form of notice to be given of said election, as such form of notice is hereinafter prescribed in Section Four of this Ordinance.

SECTION FOUR: That the Village Clerk of said Village be and he is hereby ordered and directed to cause notice of said election to be given by publishing notice thereof once in the Mount Prospect Herald, the same being a newspaper published in said Village. The date of such publication of said notice shall be not more than thirty (30) days, nor less than twenty (20) days, prior to the date set for said election, and said notice shall be in substantially the following form:

NOTICE OF ELECTION TO VOTE UPON THE TAX RATE IN AND FOR THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, SHALL BE INCREASED FROM 0.15% TO 0.284%.

Public Notice is hereby given that at a special municipal election to be held in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, on the 1st day of October, 1977, there will be submitted to the electors of said Village, the following question:

Question to Increase Annual Library Tax Rates from 0.15% to 0.284%

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE SUBMISSION TO THE VOTERS OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, OF THE QUESTION OF ISSUING $850,000 PUBLIC LIBRARY BONDS AT AN ELECTION TO BE HELD IN AND FOR SAID VILLAGE ON THE 1ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1977

WHEREAS, the Mount Prospect Public Library, Cook County, Illinois, was duly organized under an Act entitled "An Act to Authorize Cities, Villages and Incorporated Towns and Townships to Establish and Maintain Free Public Libraries and Reading Rooms," approved March 7, 1872, as amended, and is now operating under "An Act in Relation to Free Public Libraries for Cities, Villages and Incorporated Towns and Townships, and to Repeal Acts and Parts of Acts Therein Named," approved July 12, 1965, as amended, and has maintained and operated a free public library in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, under the direction of a duly elected Board of Library Directors and, annually, taxes have been duly levied and extended against all taxable property within the Village for the purpose of maintaining and operating said public library; and

WHEREAS, The Board of Library Directors of the Village of Mount Prospect has provided for and completed the construction of a new public library building in the Village of Mount Prospect within five years of the date hereof; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Library Directors of the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, has by proper proceedings heretofore determined that it is necessary and in the best interests of the Village that additional library materials be acquired for circulation to the public, such materials to consist of additional books, periodicals, films, recordings, electronic data storage and retrieval facilities, and similar materials, and said Board of Directors has heretofore submitted to the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect a plan and an estimate of the cost of acquiring such additional library materials; and

WHEREAS, the said Board of Directors of the Public Library of the Village of Mount Prospect has estimated the cost of acquiring said additional library materials to be Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00); and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees desire to approve the said plan for the acquisition of said library materials and the estimated cost thereof, as said plan and estimate of cost were heretofore submitted to this President and Board of Trustees by said Board of Library Directors; and

WHEREAS, it is deemed advisable and necessary and for the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect that said library materials be acquired; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of said Village approve the said estimate of the cost of acquiring said library materials and do hereby find and determine that the estimated cost thereof will not be less than Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00); and

WHEREAS, funds are not available for the purpose of paying the cost thereof, as hereinabove referred to and described, and it will therefore be necessary to borrow money and in evidence thereof issue bonds of said Village for the purpose of paying the said cost; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees have determined that before bonds of the said Village are issued for the purpose of acquiring said library materials the question of issuing said bonds shall be submitted to the electors of said Village and be approved by a majority of the electors voting on said question at an election called for that purpose.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION ONE: The President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect find as facts the matters hereinabove set forth.

SECTION TWO: That it is hereby determined that it is for the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect that additional library materials be purchased for circulation to the public, such materials to consist of additional books, periodicals, films, recordings, electronic data storage and retrieval facilities, and similar materials, and for the purpose of paying the cost thereof, as hereinabove described, it will be necessary that the Village borrow money and in evidence thereof issue the bonds of said Village.

SECTION THREE: That provided the issuance of bonds of the Village is approved by a majority of the electors of the Village voting on the question of issuing such bonds, there be borrowed by, for and on behalf of said Village the sum of Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00) for the purpose of paying the cost of purchasing said additional library materials, all as hereinabove described in the preamble hereof, and that to evidence said loan negotiable bonds of said Village be issued and that said bonds be designated "Public Library Bonds, Series of 1977," and bear interest at the rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum.

SECTION FOUR: That the question of issuing said Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00) in Public Library Bonds of said Village, as hereinabove described in Section Three hereof, be submitted to the legal voters of said Village at a special municipal election, to be held in and for said Village on Saturday, the 1st day of October, 1977, between the hours of 6:00 A.M. and 6:00 P.M. of said day.

SECTION FIVE: That for the purpose of said election, said Village shall be divided into ten (10) election precincts and the boundaries of said election precincts and the polling place for each election precinct shall be as hereinafter set forth in the form of notice to be given of said election, as such form of notice is hereinafter prescribed in Section Six of this ordinance.

SECTION SIX: That the Village Clerk of said Village be and she is hereby ordered and directed to cause notice of said election to be given by publishing notice thereof once in the Mount Prospect Herald, the same being a newspaper published in said Village. The date of such publication of said notice shall be not more than thirty (30) days, nor less than twenty (20) days, prior to the date set for said election, and said notice shall be in substantially the following form:

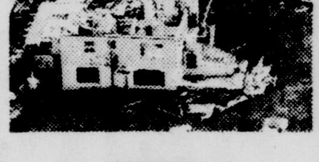
The rampaging typhoon that smashed Guam on May 22, 1976 isn't on the front pages anymore. But it will be a long time before the people of Guam forget it. And it will be a long time before Red Cross forgets it. Because we were there, too.

Believe it or not, Guam was only one of 30,000 disasters in the last 12 months where we were called on for major help.

Which is the reason our disaster funds are disastrously low. And an important reason why we need your continued support. Help us. Because the things we do really help. In your own neighborhood.

And across America.
And the world.

Guam counted on us.



We're counting on you.

ORDINANCE NO. 2737

AN ORDINANCE CALLING AN ELECTION TO SUBMIT TO THE ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, THE QUESTION OF INCREASING THE ANNUAL LIBRARY TAX RATE FROM 0.15% TO 0.284%.

WHEREAS, on the 11th day of August, 1977, petitions were filed with the Village Clerk of the Village of Mount Prospect requesting that the Corporate Authorities of said Village call a special election for the purpose of submitting to the legal voters residing within the corporate limits of the said Village the question of whether the annual library tax rate for the establishment and maintenance of a free public library should be increased from 0.15% to 0.284% of the full fair cash value of the property within the Village, as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs of the State of Illinois; and

WHEREAS, the said petitions were presented pursuant to Sections 2-2 and 3-4 of Chapter 81 of the Illinois Revised Statutes (1975) which require Corporate Authorities to submit the question of increasing the annual library tax rate to the electors of the Village at the next general election or at a special election called for the purpose of submitting this said question to the said electors; and

WHEREAS, the Village Clerk has determined that the number of petitioners on said petition are in excess of 50 legal voters of the Village of Mount Prospect, Illinois, and that the said petitions are otherwise complete and legal on their face and in conformity with the provisions of the aforesaid Sections of said Chapter 81 and the other applicable provisions of the Illinois Revised Statutes; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees have determined to submit the aforesaid question to the legal voters of the said Village at a special municipal election to be held on the 1st day of October, 1977; and

WHEREAS, the Village Clerk has reviewed and determined the logical division of the Village for the purpose of conducting an orderly election on said question.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION ONE: That the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect find as facts the matters hereinabove set forth.

SECTION TWO: That the question of whether the annual library tax rate for the establishment and maintenance of a free public library in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, shall be increased from 0.15% to 0.284% of the full fair cash value of the property of the Village, as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs of the State of Illinois, shall be submitted to the legal voters of the said Village at a special municipal election to be held in and for the said Village on the 1st day of October, 1977, between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. of said day.

SECTION THREE: That for the purpose of said election, said Village shall be divided into ten (10) election precincts and the boundaries of said election precincts and the polling place for each election precinct shall be as hereinafter set forth in the form of notice to be given of said election, as such form of notice is hereinafter prescribed in Section Four of this Ordinance.

SECTION FOUR: That the Village Clerk of said Village be and he is hereby ordered and directed to cause notice of said election to be given by publishing notice thereof once in the Mount Prospect Herald, the same being a newspaper published in said Village. The date of such publication of said notice shall be not more than thirty (30) days, nor less than twenty (20) days, prior to the date set for said election, and said notice shall be in substantially the following form:

NOTICE OF ELECTION TO VOTE UPON THE TAX RATE IN AND FOR THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, SHALL BE INCREASED FROM 0.15% TO 0.284%.

Public Notice is hereby given that at a special municipal election to be held in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, on the 1st day of October, 1977, there will be submitted to the electors of said Village, the following question:

Question to Increase Annual Library Tax Rates from 0.15% to 0.284%

Shall the annual library tax for the maintenance and operation of a free public library in the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, be increased from 0.15% to 0.284% of full fair cash value the property in the said Village, as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs of the State of Illinois?

That for the purpose of said election, said Village of Mount Prospect has been divided into ten (10) election precincts, the boundaries of each election precinct and the polling place designated for each election precinct, being as follows:

ORDINANCE NO. 2738

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE SUBMISSION TO THE VOTERS OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, OF THE QUESTION OF ISSUING $850,000 PUBLIC LIBRARY BONDS AT AN ELECTION TO BE HELD IN AND FOR SAID VILLAGE ON THE 1ST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1977

WHEREAS, the Mount Prospect Public Library, Cook County, Illinois, was duly organized under an Act entitled "An Act to Authorize Cities, Villages and Incorporated Towns and Townships to Establish and Maintain Free Public Libraries and Reading Rooms," approved March 7, 1872, as amended, and is now operating under "An Act in Relation to Free Public Libraries for Cities, Villages and Incorporated Towns and Townships, and to Repeal Acts and Parts of Acts Therein Named," approved July 12, 1965, as amended, and has maintained and operated a free public library in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, under the direction of a duly elected Board of Library Directors and, annually, taxes have been duly levied and extended against all taxable property within the Village for the purpose of maintaining and operating said public library; and

WHEREAS, The Board of Library Directors of the Village of Mount Prospect has provided for and completed the construction of a new public library building in the Village of Mount Prospect within five years of the date hereof; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Library Directors of the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, has by proper proceedings heretofore determined that it is necessary and in the best interests of the Village that additional library materials be acquired for circulation to the public, such materials to consist of additional books, periodicals, films, recordings, electronic data storage and retrieval facilities, and similar materials, and said Board of Directors has heretofore submitted to the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect a plan and an estimate of the cost of acquiring such additional library materials; and

WHEREAS, the said Board of Directors of the Public Library of the Village of Mount Prospect has estimated the cost of acquiring said additional library materials to be Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00); and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees desire to approve the said plan for the acquisition of said library materials and the estimated cost thereof, as said plan and estimate of cost were heretofore submitted to this President and Board of Trustees by said Board of Library Directors; and

WHEREAS, it is deemed advisable and necessary and for the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect that said library materials be acquired; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of said Village approve the said estimate of the cost of acquiring said library materials and do hereby find and determine that the estimated cost thereof will not be less than Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00); and

WHEREAS, funds are not available for the purpose of paying the cost thereof, as hereinabove referred to and described, and it will therefore be necessary to borrow money and in evidence thereof issue bonds of said Village for the purpose of paying the said cost; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees have determined that before bonds of the said Village are issued for the purpose of acquiring said library materials the question of issuing said bonds shall be submitted to the electors of said Village and be approved by a majority of the electors voting on said question at an election called for that purpose.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION ONE: The President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect find as facts the matters hereinabove set forth.

SECTION TWO: That it is hereby determined that it is for the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect that additional library materials be purchased for circulation to the public, such materials to consist of additional books, periodicals, films, recordings, electronic data storage and retrieval facilities, and similar materials, and for the purpose of paying the cost thereof, as hereinabove described, it will be necessary that the Village borrow money and in evidence thereof issue the bonds of said Village.

SECTION THREE: That provided the issuance of bonds of the Village is approved by a majority of the electors of the Village voting on the question of issuing such bonds, there be borrowed by, for and on behalf of said Village the sum of Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00) for the purpose of paying the cost of purchasing said additional library materials, all as hereinabove described in the preamble hereof, and that to evidence said loan negotiable bonds of said Village be issued and that said bonds be designated "Public Library Bonds, Series of 1977," and bear interest at the rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum.

SECTION FOUR: That the question of issuing said Eight Hundred Fifty Thousand Dollars ($850,000.00) in Public Library Bonds of said Village, as hereinabove described in Section Three hereof, be submitted to the legal voters of said Village at a special municipal election, to be held in and for said Village on Saturday, the 1st day of October, 1977, between the hours of 6:00 A.M. and 6:00 P.M. of said day.

SECTION FIVE: That for the purpose of said election, said Village shall be divided into ten (10) election precincts and the boundaries of said election precincts and the polling place for each election precinct shall be as hereinafter set forth in the form of notice to be given of said election, as such form of notice is hereinafter prescribed in Section Six of this ordinance.

SECTION SIX: That the Village Clerk of said Village be and she is hereby ordered and directed to cause notice of said election to be given by publishing notice thereof once in the Mount Prospect Herald, the same being a newspaper published in said Village. The date of such publication of said notice shall be not more than thirty (30) days, nor less than twenty (20) days, prior to the date set for said election, and said notice shall be in substantially the following form:

NOTICE OF ELECTION to vote upon the question of issuing $850,000.00 Public Library Bonds of the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois

Public Notice is hereby given that at a special municipal election to be held in and for the Village of Mount Prospect, Cook County, Illinois, on the 1st day of October, 1977, there will be submitted to the electors of said Village, the following question:

Question to Issue $850,000.00 Public Library Bonds

Public Notice

To the Honorable, the President, and Members of the Board of Commissioners of The Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago
Ladies and Gentlemen:

At the direction of the Chairman of the Committee on Flood Control, Drainage & Storm Flow, Vice-President William A. Jaskula, there will be a Public Hearing on Monday, September 26, 1977, at 7:00 P.M., in the Board Room, 100 E. Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois.

The purpose of the hearing will be to allow Home Builders Association and the public to express their views on flood plain problems.

Respectfully,
GUS G. SCIACQUA,
Clerk of the District
Published in Paddock Publications Sept. 15, 1977.

Notice of Public Hearing

To Whom it May Concern:

Public Notice is hereby given that a Public Hearing will be held September 30, 1977 at 7:30 p.m. in the Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 West Camp McDonald Road, Prospect Heights, Illinois to consider a request for a proposed variance on proposed lots 6 and 7 of the proposed Gail Courts subdivision, Prospect Heights, Illinois to permit relief from the 20,000 square foot lot requirement.

Applicant seeks reduction to approximately 19,450 square feet per lot. Variance to apply to following described property: the West ½ of the East ½ of the West ½ of the Northwest ¼ of the Southeast ¼ and, the East 66 feet of the West ½ of the West ½ of the Northwest ¼ of the Southeast ¼, all in Section 21, Township 42 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian in Cook County, Illinois.

Said request was made by Rudy Reimer, developer. Application is on file in the office of the Zoning Administrator, James Deal, 305 East School Lane, Prospect Heights, Illinois. All interested persons are invited to attend said hearing and be heard for or against said proposal.

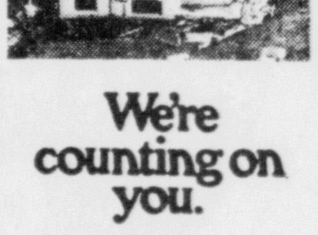
A Public Service of this newspaper & The Advertising Council

The rampaging typhoon that smashed Guam on May 22, 1976 isn't on the front pages anymore. But it will be a long time before the people of Guam forget it. And it will be a long time before Red Cross forgets it. Because we were there, too.

Believe it or not, Guam was only one of 30,000 disasters in the last 12 months where we were called on for major help.

Which is the reason our disaster funds are disastrously low. And an important reason why we need your continued support. Help us. Because the things we do really help. In your own neighborhood. And across America. And the world.

Guam counted on us.



We're counting on you.

Survivors' children facing up to wartime atrocities

by ELEANOR RIVES

Second of two parts

She speaks softly and distinctly into the microphone, this trim, dark-haired Jewish woman whose tape-recorded story has been played before various groups of people. In her late 30s, she has two children, a degree in microbiology, a lovely home in the Northwest suburbs and some not-so-lovely memories.

She is both a survivor and the child of a survivor of the Holocaust, for Sue Glassman, as we shall call her, was in utero when her mother was arrested in Germany in 1940 and incarcerated in a concentration camp in the south of France.

It was there that she was born, destined never to see her father, who had managed a few months before the massive arrests to get to the U.S. on the one visa available to the family, planning to send for his wife as soon as possible.

Ironically, in 1942, he who had escaped the fury of the Holocaust died; Ruth and Sue lived.

She has only faint wisps of memories of those three and a half years' imprisonment, beatings by the soldiers, of the escape by night on foot and by train. "I think it was through the French Underground," she said. "I know there was a large payoff." They lived in fear for months on end in the large underground bunker of a farm until one day the mayor came to them to say, "The war's over. The Americans are here."

"I lived through a horrible experience that I just can't understand," said Sue. "During the years we lived in Paris, my mother and a friend discussed it constantly. It created a monstrous image in my head of what Germans were. I had nightmares about being killed."

RUTH CAME TO the U.S. to her sister's home in Chicago in 1952, with Sue, then 12, at her side. She told her daughter, "This is a new country, a new beginning and a new life" — thus implying the door was closed on a terrifying period of their lives.

"My mother started from scratch and became very successful. But she lived through me and for me," said Sue. "I was her life; she made me extraordinarily important. I resented her overwhelming intensity."

Group seeks survivors' kids

Children of Holocaust survivors who are interested in belonging to a support group where they may share their feelings and problems with each other may call Minna Davis at the Mayer Kaplan Jewish Community Center in Skokie, 675-2200.

About eight years ago, after the birth of her second child, Sue began reading Holocaust literature. Soon it obsessed her. She confronted her mother and demanded that Ruth discuss it with her. Ruth did — reluctantly.

SURVIVING THE HOLOCAUST has had entirely different effects on mother and child, perhaps because Sue has had to contend with being the child of a survivor. "The Jewish mother syndrome — in a way I'm fighting that. It was so oppressive to me that I'm completely the opposite."

Ruth is paranoid, locks everything. Sue locks nothing, neither house nor car. "Everything I own or have, any material possession, pales before my eyes when I think of the Holocaust," she says. "If my children were to break the finest figurine in my house, I would say 'ho-hum.' "

RUTH HAS A hangup about Sue being happy, calls each day to ask her. So paranoid is she about this that Sue sometimes lies rather than upset her. At the same time, she has become very protective of her mother.

Ruth is fearful of anyone in uniform, overly polite and indulgent. Sue is quietly defiant. "In my subconscious mind, a uniform represents something evil," she said.

Sue tends to react in a violent manner when she reaches certain levels of frustration — "perhaps because I saw so much violence in my first five years" — yet she can handle crisis situations coolly.

"I learned that from my mother," she said. "In a way, she has given me the tools with which to survive."

ANOTHER WOMAN who knows what it is to be the child of Holocaust survivors and is doing something about it is Minna Davis of Buffalo Grove. Mother of two grade-school youngsters, she works part-time as Adult Group Services Worker at the Mayer Kaplan Jewish Community Center in Skokie.

Minna assumes her parents, Maurice and Lola, both of Polish ancestry, met when they were prisoners in Auschwitz. She knows both had been married before. Maurice lost a wife, three children and four brothers. Lola lost a husband, a mother and father, a sister and brother. Her marriage to Maurice followed upon the heels of the liberation.

MINNA WAS BORN a year later in Germany, a difficult birth of an ill baby to an ill mother. Lola later lost her second baby. In 1949, when Minna was 3, they came to the U.S and were placed in Richmond, Va., by a Jewish organization. They shared an apartment in an old house with another family.

They scraped and saved for two years, then opened a small grocery store in a black ghetto area, living above the store. Minna early became aware that there was no time for fun or play — there was only time for work!

"I have no memory of my father holding me or kissing me," said Minna, "and I loved him so much. He was often quiet, communicated very little. He wouldn't allow himself to be vulnerable. My strokes came from just being with him."

WHEN MINNA WAS 10, her father died. Lonely and heartsick, Lola moved to Chicago where she had a second cousin, also a survivor. Several months later she met and married Abraham.

"The intensity of my relationship was with my mother, not with my stepfather," said Minna. "She loved me so intensely that it was painful for me to rebel, even though I had to in order to survive as an individual. There was the guilt feeling — how could I hurt her after she had suffered so much already? She often told me, 'You are my life. Without you there is no meaning to my life.' That's a heavy trip to lay on a kid."

Minna shares with other survivors' children a feeling of isolation. She never felt she quite fit into the mainstream of American life. "I didn't have the growing-up experiences that other American kids have," she said. "My parents were never involved in PTA or Brownies or anything like that. I was never allowed to sleep in someone else's house. I felt isolated not only from the Gentile world but from the American Jewish world as well."

She knew her parents expected great things of her. Doing well in school, going on to college and then earning a master's degree was her way of meeting those expectations.

When Minna was pregnant with her first child, it was very significant for her. "I had the feeling I was 'giving' my mother a grandchild, like somehow repaying her for all she had been through." Lola in turn overwhelmed her grandson and later her second grandson with love, gifts and attention.

TODAY MINNA SHARES and compares her feelings at weekly informal group meetings with other children of Holocaust survivors. She is co-facilitator of the group.

"A common feeling among us, and among survivors themselves, is that the impact of the Holocaust in our lives is something that can't be fully understood by others," said Minna. "But we're seeing a change. Children of survivors have reached an age where they are more vocal, and the survivors can better deal with it now that enough time has passed. You are going to be hearing much more about the 'afterburn' of the Holocaust."

The subject is so overwhelming to Minna that subconsciously she cuts it off at a point. "It's like I'm split," she says. "Part of me the child of a survivor, part a contemporary American. I've lived with two cultures. How can I make them fit together in a comfortable way?"

Women artists, writers share feelings of self

by JO ANN LEVINE

The tradition of women working at jobs they choose is as deep as the dust that falls during the night.

It is not only that a "community" of women has never done it before, but that women don't know the ones who are doing it now.

A book called "Working It Out," edited by Sara Ruddick and Pamela Daniels (Pantheon Books, $11.95), in which 23 women writers, artists, scientists and scholars talk about their lives and work, attempts a tradition built on contemporaries. In many ways, the book serves the same purpose as do interviews with writers for those aspiring ones who don't know any but need to be "with" some.

THE BOOK, with its foreword by Adrienne Rich and its final essay by Tillie Olson, who did not have a book published until she was 50, is not a tidy book. Nor should it be. It is primarily a record of middle-class women trying to settle down and value the work they do — primarily alone. They are lonely struggles, yet compelling ones.

With the exception of Tillie Olson and artist Miriam Schapiro, most of the women writing for this book are around 40. They have reached an age where sluffing along the surface of a chosen field is no longer enough — even if they do it better than everyone else.

It is no longer enough because the person grading the test is closer to each woman than her heartbeat: It is each woman's own sense of self-worth. It is almost as though the kind of idealism a teen-ager has and learns to compromise has to be found again or these women cannot go on with their lives. Said co-editor Pamela Daniels, "I went from kindergarten to graduate school without asking why."

The book acts as a supportive friend for women who are asking, "why," much as Anne Sexton did for poet Celia Gilbert who was a student at Boston University. Celia Gilbert writes: "For a woman like myself, trying to write out of years of an exclusively domestic life, Anne was a source of support and encouragement. She, too, had been 'just a housewife.' She, too, had found her way to poetry late . . . For me it was crucial to have as a teacher someone who understood the experiences from which I as a woman, was writing."

MANY OF THE women have children; many are divorced. And none have had marriages which remained static.

It would appear that every woman in this book has not only read, but internalized, Virginia Woolf's "A Room of One's Own."

Celia Gilbert spent two months away from her family at the MacDowell Colony. "I found what I had needed — not the solitude, but the separateness I had craved but never been able to name . . . I now rent a tiny room in a rooming house not far from our home; a miraculous sense of wholeness never fails to come when I unlock the door and walk in."

Poet Alice Walker notes Virginia Woolf's contention that woman must have two things, certainly: a room of her own and enough money to support herself. She asks, "What then are we to make of Phyllis Wheatley, a slave, who owned not even herself?"

INDEED, THE MOST beautiful chapter is Alice Walker's, In Search of Our Mother's Gardens. "What did it mean for a black woman to be an artist in our grandmothers' time? In our great-grandmothers' day? It is a question with an answer cruel enough to stop the blood . . .

"Listen to the voices of Bessie Smith, Billie Holiday, Nina Simone, Roberta Flack and Aretha Franklin, among others, and imagine those voices muzzled for life."

The fear of success by women with a skimpy tradition of success is confronted in this book. Writes Pamela Daniels, "I stopped writing stories after a short story was well received. I stopped writing poems after two of my poems were published. I stopped studying literature after my happiest, most successful summer. I recognized even then that success somehow, mysteriously, made the work dangerous . . . I retreated to spectatorship."

And Evelyn Fox Keller, studying theoretical physics at Harvard, discovered, "In seeking intellectual affirmation, I sought male affirmation, and thereby became exquisitely vulnerable to the male aggression surrounding me."

Feminism means . . . that we renounce our obedience to the fathers and recognize that the world they have described is not the whole world . . .

MOST OF THE women agreed with Virginia Valian, an assistant professor of psychology, who concluded, "To work well you have to love, respect, and value yourself as if you were another person."

"Feminism," says Adrienne Rich, "begins but cannot end with the discovery by an individual of her self-consciousness as a woman. . . Feminism means finally that we renounce our obedience to the fathers and recognize that the world they have described is not the whole world . . . Women's art and thought and action will continue to be seen as deviant, its true meaning distorted or buried, as long as women's work can be dismissed as 'exceptional,' an arresting footnote to the major texts."

Artist Miriam Schapiro writes, "We women are in a transitional period. When a book comes out or a painting is made, we measure it against the standards we know — which are male standards. But we, the transitional women, are in the process of developing new standards. We don't yet know what they will be. We must not make war on each other while, in our vulnerability, we try to create something new . . ."

Trip to garage sale produces real find

Maria pottery pieces show beauty of simple work

Now I'm going to tell you a story that makes old collectors weep and young collectors sigh for the good old days.

Actually this took place only about eight years ago. My friend Bettie (the one from Texas) joined me on an early morning Friday foray (garage sale). Since we were "into" house plants even then — as I recall, it was the year of the African violet — we looked the tables over and under for suitable pots. Bettie stifled a gasp and picked up a small black bowl, marked 50 cents. She went right over, paid for it and sped for the car.

When I joined her, she was shaking with excitement. "I think I've found a real Maria pottery piece!" she exulted. Now Bettie was from the Southwest and recognized Maria pottery, having seen it in a museum in Oklahoma City. I didn't know Maria then, but I surely do now!

MARIA POTTERY IS, silly as it sounds, not strictly "American Art Pottery" in the category of those I've written about recently. Yet it is of course truly American, and beautiful, sophisticated art, although made with primitive methods.

Maria Montoya Martinez, who is still living, was born nearly a hundred years ago in 1881, in San Ildefonso, N.Mex., a member of the Tewa-speaking Pueblo tribe. "Pueblo" means "the place where the waters meet," a picturesque description of the upper Rio Grande. Here in 1907 a group of archaeologists under the direction of Dr. E. L. Hewett began to study the old Pueblo ruins, and Julian, Maria's husband, was hired to assist in the digging.

Shards of an old pot were discovered and Maria, who was a potter, was commissioned to reproduce a copy of it and was paid two silver dollars. Julian worked to reproduce the old glazes and decorations. These early products of the Martinez family were the cream, black and red colors we usually associate with Southwest pottery.

About 1912 they discovered that if the fires of their kiln, laid in a bed of broken pottery fueled with cedarwood, were smothered for a time with powdered sheep dung, the pots emerged with a black glaze. This method resulted in a shiny background, and about 1919 Julian perfected a slip paint that produced a shiny body with a matte finish decoration. The techniques together became the famous "San Ildefanso Black on Black."

Maria and Julian contributed to the potting industry in their own community and appeared in exhibitions all over the country. A few years ago, I saw Maria at the Chicago Flower Show. Many persons who traveled through the Southwest picked up pieces of the pottery that were sold, and I suppose that's how Bettie's little bowl ended up at a garage sale.

THE EARLIEST ware had no marks, but in the early '20's Maria was advised that American art is usually signed, and she began to use an "Americanized" version of her name, "Marie."

Other members of the San Ildefonso tribe signed their works, too: her husband, Julian; her daughter-in-law, Santana; her son, Popovi Da; and others not related to Maria.

The piece shown is a premier example from Maria Martinez's early period. The principal design is a stylized butterfly, and it dates from about 1920.

Just now and continuing through Oct. 30 is a comprehensive exhibition at the Art Institute, "The Native American Heritage." You will see beautiful examples of old and newer basketry, pottery, wood carving, stone carving, painting, porcupine quill work, beadwork, jewelry, clothing, and masks. The exhibit is divided into six geographic areas of the United States, so that the differences and variety in native American peoples' work becomes apparent. Please don't miss it — and take the children.

Who knows? You may look under the table at a garage sale one day . . .

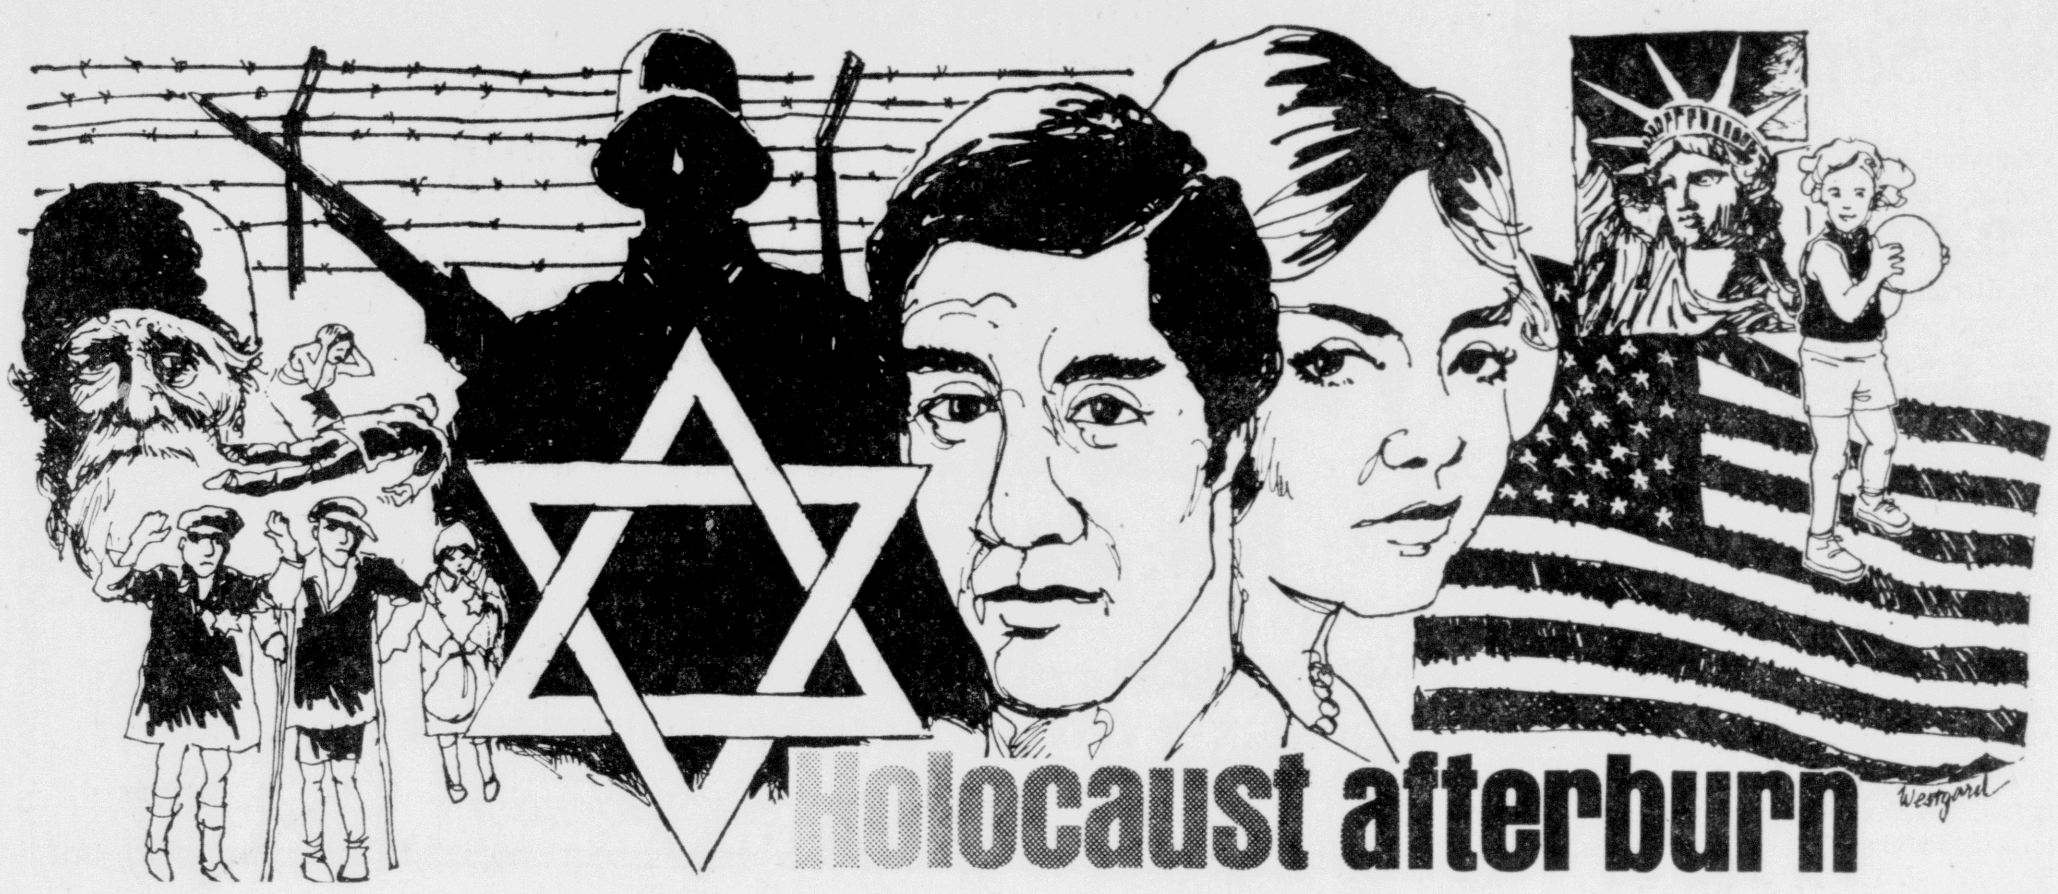
SUBURBAN LIVING

THE DAILY HERALD



Survivors' children facing up to wartime atrocities

by ELEANOR RIVES

Second of two parts

She speaks softly and distinctly into the microphone, this trim, dark-haired Jewish woman whose tape-recorded story has been played before various groups of people. In her late 30s, she has two children, a degree in microbiology, a lovely home in the Northwest suburbs and some not-so-lovely memories.

She is both a survivor and the child of a survivor of the Holocaust, for Sue Glassman, as we shall call her, was in utero when her mother was arrested in Germany in 1940 and incarcerated in a concentration camp in the south of France.

It was there that she was born, destined never to see her father, who had managed a few months before the massive arrests to get to the U.S. on the one visa available to the family, planning to send for his wife as soon as possible.

Ironically, in 1942, he who had escaped the fury of the Holocaust died; Ruth and Sue lived.

She has only faint wisps of memories of those three and a half years' imprisonment, beatings by the soldiers, of the escape by night on foot and by train. "I think it was through the French Underground," she said. "I know there was a large payoff." They lived in fear for months on end in the large underground bunker of a farm until one day the mayor came to them to say, "The war's over. The Americans are here."

"I lived through a horrible experience that I just can't understand," said Sue. "During the years we lived in Paris, my mother and a friend discussed it constantly. It created a monstrous image in my head of what Germans were. I had nightmares about being killed."

RUTH CAME TO the U.S. to her sister's home in Chicago in 1952, with Sue, then 12, at her side. She told her daughter, "This is a new country, a new beginning and a new life" — thus implying the door was closed on a terrifying period of their lives.

"My mother started from scratch and became very successful. But she lived through me and for me," said Sue. "I was her life; she made me extraordinarily important. I resented her overwhelming intensity."

Group seeks survivors' kids

Children of Holocaust survivors who are interested in belonging to a support group where they may share their feelings and problems with each other may call Minna Davis at the Mayer Kaplan Jewish Community Center in Skokie, 675-2200.

About eight years ago, after the birth of her second child, Sue began reading Holocaust literature. Soon it obsessed her. She confronted her mother and demanded that Ruth discuss it with her. Ruth did — reluctantly.

SURVIVING THE HOLOCAUST has had entirely different effects on mother and child, perhaps because Sue has had to contend with being the child of a survivor. "The Jewish mother syndrome — in a way I'm fighting that. It was so oppressive to me that I'm completely the opposite."

The doctor says

Protein in specimen has several causes

My daughter is 12 years old and about two years ago a urine specimen showed excess protein. A year later another specimen showed too much protein. A 24-hour specimen showed the same thing.

She had X rays of her kidneys using dye and everything was normal, kindeys, bladder, urethra. A pediatric urologist said there was no disease present that could be causing it. He did say that some people produced protein in their urine just from being overactive but my daughter is not active athletically. He also said some people could get it from standing.

What are the consequences of having too much protein in the urine if everything else is all right? Can she just continue on with this condition or is there a chance something might develop later? I don't know if we should pursue this or just think that happens to be the way she is.

Having had a good examination and having been told that your daughter has no disease I would think you could relax about it.

Your daughter probably has orthostatic albuminuria, which is what your pediatric urologist meant. Albumin is one of the blood proteins we all have. It actually leaks into the urine from the kidney and is reabsorbed by the kidney so we don't lose very much of it in the urine. Anything that increases the amount leaked by the kidney will increase the amount that shows up on a urine test.

In some persons standing seems to increase the leak into the urine or the failure of the kidneys to reabsorb albumin in sufficient amounts. Orthostatic refers to standing. Hence, the term orthostatic albuminuria.

Sometimes this can be demonstrated by studying the urine collected during a period when the person was lying down the entire time. That urine will be normal. Another specimen is taken after standing which shows the protein, albumin.

When that is the cause and there is no disease it is not medically important. It is not an indication of kidney disease or future kidney disease.

If you want to check this further I would think you should have her empty her bladder completely and lie down. A couple hours later collect another specimen and have that one checked. If it is normal you can be pretty sure that the variation associated with standing is the explanation.

Albumin can occur in the urine because of a variety of kidney diseases. A simple infection of the kidney may cause it or it may be associated with nephritis. Increased amounts of albumin also appear in the urine during heart failure. It must always be regarded as an indictator. The next step is finding out if it indicates something important or is just a normal variation.

Unevenly layered cake need not be disastrous

Dear Roberta: My oven heats unevenly because of a malfitting door. So I expect cake layers to turn out with uneven tops. I quake every time I serve an otherwise good layer cake, and pray the lopsided top won't slide off the lopsided bottom. Any suggestions, aside from my buying a new oven door? — Marsha DeWitt

Yes. Just turn the more uneven layer upside down. Fill or frost what is now the top. Then place the flatter layer right side up, so its bottom meets the other surface neatly. Then frost the whole cake. You'll have no more embarrassing gaps or slipping layers, I promise.

It's inflatable, and with its gentle contours, resembles a raft, in miniature. The soft plastic rings formed when it's filled with air provide a cushion for the baby and a rounded edge for his head to rest on. This allows a mother to have both hands free for washing baby, but never, of course, to leave his side during bathtime. When deflated, the tub can be folded flat and tucked away, which means it would be easy to travel with.

Dear Roberta: Someone advised me to avoid the dripping by watering my hanging plants with ice cubes. Sounds a bit odd to me. What do you say? — Barbara Kaufman

Don't. Cold water spots leaves. Plants prefer water at room temperature, and the best water for palnts is that which has been allowed to sit overnight. Take down your plant and allow the excess water to run off in a sink.

Fall fashion show lunch set Sept. 24

Schaumburg Jaycee-ettes are presenting their seventh annual fashion show, "Glow of Autumn Hues," Sept. 24, at the Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale, featuring men's, women's and children's fashions from Sears at Woodfield. Cocktails begin at 11:30 a.m. and the luncheon at 12:30 p.m.

Donation for the luncheon is $7.50. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. W. Mrozinsky, 885-0894.

Take tea and see

The Elk Grove Business and Professional Woman's Club invites all area businesswomen to "make an executive decision and come see." The group is holding its first membership orientation tea of the fall at 8 p.m. Sept. 21 at 912 Ridge Square, Elk Grove Village.

Interested women may call Jean Pick, 299-1177, days for more information. Her evening phone is 439-3886.

Get aquainted at tea

"Come Look Us Over" is the theme of the get-acquainted parties planned by Northwest Suburban Branch of the American Assn. of University Women. The first tea is planned for 8 p.m. Sept. 21 in the Park Ridge home of Marion Willman. The second tea, also at 8 p.m., will be Sept. 27 in the Mount Prospect home of Jackie Duenser. All women college graduates are invited and may call Mrs. Duenser, 437-5886, for more information.

Topic study groups are "Redefining the Goals of Education," "Women as Agents of Change," and "The Politics of Food." There also are literature, art, drama, creative writing and other study groups. Social activities include a couples' bridge group and a ladies' day-time bridge group.

Place your bets

"An Afternoon at the Races," sponsored by Xi Zeta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, will be Sept. 24, at the Arlington Park Race Track.

The event will be the first couples' social for the new club year. The chapter has chosen "Light Another Torch" as its theme for 1977-'78 and those wishing to join the group at the races may call 537-3182.

The doctor says

Protein in specimen has several causes

My daughter is 12 years old and about two years ago a urine specimen showed excess protein. A year later another specimen showed too much protein. A 24-hour specimen showed the same thing.

She had X rays of her kidneys using dye and everything was normal, kindeys, bladder, urethra. A pediatric urologist said there was no disease present that could be causing it. He did say that some people produced protein in their urine just from being overactive but my daughter is not active athletically. He also said some people could get it from standing.

What are the consequences of having too much protein in the urine if everything else is all right? Can she just continue on with this condition or is there a chance something might develop later? I don't know if we should pursue this or just think that happens to be the way she is.

Having had a good examination and having been told that your daughter has no disease I would think you could relax about it.

Your daughter probably has orthostatic albuminuria, which is what your pediatric urologist meant. Albumin is one of the blood proteins we all have. It actually leaks into the urine from the kidney and is reabsorbed by the kidney so we don't lose very much of it in the urine. Anything that increases the amount leaked by the kidney will increase the amount that shows up on a urine test.

In some persons standing seems to increase the leak into the urine or the failure of the kidneys to reabsorb albumin in sufficient amounts. Orthostatic refers to standing. Hence, the term orthostatic albuminuria.

Sometimes this can be demonstrated by studying the urine collected during a period when the person was lying down the entire time. That urine will be normal. Another specimen is taken after standing which shows the protein, albumin.

When that is the cause and there is no disease it is not medically important. It is not an indication of kidney disease or future kidney disease.

If you want to check this further I would think you should have her empty her bladder completely and lie down. A couple hours later collect another specimen and have that one checked. If it is normal you can be pretty sure that the variation associated with standing is the explanation.

Albumin can occur in the urine because of a variety of kidney diseases. A simple infection of the kidney may cause it or it may be associated with nephritis. Increased amounts of albumin also appear in the urine during heart failure. It must always be regarded as an indictator. The next step is finding out if it indicates something important or is just a normal variation.

Unevenly layered cake need not be disastrous

Dear Roberta: My oven heats unevenly because of a malfitting door. So I expect cake layers to turn out with uneven tops. I quake every time I serve an otherwise good layer cake, and pray the lopsided top won't slide off the lopsided bottom. Any suggestions, aside from my buying a new oven door? — Marsha DeWitt

Yes. Just turn the more uneven layer upside down. Fill or frost what is now the top. Then place the flatter layer right side up, so its bottom meets the other surface neatly. Then frost the whole cake. You'll have no more embarrassing gaps or slipping layers, I promise.

Generous friend should veto freeloader's request

Listen to Marian

Dear Marian,

My friend Maggie is always bumming small change off me for cokes, lunch in the cafeteria or other reasons. She never pays me back, yet whenever I want to borrow money from her she always says she doesn't have enouth to lend. I don't want to be cheap, but it bugs me to always be lending her money and never getting it back. What can I say next time she asks me for a dime or a quarter?

E.J.

Dear E.J.,

Ideally, you should be able to say, "I'm sorry but I just don't want to lend you any more money, since you never pay back." However, most people don't have the nerve to say this. Perhaps the next time she asks for change you could say, "I'm sorry, I'm pretty broke myself," or if she knows you have money you could say, "I would lend you some but I need it." After a while she'll get the idea.

Dear Marian,

My parents are divorced and every time I go out with my Dad or my Mom sees my Dad my Mom spends the whole day criticizing my father to me. I feel really uncomfortable when she does this. How can I get her to stop?

K.Z.

Dear K.Z.,

It isn't fair for a parent to try to make a child take sides against the other parent. You should go to your mother and have a talk with her about this. Maybe you could say, "Mom, I know you get ticked off at Dad and I can understand this. But I really wish you'd talk it out with one of your friends instead of me. You're divorced, but he's still my father and it makes me very unhappy to have to take sides against him."

Pants seminars set at Woodfield

Perfect-Fit Pants Seminars as well as Fit-to-Sew Dress Seminars will come to Woodfield Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Presenting the 2½ hour lecture-demonstrations will be Erma Hall, who spent more than 20 years as a custom designer and consultant in the fashion industry.

Emphasis is on professional short cuts for efficient, fast and fun sewing along with common sense sewing tips. Included will be faster hems, easier sleeves, wrinkleless waistbands, smoother facings, lazy belt loops, ready ripping and painless pressing.

MS. HALL drew a full house for her no bag or sag pants seminars at Woodfield last year, and because the women have asked, this year she is including the dress seminars.

Pants seminars are at 7 p.m. Monday; 2 p.m. Tuesday; and 7 p.m. Wednesday. Dress seminars are 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday; 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Session fee is $4 and reservations are necessary. The number to call is 882-0220. Sessions are held in the Schaumburg Room.

Workshop looks at women's choices

Two paths to self-fulfillment for women will be examined in all-day workshops at Oakton Community College, 7900 N. Nagle, Morton Grove.

Scheduled for Oct. 18, "Exploring Nonconventional Work Opportunities" will help women identify their abilities and skills and develop new work opportunities, and will acquaint them with women who already hold unconventional jobs.

"Future Women: Journey to Self-Fulfillment," designed to help women balance their personal success plan with relationships both at home and at work, will be held Oct. 29. Mary Slowikowski of Progressive Learning Concepts, will cover such topics as effective communication, developing a positive self-image, problem solving and decision-making, and integrating goals with self management.

For further information, readers may call the Women's Program office at 967-5120, ext. 350.

Weddings

Mary Henkels – Kevin Fitzgibbons

The Aug. 14 marriage of Mary Henkels and Kevin Fitzgibbons at St. Thomas of Villanova Church in Palatine was a family affair.

In the bridal party itself or taking part in the service were the bride's three sisters, her brother and sister-in-law, her parents and an uncle, along with the bridegroom's sister and brother-in-law and his brother.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Henkels of Palatine. Her father read from the Bible and her mother read the petitions during the service that was planned by the bride and groom. Her uncle, the Rev. John Malik of LaCrosse, Wis., celebrated the nuptial mass.

KEVIN'S PARENTS are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Fitzgibbons of Chicago. His brother-in-law, William Busch of Pewaukee, Wis., also read from the Bible.

For the wedding Mary was attired in a traditional lace-trimmed gown and long lace-trimmed veil. She carried a cascade of white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ann Kleeman of Palatine, Mary's sister, was her matron of honor and her sisters, Susan, 10, and Cathy, were junior bridesmaid and bridesmaid respectively, along with Kevin's sister, Kathleen Busch, Pewaukee, bridesmaid. They all wore light green flowered print dresses with matching hats and carried daisies and baby's breath mixed with ivy.

Best man was Donald Bolan from Wyoming. Kevin's brother, Brian, of Chicago, and Tony Gouletas, also of Chicago, served as groomsmen. The bride's recently married brother and his wife, Tom and Patty Henkels of Bloomington, Ill., seated the guests.

Mrs. and Mrs. Kevin Fitzgibbons

THE RECEPTION was held at Indian Lakes Country Club in Bloomingdale.

After a brief honeymoon in Wisconsin, the couple is living in Temple Hills, Md. Mary, a Palatine High School graduate who attended Harper College and received her B.A. from Mundelein College, is teaching at Loraine High Svhool, Oakland, Md. and Kevin, who also has his B.A. from Mundelein after attending St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., is employed by the Select Committee on Drugs of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The bride taught religion at Trinity High School, River Forest, before her marriage.

Anna Loska – Kevin Meenan

Living in Rockford since their Aug. 6 wedding are the former Anna Louise Loska of Des Plaines and Kevin F. Meenan of Lincolnwood. They exchanged vows at 5 p.m. in St. Mary's Church, Des Plaines, with a reception following for 225 guests at Carpenters Hall.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Loska Jr., and the groom's parents are the Cyril F. Meenans.

Frances Kuecker, Des Plaines, was maid of honor for the double ring ceremony, and William Meenan was his brother's best man. Other attendants were Ruth Stephan, Bloomington, Ill., and the bride's sisters, Phyllis and Amy Loska, as bridesmaids; Robert Domas, Lincolnwood, Robert Kik, Park Rodge, and Stephen Loska III, the bride's brother, as groomsmen.

After a week's honeymoon in Ocho Rios, Jamacia, the newlyweds settled in Rockford where Kevin works for Timco.

He is a graduate of Notre Dame High and St. Mary's College. The bride graduated from Maine West High and Illinois Wesleyan University and is now attending the University of Illinois Medical School.

Lori South – Craig C. Consoer

Lori South and Craig Consoer of Hoffman Estates, both Conant High School graduates, were married Aug. 7 in St. Peter Lutheran Church, Schaumburg. Lori is the daughter of the William Souths and Craig the son of the Earl Consoers.

For the 7 p.m. ceremony Mona Mace, Oak Park, served as maid of honor and Patrick Cipolla, Mount Prospect, as best man.

Also in the wedding party were Laura Huber and Deanna Johnson, both of Hoffman Estates, as bridesmaids and Joe Ackerman, Hanover Park, and Paul South, the bride's brother, as groomsmen.

THE WEDDING guests were seated by Edward Bondi, Berwyn, and Allen Bondi, Waukegan.

A buffet reception with dancing followed at Villa Olivia Country Club. Lori and Craig then spent three days at the Abbey in Fontana, Wis., and are living in Schaumburg.

Both attended Harper College, and Craig is now with Application Engineering Corp., Elk Grove.

Weddings

Linda Kristoffersen – Michael Calabrese

A couple who are both working at the Venture store in Mount Prospect were married Aug. 6 in the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit, Elk Grove Village.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Calabrese

The bride is the former Linda Kristoffersen, daughter of Mrs. August Becker, Elk Grove, and Gordon Kristoffersen, Williams Bay, Wis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bart Calabrese of Arlington Heights.

After the 2:30 p.m. wedding and the reception at Arlington Heights VFW Hall, the newlyweds spent a week in Wisconsin and are now living in a Hoffman Estates apartment.

Linda chose her sister, Karen Ahearn of Augusta, Ga., as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Michele Calabrese, Mike's sister; Cindy Hauber and Debbie Damore, Buffalo Grove; and Debby Bailly, Arlington Heights. Junior bridesmaid was Nancy Becker, sister of the bride.

MIKE'S BEST man was James Hupp, Rolling Meadows, and groomsmen were his brother Marty and Larry Keen, Alan Ahr and John Bulman of Arlington Heights.

Among the special guests were the couple's grandparents: the Hilmar Hansens, Lindenhurst, Ill.; Mrs. Synnove Kristoffersen, Williams Bay; and Mrs. Elide Lenzi and Mrs. Anne Calabrese, both of Chicago.

Linda is a 1974 graduate of Wheeling High School and Mike a 1974 graduate of Rolling Meadows High. He also attended Southern Illinois University for three years.

Nancy Basnik – Kevin Birkhofer

Fourteen attendants stood up with Nancy Jean Basnik and Kevin Kenneth Birkhofer Aug. 6 when they were married in St. Raymond Church, Mount Prospect.

Nancy, daughter of Gilbert Basnik, Mount Prospect, and the late Ethel Basnik, chose her sister, Linda, as maid of honor, and her sisters, Susan and Cathy, were among the bridesmaids. The groom's sister, Cindy Quast, Davenport, Iowa, Chris Kunst and Kim Vack, Mount Prospect, and Carol Doyle, Arlington Heights, were also bridesmaids.

Rick Koepping, Muscatine, Iowa, was best man, and ushers were Tom Carson, Ankeny, Iowa; Steve Quast, the groom's brother-in-law; Mike Leatherman, Iowa City; Jim Petell, San Diego, Calif.; the groom's cousin, Garry Birkhofer, Muscatine; and the bride's cousin, Jim Krapfl, Mount Prospect.

THE 4 p.m. double ring service was followed by a dinner reception for 150 in the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. The couple honeymooned on a Caribbean cruise and at Disney World and are now residing in Iowa City.

A graduate of Forest View High, Nancy is a senior studying nursing at the University of Iowa. She will graduate in December. Kevin, son of Mrs. Norma Birkhofer, Muscatine, and Robert Birkhofer, Muscatine, is a 1976 graduate of the University of Iowa and is doing research at the University Hospital in the department of pediatrics.

Weddings

Deborah Jones– Ronald Gosch

A garden wedding Aug. 20 at the Arlington Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gosch united Deborah Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hurles Jones of Elgin, and Ronald Gosch.

Ron's parents also hosted the reception for 150 guests which immediately followed in a yellow and white striped tent on the grounds of the home.

For the 1 p.m. ceremony, the bride's sister Sheila was maid of honor and Lou Ann Mitchell, North Chicago, and Renee Regan, Elk Grove, were bridesmaids.

Charles Gosch was his brother's best man, with Ken Dubs, Barrington, and Glen Gorniak, Mount Prospect, as groomsmen.

THE BRIDE chose an ivory gown with a crocheted neckline. She wore flowers in her hair and carried coral roses and stephanotis.

Her three attendants wore aqua, floral-printed chiffon with off-the-shoulder capes to match. Their bouquets contained assorted colored daisies with aqua predominant.

After a week in Wisconsin's Door County, the newlyweds are making their home in Arlington Heights. Deborah works for Tricom Communications, Inc., Bensenville, and her husband for Annen & Busse Realtors, Palatine, as a sales counselor.

She graduated from Larkin High School, Elgin, and attended Harper College. He also attended Harper after graduating from Forest View High.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Bergen

Julie Ann Fuerst– Thomas E. Bergen

A Mount Prospect couple, Julie Ann Fuerst and Thomas Edward Bergen, were married Aug. 20 in St. Mark Lutheran Church and are making their home in Ann Arbor, Mich., while the groom completes his senior year at the University of Michigan.

Julie, daughter of the Carl Fuersts, and Tom, son of the Frank Bergens, met at Prospect High School. Julie graduated later in dental hygiene from Harper College and now works in an Ann Arbor dental office. Tom is a member of Michigan's basketball team.

Their 11 a.m. ceremony included a prayer by Julie's cousin, the Rev. Steven Hecky, Upper Sandusky, Ohio, and a reading by Donna Peterson, Oak Park. She and the groom's sister Pamela and Susette Freiberg, Mount Prospect, were bridesmaids, and Sherry Coenen, Mount Prospect served as maid of honor.

THEY AND the flower girl, 6-year-old Brenda Pershing of Mount Prospect, wore blue voile printed with yellow daisies and carried yellow roses and daisies with blue carnations. The adult attendants also wore blue picture hats.

The bride's gown was of silk organza and Venitian lace, her veil was appliqued in matching lace, and she carried orchids, yellow roses and stephanotis.

Serving as acolyte was Julie's brother Jeff, 11. Best man was Leonard Morris, Plymouth Mich., and groomsmen were Tom's brothers, Keith and Brian, and Julie's brother Dave.

A reception for 170 followed at the Atrium, Rolling Meadows, and the newlyweds then left for 10 days in Sarasota, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. William Weber

Jennifer Quinn– William Weber

A 1 p.m. wedding Aug. 20 in St. Hubert Church, Hoffman Estates, united Jennifer Quinn of Schaumburg and William Weber of Hinsdale. They greeted 100 guests at a reception at Mallard West Clubhouse, Schaumburg, and then left for a week's honeymoon at the Wisconsin Dells.

Jenny is the daughter of Kathleen E. Quinn, Schaumburg, and Bill is the son of Elsie Weber, Hinsdale, and George Weber, LaGrange.

The bride came down the aisle in a Chantilly lace gown with a three-quarter length veil edged in lace. Yellow roses, carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath were in her bouquet.

Her sister Susan was maid of honor in a beige gown with floral cape and carried a bouquet in autumn colors. Bridesmaids wore yellow with floral capes and carried mixed bouquets. They were the bride's sisters, Katie Walker, Esmond, Ill., and Diana Quinn, DeKalb; Linda Krueger, Hinsdale; and Debby Ceiski, Darien, Ill.

Richard Gawley of Pittsburgh served as best man, with Terry Walker, Esmond and Donny Elwood, Jim Burnaby and Bob Manalotos, all of Darien, as groomsmen.

The bride's cousin, Hugh Condon of Oak Park, escorted her to the altar and her uncle, Father Bill Collins of Rockford, performed the double ring rites. Julie Condon of Crete, Jenny's aunt, was soloist.

The newlyweds went to Hinsdale South High School, and Bill is now working for an auto body shop in Hinsdale. They are living in Hoffman Estates.

Diane Safarcyk–Ronald Crawford

Diane Safarcyk, a fourth grade teacher at Willow Bend School, Rolling Meadows, was married Aug. 20 to Ronald F. Crawford Jr. of Arlington Heights.

The bride, who also has been living in Arlington Heights, is the daughter of the John Safarcyks of Streator, Ill., and returned there to be married in St. Casimir's Church.

The groom is the son of the Ronald Crawfords of Salem, Mo. He is a marketing engineer for Commonwealth Edison, Chicago.

The couple honeymooned in the Virgin Islands after the double ring wedding service.

Melinda Naud, a bubbly, outgoing newcomer to television amusingly portrays Lt. Dolores Crandall, the buxom blonde played by Joan O'Brien in the original movie of the same name.

Ms. Naud's character will become involved with the show's star and submarine captain John Astin, with whom she got caught in the shower in the series' premiere movie last weekend.

But, sweet and light is about all that she plans to tolerate in the filming of future episodes.

In Chicago last weekend, Ms. Naud, who most recently portrayed The Fonz's girlfriend in a reoccurring role on "Happy Days," said she is fortunate to have a starring role in a new series but that she does have reservations about the portrayal of the five stranded nurses who join Astin's submarine clan during World War II.

Without being specific, she said that "Operation Petticoat" would resume filming a new episode this week "that calls for me to do something I'm just not going to do," she said. "They are going to be very surprised when I arrive on set and refuse to do what the script calls for."

Think of it this way. What do you think the scripts are going to start calling for when the storyline is limited to five Army nurses being stranded with a crew of mischievious men on a junk, pink submarine in the middle of the Pacific in the 1940s?

There is no intention of ever letting the nurses off at some spot on land after having rescued them off an island. Why not? "Well that's just show biz, I guess," Ms. Naud said. "Why weren't the people on 'Gilligan's Island' ever rescued off that island? And that series went on a long time."

True, but this is the 1970s and women are struggling for some kind of new identity on television that seems only to be hampered by the kind of roles that have been given the nurses on "Operation Petticoat."

Jamie Lee Curtis, another of the five nurses and daughter of entertainers Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, disagrees.

"We are nurses on that show and a lot of people forget that. We've worked hard to get there and I don't think we're being stereotyped in those roles," she said during a recent visit to Chicago.

So far, the scripts only call for the nurses to practice their medical know-how on one of the crewmembers who takes ill at sea. Otherwise, there doesn't seem to be much planning on the part of writers or producers on letting the nurses do what they've been trained to do. Rather, they will be largely involved in doing what comes naturally.

"We really aren't being exploited. If you put 13 Navy men out on a submarine for a couple of months, even today, and then have five good looking Army nurses come aboard, there are bound to be those instinctive reactions," Ms. Curtis said.

The show intends to be mindful of the fact that there is a war going on. There will be references made to death and fighting, and the submarine crew will also see some action, she said.

The show will also attempt to remind audiences that it's dealing in the 1940s when different attitudes existed between the sexes regarding the sexes, Ms. Curtis said.

MELINDA NAUD OF "OPERATION PETTICOAT"

Well, that's O.K., but it would be just like the network to stretch things for the sake of sex appeal in the form of a little fun and games on the high seas — a sure ratings-getter proven time and again with shows like "Charlie's Angels."

But, the talented John Astin believes the confinement of the submarine will work to the show's advantage. "We are looking at the tensions that arise between the nurses and the crew, and it's a mature look."

"I don't feel the girls are being exploited. These are lonely people on this ship and the nurses will become more than objects as their characters are developed," Astin said. "But, I don't think we should try and force a 1977 attitude on a show that is supposedly taking place in the 1940s when our standards and moralities were different."

"Operation Petticoat" appears to be one of the genuinely funny new shows on television this fall, but the concern remains that the network doesn't have us laughing at the expenses of females in general.

TV NOTES:

- John Travolta hasn't been showing up for the filming of "Welcome Back, Kotter" segments this month. Supposedly the star wants a decreased shooting schedule that will give him more time to work on feature films like "Grease" which he stars in with Olivia Newton-John.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Erik Estrada may turn out to be this season's answer to The Fonz. He and Larry Wilcox team up as a California highway motorcycle patrol team in "CHiPs," the season's only new police show wich premieres at 7 p.m. on Channel 5. The action is limited to motorcycle stunts and juvenile dialogue.
- The "Rock Music Awards," hosted by Peter Frampton, airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.
- Bigotry in the New South abounds in the premiere episode of "Carter Country" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 7. The acting is good, the characters are funny but the racial slurs are not.
- "Including Me" is an 8 p.m. documentary on Channel 11 about the obstacles faced by handicapped youngsters, narrated by actress Patricia Neal.
- "Redd Foxx" brings his nightclub act to television in the premiere of his new variety show at 9 p.m. on Channel 7.

A mediocre performance from Rudolf Nureyev

by LYNN ASINOF

Review

There is a mantle of greatness that clings to Rudolf Nureyev, but I have never understood why.

The Tartar is considered one of the great male dancers of our time. His name has become synonymous with ballet, and his appearance as guest artist is sure to guarantee sellout crowd.

And so it was at the Arie Crown Theatre Tuesday when the National Ballet of Canada opened a six-day visit featuring Nureyev as guest artist.

But it was Karen Kain, dancing the role of Princess Aurora in "The Sleeping Beauty" who won the hearts of the audience.

NUREYEV, FOR ALL his teeth gnashing and stage arrogance, lacked substance. As one woman said leaving the theater, "He just doesn't dance very well."

It's not that Nureyev has no talent. It's just that he isn't great, and people who pay as much as $17.50 a seat want to see greatness. Tuesday night, all Nureyev gave them was some mediocre dancing and a peek at his celebrated rear end.

Chicago dance fans, however, can be thankful to Nureyev for one thing, he brought the National Ballet of Canada with him to Chicago.

The Canadian troupe does not get ranked among the major companies in the world, but it moves closer every day. Each year the dancers become more mature, the productions become more sophisticated and the staging more effective.

Tuesday's "Sleeping Beauty" was a first class production. It avoided the common pitfall of too much pageantry, striking a rare balance between spectacle and dance. The opulent costumes and sets were used to give the performance a rich texture, but were never allowed to overwhelm the dancing.

MISS KAIN'S interpretation of the role of Princess Aurora was charming. She approached the character as a coltish teenager exploring the trappings of adulthood.

In the torturously difficult "Rose Adagio" she must greet her four suitors while retaining a precarious attitude balance. Miss Kain used the difficult choreography to underscore the uncertainty of youth.

She tackled each balance tentatively and when she succeeded she proudly announced her accomplishment with girlish glee.

When she was partnered by Nureyev, however, Miss Kain had her hands full. The two were less than perfect partners. She seemed unsure of him, and he often appeared to throw her off balance.

Dancing by the rest of the company was uneven. The corps occasionally looked ragged. Movements often weren't in unison and legs never seemed to hit the same height.

Mary Jago as Princess Florine flitted her way through the "Bluebird Pas de Deux," executing clean footwork with the vivacity displayed by few of the other dancers.

Tomas Schramek, her partner, did an admirable job with the difficult beats and jumps but never warmed to the audience.

"Sleeping Beauty" will be repeated tonight with Vanessa Harwood dancing the role of Princess Aurora followed by three short ballets Friday. Over the weekend the troupe will present three performances of "La Fille Mal Gardee," a light classical comedy, with Nureyev dancing in all but the Sunday matinee.

'Oliver's Story' proves Segal no one-shot author

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Author Erich Segal's bestselling "Oliver's Story" has been sold to Paramount Pictures for $1.5 million, exactly $1,450,000 more than he got for "Love Story."

The studio paid him only $50,000 for the script of "Love Story" which remains on the list of the top 10 boxoffice hits of all time.

THIS TIME around novelist Segal chose not to do things backward.

In 1969 he wrote the screenplay for "Love Story," then novelized it. "Oliver's Story" was published this spring and Segal is busy putting finishing touches to the script for which Paramount is paying him an additional healthy sum.

Studio generosity was fostered by the fact that "Oliver's Story" is now in its 27th week on the best-seller list.

But to Segal, now a professor of Greek and Latin at Dartmouth, the money is secondary to the recognition he is receiving as an author.

"LOVE STORY," despite worldwide sales of 25 million books, was roundly rapped by critics. Literati labeled Segal a freak one-shot author who got lucky.

Although professor Segal waxed famous and wealthy, he was deeply stung by the literary establishment's cold shoulder.

"It took me five years of fear and trembling to start 'Oliver's Story,' " he said during a break in his work on the screenplay.

"I was terrified of the curse of a second novel. So many first novels do so well, then the writer never produces another book that measures up.

"THREE YEARS ago I made up my mind to go ahead with the sequel. The writing took me two and a half years because I didn't have an ending. I wrote 'Love Story' in only six weeks."

In addition to the mental block of second novelitis, Segal was plagued by the public recognition he had earned on his first book.

"I was unprepared for such a windfall," he said. "I'd been a professor at Yale and I had to earn the peace and quiet of being a teacher again.

"It wasn't easy on campus the year and a half after 'Love Story' was published. The book was No. 1, the movie was No. 1 and the song was No. 1. It became an albatross of excessive achievement."

THERE WAS resentment among other faculty members. Students made Segal an idol. He appeared on dozens of television talk shows and was interviewed interminably.

Overexposure does not suit the slight, baldish intellectual. Segal is an intense man, charming, talkative and, withal, self-effacing.

He has learned the lessons of instant fame like an "R" student. Segal has not allowed the explosive success of "Oliver's Story" to cast him back into the pitfall of personal exploitation.

He prefers the tranquility of academic life to Hollywood and Madison Avenue. Since "Oliver's Story" was publsihed he has given few interviews and appeared on only two talk shows.

"I've escaped the traps of my first success," he said, grinning. "I discovered authors, like actors, shouldn't stay on too long. I've kept a low profile.

"THE DAY 'Oliver's Story' was published I left for England and hid out for four months. I wanted this novel to stand on its own merits.

"This book has been my passport to freedom. It proves I can write more than one novel. It got me over the freak status.

"I'm not a freak. I'm a writer. I may be a bad writer, but a writer nonetheless.

"I have a third novel in mind. But first I'm paying my professorial dues. I owe the Harvard University Press a book on Roman comedy, my third book on the subject.

"They said I'd leave university life after 'Love Story.' But I didn't. And I won't now. I'll always be a teacher. It's my first love and profession."

'Petticoat' star bucks her role

MELINDA NAUD OF "OPERATION PETTICOAT"

It seems at least one of the five voluptuous Army nurses aboard ship on ABC's "Operation Petticoat" which premieres Sunday is concerned about the exploitation of women in the show.

Melinda Naud, a bubbly, outgoing newcomer to television amusingly portrays Lt. Dolores Crandall, the buxom blonde played by Joan O'Brien in the original movie of the same name.

Ms. Naud's character will become involved with the show's star and submarine captain John Astin, with whom she got caught in the shower in the series' premiere movie last weekend.

But, sweet and light is about all that she plans to tolerate in the filming of future episodes.

In Chicago last weekend, Ms. Naud, who most recently portrayed The Fonz's girlfriend in a reoccurring role on "Happy Days," said she is fortunate to have a starring role in a new series but that she does have reservations about the portrayal of the five stranded nurses who join Astin's submarine clan during World War II.

Without being specific, she said that "Operation Petticoat" would resume filming a new episode this week "that calls for me to do something I'm just not going to do," she said. "They are going to be very surprised when I arrive on set and refuse to do what the script calls for."

Think of it this way. What do you think the scripts are going to start calling for when the storyline is limited to five Army nurses being stranded with a crew of mischievious men on a junk, pink submarine in the middle of the Pacific in the 1940s?

There is no intention of ever letting the nurses off at some spot on land after having rescued them off an island. Why not? "Well that's just show biz, I guess," Ms. Naud said. "Why weren't the people on 'Gilligan's Island' ever rescued off that island? And that series went on a long time."

True, but this is the 1970s and women are struggling for some kind of new identity on television that seems only to be hampered by the kind of roles that have been given the nurses on "Operation Petticoat."

Jamie Lee Curtis, another of the five nurses and daughter of entertainers Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh, disagrees.

"We are nurses on that show and a lot of people forget that. We've worked hard to get there and I don't think we're being stereotyped in those roles," she said during a recent visit to Chicago.

So far, the scripts only call for the nurses to practice their medical know-how on one of the crewmembers who takes ill at sea. Otherwise, there doesn't seem to be much planning on the part of writers or producers on letting the nurses do what they've been trained to do. Rather, they will be largely involved in doing what comes naturally.

"We really aren't being exploited. If you put 13 Navy men out on a submarine for a couple of months, even today, and then have five good looking Army nurses come aboard, there are bound to be those instinctive reactions," Ms. Curtis said.

The show intends to be mindful of the fact that there is a war going on. There will be references made to death and fighting, and the submarine crew will also see some action, she said.

The show will also attempt to remind audiences that it's dealing in the 1940s when different attitudes existed between the sexes regarding the sexes, Ms. Curtis said.

Well, that's O.K., but it would be just like the network to stretch things for the sake of sex appeal in the form of a little fun and games on the high seas — a sure ratings-getter proven time and again with shows like "Charlie's Angels."

But, the talented John Astin believes the confinement of the submarine will work to the show's advantage. "We are looking at the tensions that arise between the nurses and the crew, and it's a mature look."

"I don't feel the girls are being exploited. These are lonely people on this ship and the nurses will become more than objects as their characters are developed," Astin said. "But, I don't think we should try and force a 1977 attitude on a show that is supposedly taking place in the 1940s when our standards and moralities were different."

"Operation Petticoat" appears to be one of the genuinely funny new shows on television this fall, but the concern remains that the network doesn't have us laughing at the expenses of females in general.

TV NOTES:

- John Travolta hasn't been showing up for the filming of "Welcome Back, Kotter" segments this month. Supposedly the star wants a decreased shooting schedule that will give him more time to work on feature films like "Grease" which he stars in with Olivia Newton-John.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- Erik Estrada may turn out to be this season's answer to The Fonz. He and Larry Wilcox team up as a California highway motorcycle patrol team in "CHiPs," the season's only new police show wich premieres at 7 p.m. on Channel 5. The action is limited to motorcycle stunts and juvenile dialogue.
- The "Rock Music Awards," hosted by Peter Frampton, airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 5.
- Bigotry in the New South abounds in the premiere episode of "Carter Country" at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 7. The acting is good, the characters are funny but the racial slurs are not.
- "Including Me" is an 8 p.m. documentary on Channel 11 about the obstacles faced by handicapped youngsters, narrated by actress Patricia Neal.
- "Redd Foxx" brings his nightclub act to television in the premiere of his new variety show at 9 p.m. on Channel 7.

A mediocre performance from Rudolf Nureyev

by LYNN ASINOF

Review

There is a mantle of greatness that clings to Rudolf Nureyev, but I have never understood why.

The Tartar is considered one of the great male dancers of our time. His name has become synonymous with ballet, and his appearance as guest artist is sure to guarantee sellout crowd.

And so it was at the Arie Crown Theatre Tuesday when the National Ballet of Canada opened a six-day visit featuring Nureyev as guest artist.

But it was Karen Kain, dancing the role of Princess Aurora in "The Sleeping Beauty" who won the hearts of the audience.

NUREYEV, FOR ALL his teeth gnashing and stage arrogance, lacked substance. As one woman said leaving the theater, "He just doesn't dance very well."

It's not that Nureyev has no talent. It's just that he isn't great, and people who pay as much as $17.50 a seat want to see greatness. Tuesday night, all Nureyev gave them was some mediocre dancing and a peek at his celebrated rear end.

Chicago dance fans, however, can be thankful to Nureyev for one thing, he brought the National Ballet of Canada with him to Chicago.

The Canadian troupe does not get ranked among the major companies in the world, but it moves closer every day. Each year the dancers become more mature, the productions become more sophisticated and the staging more effective.

Tuesday's "Sleeping Beauty" was a first class production. It avoided the common pitfall of too much pageantry, striking a rare balance between spectacle and dance. The opulent costumes and sets were used to give the performance a rich texture, but were never allowed to overwhelm the dancing.

MISS KAIN'S interpretation of the role of Princess Aurora was charming. She approached the character as a coltish teenager exploring the trappings of adulthood.

In the torturously difficult "Rose Adagio" she must greet her four suitors while retaining a precarious attitude balance. Miss Kain used the difficult choreography to underscore the uncertainty of youth.

She tackled each balance tentatively and when she succeeded she proudly announced her accomplishment with girlish glee.

When she was partnered by Nureyev, however, Miss Kain had her hands full. The two were less than perfect partners. She seemed unsure of him, and he often appeared to throw her off balance.

Dancing by the rest of the company was uneven. The corps occasionally looked ragged. Movements often weren't in unison and legs never seemed to hit the same height.

Mary Jago as Princess Florine flitted her way through the "Bluebird Pas de Deux," executing clean footwork with the vivacity displayed by few of the other dancers.

Tomas Schramek, her partner, did an admirable job with the difficult beats and jumps but never warmed to the audience.

"Sleeping Beauty" will be repeated tonight with Vanessa Harwood dancing the role of Princess Aurora followed by three short ballets Friday. Over the weekend the troupe will present three performances of "La Fille Mal Gardee," a light classical comedy, with Nureyev dancing in all but the Sunday matinee.

'Oliver's Story' proves Segal no one-shot author

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Author Erich Segal's bestselling "Oliver's Story" has been sold to Paramount Pictures for $1.5 million, exactly $1,450,000 more than he got for "Love Story."

The studio paid him only $50,000 for the script of "Love Story" which remains on the list of the top 10 boxoffice hits of all time.

Paramount is gambling that "Oliver's Story," a sequel to his campus romance tale of seven years ago, will match "Love Story" at the turnstiles.

THIS TIME around novelist Segal chose not to do things backward.

In 1969 he wrote the screenplay for "Love Story," then novelized it. "Oliver's Story" was published this spring and Segal is busy putting finishing touches to the script for which Paramount is paying him an additional healthy sum.

Studio generosity was fostered by the fact that "Oliver's Story" is now in its 27th week on the best-seller list.

But to Segal, now a professor of Greek and Latin at Dartmouth, the money is secondary to the recognition he is receiving as an author.

"LOVE STORY," despite worldwide sales of 25 million books, was roundly rapped by critics. Literati labeled Segal a freak one-shot author who got lucky.

Although professor Segal waxed famous and wealthy, he was deeply stung by the literary establishment's cold shoulder.

"It took me five years of fear and trembling to start 'Oliver's Story,' " he said during a break in his work on the screenplay.

"I was terrified of the curse of a second novel. So many first novels do so well, then the writer never produces another book that measures up.

"THREE YEARS ago I made up my mind to go ahead with the sequel. The writing took me two and a half years because I didn't have an ending. I wrote 'Love Story' in only six weeks."

In addition to the mental block of second novelitis, Segal was plagued by the public recognition he had earned on his first book.

"I was unprepared for such a windfall," he said. "I'd been a professor at Yale and I had to earn the peace and quiet of being a teacher again.

"It wasn't easy on campus the year and a half after 'Love Story' was published. The book was No. 1, the movie was No. 1 and the song was No. 1. It became an albatross of excessive achievement."

THERE WAS resentment among other faculty members. Students made Segal an idol. He appeared on dozens of television talk shows and was interviewed interminably.

Overexposure does not suit the slight, baldish intellectual. Segal is an intense man, charming, talkative and, withal, self-effacing.

He has learned the lessons of instant fame like an "R" student. Segal has not allowed the explosive success of "Oliver's Story" to cast him back into the pitfall of personal exploitation.

He prefers the tranquility of academic life to Hollywood and Madison Avenue. Since "Oliver's Story" was publsihed he has given few interviews and appeared on only two talk shows.

"I've escaped the traps of my first success," he said, grinning. "I discovered authors, like actors, shouldn't stay on too long. I've kept a low profile.

"THE DAY 'Oliver's Story' was published I left for England and hid out for four months. I wanted this novel to stand on its own merits.

"This book has been my passport to freedom. It proves I can write more than one novel. It got me over the freak status.

"I'm not a freak. I'm a writer. I may be a bad writer, but a writer nonetheless.

"I have a third novel in mind. But first I'm paying my professorial dues. I owe the Harvard University Press a book on Roman comedy, my third book on the subject.

"They said I'd leave university life after 'Love Story.' But I didn't. And I won't now. I'll always be a teacher. It's my first love and profession."

Today's hand illustrates the simplest one. South follows up his Blackwood four notrump with five notrump to ask for kings. This follow up also informs partner that they have all the aces. There is no reason to invite seven when you know there is an ace against you.

North dutifully shows his two kings and South merely goes to six spades.

At this point North revalues his hand. South was clearly thinking of seven when he bid five notrump. Could there be a trump loser? How about another loser?

South could not know that North held four sure and five very probable club tricks so North bids the grand slam which makes easily in spite of the bad club break.

Ask Andy

Shanghai the largest city in the world

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Steven Neese, 13, of High Point, N.C., for his question:

WHAT ARE THE WORLD'S 10 LARGEST CITIES?

Cities and metropolitan areas had a boom starting about 1900 when the auto became so important to most people. But cities have been growing steadily in size since industrial expansion started a few hundred years ago. Today more than one quarter of the world's people live in cities that have a population of 20,000 or more.

Population statistics show the cities of the world are continuing to grow. People find great advantages of living in urban areas. They have high standards of living, fine schools for their children, and good homes, and are able to buy most of the necessities of life and also many luxuries.

In the United States today, 73 per cent of the population live in cities while 76 per cent of the people of Canada make their homes in urban areas. It's easy to understand why this happens. The jobs, for the most part, are located in the cities.

Boundaries of cities are not all defined in the same way. The largest city in the world, for example, is Shanghai. More than 10.8 million people live there. But the city also includes within its limits the surrounding urban and rural areas.

Second largest city in the world is Tokyo where 8.7 million live. But if you were to include the metropolitan area around Tokyo, you would have a population of 11.6 million. Tokyo is certainly the world's largest metropolitan center.

Third on the list of the world's largest cities is Mexico City with a population of about 8.3 million; New York City comes in fourth with a population of 7.9 million.

The metropolitan population of New York, by the way, is almost 10 million, making it the fourth largest metropolitan area in the world right behind Mexico City with 10.7 million.

Fifth largest city in the world is Peking with its population of 7.6 million. Next in line are London and Moscow with populations of 7.2 million and 6.9 million.

Rounding out the top 10 list in eighth, ninth and 10th places are Bombay, Seoul and Jakarta. These three cities have populations of 5.9 million, 5.5 million and 5.4 million.

In the world's largest metropolitan areas, numbers five through 10 include the following in their correct order: Buenos Aires, Paris, Sao Paulo, Peking, Moscow and London. The city of Paris, not including the suburbs, rates as No. 38 among the world's largest cities.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to Greg Cashman, 10, of Urbandale, Iowa, for his question:

WHAT DO A.M. AND P.M. STAND FOR?

Each 24-hour day begins at midnight and is divided into two parts. The first part runs from midnight to noon and is known as the a.m. The letters stand for the Latin words ante meridiem which means "before noon."

The hours between noon and midnight are called the p.m. hours. These letters stand for the Latin words post meridiem which mean "after noon."

Astronomers call each 24-hour period of time a sidereal day. It is based on the time needed for the earth's rotation. The day actually is 23 hours, 56 minutes and 4.09054 seconds in length. The missing time is put together as February 29 every four years when we have 366 a.m.'s and p.m.'s instead of the usual 365.

Send your question on a post card to Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlingto Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.
